SUMMARY.

Sir Douglas Haig reports that successful British attacks have rendered the German positions on the old Somme battlefield untenable.

The enemy has been forced on the whole front to abandon ground which he gained at such heavy cost in March and April.

"We have reached the west bank of the Somme, opposite Brie and Peronne, and have captured Hem," said Field-Marshal Haig.

Bapaume has been captured by the British and Peronne is out-flanked on the south.

The Australians have taken Feuilleres, Herbecourt, Assevillers, and Belloy, westward of Peronne.

The British have reached Maurepas (south-west and slightly west of Combles), Morval, and Les Boeufs (north of Combles).

They have nearly reached Le Transloy, west of the Bapaume-Peronne high road. They took Ginchy, north-east of Combles.

On the southern flank Noyon has been taken, and a New York report says the French have captured Breuil.

The French approach to Ham threatens to outflank the Germans between the Somme and Chauny.

The British are reported to be within 1000 yards of the Drocourt-Queant line.

The Canadians, by bombing, cleared out the famous concrete tunnel running westward of Bullecourt to the Sensee River.

Southward of the Somme the British maintained their pressure on the enemy, and are advancing eastward.

Tanks actively participated in the fighting southward and northward of the Somme on all possible occasions.

They rendered very valuable and gallant service in co-operation with the infantry and other arms.

A Franco-American attack at Juvigny, north of Soissons, resulted in a gain of 1000 yards. The approaches to the railway were seized.

The French advance on Thursday covered 6 miles. Forty villages have been recaptured.

General March says the French advance near Nesle has indicated the further opening of Marshal Foch's pincers.

The Australian Press Association learns that it is now sufficiently clear that the enemy intends to retire to a shorter line.

It is not improbable that he will retire to the Hindenburg line.

There are, however, reasons to think he will try to defer this as long as possible.

The fighting during the past month has shown evidence of notable deterioration in the German moral.

A captured order speaks of the refusal of some new drafts to enter the trenches.

Since July 18 the Allies have captured 120,000 prisoners and 2000 guns.

Of these the British since August 8 have captured 47,000 prisoners and 600 guns.

The published estimate, in which the German authorities admit that the German killed total 1,400,000, is greatly under the mark.

The real figures are well over 2,000,000, and may be very much greater.

The peasant rising in the Ukraine continues, and serious conflicts have occurred with the German and Austrian troops.

The Czechs continue to make progress eastward of Siberia. They have captured Verkhneudinsk, 60 miles east of Lake Baikal.

A message from Vladivostock states that a strong Japanese force arrived on the Ussuri front, in Siberia.

The Allies advanced six miles, capturing considerable booty and some prisoners.

Mr. Samuel Gompers has arrived in London with other American Labourites, and will attend the Allied Labour Conference.

The object of Mr. Gompers' visit is to unite more closely the workers in Allied countries to win the war.

Mr. Hughes has received the Freedom of the City of Aberdeen.

The Federal Ministry intends to introduce heavy additional taxation.

The financial proposals are now engaging the close attention of Ministers.

Tariff rates in various items will be increased. Tea, kerosene, and other commodities on the free list will become dutiable.

The Minister for Recruiting stated yesterday that posters were being printed to appeal to eligible men to join the ballot.

It is not expected that the first ballot will be taken until the end of October.

A man was fined £10 in Melbourne yesterday for having made statements likely to prejudice recruiting.

The A.L.P. executive has endorsed the nominations of Messrs. Farrell and Bridges to contest Bligh Ward at the city elections.

The demand for badges and buttons for Homes Day has exceeded the expectations of the committee.

A special drive is being arranged for early next week, in which 200 Homes Day girls will take part.

Three hundred and twenty local committees are now at work upon the Seventh War Loan in New South Wales.

Hunter's Hill has the metropolitan lead in the open competition among the municipalities and shires.

It had £9650 above its quota yesterday, thus being entitled to one bar on the Honour Flag.

Kurring-gai Shire is moving towards its objective of £100,000.

Chatswood municipality has now more than one-eighth of its £80,000 quota in hand.

Woollahra is working strenuously to get the amount called for from the municipality (£100,000).

The part which pastime clubs can play in the War Loan campaign is not being overlooked by the Central Committee.

Organisations of every kind are being approached to lend a hand in the campaign.

Religious heads of all denominations have also been asked to make a pulpit appeal.

The public sittings of the inquiry into the interned Irish closed yesterday.

Mr. Justice Harvey intimated that if anybody had any further evidence he would be glad to receive it.

The inquiry by Mr. Justice Street into the conduct of the police in connection with the I.W.W. case was continued yesterday.

The tramline has been extended on the eastern side of Woolloomooloo Bay to No. 1 wharf.

The extension has been carried out to enable cars to be brought to the ship's side, to expedite the landing of invalided soldiers.

The Interstate Commission, which is conducting an investigation as to prices, will resume its Sydney sittings on Monday.

A phenomenal hailstorm passed over Merriwa, deluging business premises and dwelling houses. Orchards were devastated.

A meeting of the Broken Hill Trades and Labour Council was held last night to consider the coal shortage and the Port Pirie trouble.

A resolution was carried, expressing disappointment at the action of the Federal Government in refusing to intervene.

At an inquest into the death of a taxi-cab driver, the City Coroner referred to the bad condition of the Parramatta-road, Petersham.

A firm market prevailed for investments on the Stock Exchange yesterday, and a fair business was done at steady prices.

Wheat scrip was quoted easier, owing to the probability of the Government selling wheat at a slightly lower price.

The market for mining shares again approached normal conditions, and steady dealing took place in the leading stocks.

The market was again short of butter. It is said the Commonwealth Government may take the control of the butter business out of the hands of the Federal Butter Committee.

The Primary Producers' Union has made an application to the Price-fixing Commission for an increase in the price of cheese.

Forecast.—Still unsettled, with rain and thunder over the eastern half of the State, and northerly winds; some isolated local hail squalls likely, becoming finer and cooler in the western districts; snow likely on the southern tablelands.

W. JNO. BAKER,

SHEFFIELD CUTLERY.

In all sections of my business I am fortunate in being able to point to a well-selected stock and good variety of articles to choose from. For instance, to take a few lines:

SCISSORS.—The display would surprise you. In the way of Scissors, from the Tailors' Shears to the delicate cuticle scissor, and hundreds of sizes and models in between.

POCKET KNIVES.—Here again we can point to over five hundred varieties, in which Sheffield Steel and Sheffield Grinding and finish predominate.

STAINLESS STEEL is comparatively new to the world, but it has won its way to universal recognition, and is already a welcome friend in many households, doing away with the old drudgery of knife boards and bath brick. All you now have to do is to wipe the knives dry, and they are ready for use again.

RAZORS have always been a leading line, and we never had a better stock. Splendid Sheffield hand-forged goods, ground and finished in the inimitable Sheffield way.

BUTCHERS' KNIVES.
Sheath Knives, Choppers, and Cleavers, and Butchers' Steels, etc., can always be obtained. Call and see when you require

TO BE SURE OF THE QUALITY—

ORDER AN "AUSTRAL" SAC SUIT TO MEASURE.

The simple fact is, as most men know, that clothes cost more to-day than formerly. Prices had to advance under the conditions which prevail. But under such conditions men need to exercise more care than ever in the selection of their clothes—they must be doubly sure of the quality.

Their best assurance is to order an "Austral" Sac Suit to measure, in which is embodied the skill of expert Cutters, fabrics of standard quality, and the workmanship of thoroughly trained craftsmen.

WAR LOAN BONDS AND WAR SAVINGS CERTIFICATES ACCEPTED BY US IN PAYMENT FOR GOODS.

To any address throughout the Country we send patterns, with simple self-measurement forms, post free on request. Customers who have a preference for colour or texture of fabrics should tell us this when writing for patterns, so that special attention may be given to their needs.

Carriage is paid on all Country Orders.

Coming home we had a strong head wind and tide, and to save a hard row we gave a rope to 2 other skiffs, you will scarcely believe that the Safix Miller romped through with it all, doing 6 miles an hour, I am sure."

This department affords an opportunity of placing your children where they may be assured of receiving the best ground work of an early training upon a systematic basis.

Correct training at the outset is imperative. The instilling into the mind of a proper method at an age when it is most receptive results in the saving of much time and avoids labour of undoing the faults acquired from inefficient teachers.

You can always obtain credit with any other subsequent RELIABLE teacher with work that you do with us. We assure you that you will not have to UNLEARN what has cost you time and money to acquire at this College.

Appointments for advice and trials on personal application at the Studios; or by letter, or 'Phone (City 150 and 11150).

TABLE OF FEES and all particulars will be found in the full Prospectus, to be had on application to the Secretary.

BERT BAILEY AS GRAN'DAD.

Read what the papers say:—

"Morning Herald": Mr. Bailey has achieved a masterly study of old age in the character throughout a whole series of homely, comic situations, and playgoers will be especially grateful to him for the art with which he sustains the recognisable individuality of the first Rudd in the impersonation of the character which dominates the new story."

"Daily Telegraph": "Gran'dad Rudd is packed with laughter bringing lines. . . . Excellently made up he (Bert Bailey) offers a most convincing portrait of the garrulous, close-fisted old family bully. . . . The sense of development of character that Mr. Bailey brings into his work is distinctly artistic."

"Evening News": "Mr. Bert Bailey presented old man Rudd with all the skill which characterised his sketch of the selector in his early days, and, in addition, capably suggested the presence of the smouldering fire of passion which only occasionally burst into flame."

COMPARE RESULTS.
Every Poultry Farmer owes it to himself to inspect NEWTOWN COLONY BROODERS at work.
Look up your neighbours who have installed them, and find out from the actual users what an immense advance in brooding devices the "Newtown" Colony Brooder represents.
It may be too late to instal them for this season, but you will have first-hand knowledge as to the advisability of scrapping your old obsolete equipment, and installing "Newtowns" in plenty of time for the 1919 Season.
Send for special literature.

RESULTS GUARANTEED.
The size of a chick at, say, 6 weeks of age, depends largely on the elements supplied in the feed.
THORPE'S GROWING MASH with THORPE'S WEEK-OLD and EXTRA SPECIAL CHICK FOOD, provides the proper balance of all the elements required, and makes chicks develop twice as fast as chicks fed on a purely cereal ration.
Thorpe's Foods are the standard Poultry Foods of Australia, and are sold in every State of the Commonwealth.
There is only one reason—they give results.

IF YOU LIVE IN THE COUNTRY You need not think that it means a journey to the Metropolis to secure a Car. If you will submit your requirements to us, we will send you a detailed specification of any car we have that we think would be likely to suit you, together with our guarantee as to its condition inside or out.

Should you decide to purchase, we will truck the car to you, and if it differs in any way from the specification you need not take delivery of it. We will also send a first-class mechanic-driver who will show you thoroughly through the car and teach you to drive.

PAIGE MOTOR CO.,

DO YOU REALISE WHAT IT MEANS?

When the American Government stop the manufacture of cars, as is their intention in the near future, do you realise what it means to the man who must have a car? It means that he must purchase a second-hand Car, and it means, moreover, that there will not be much choice, as the second-hand market will be considerably depleted, and it means that THE PRICE OF SECOND-HAND CARS WILL INCREASE CONSIDERABLY. The man with foresight, and the Man who considers his pocket will secure his car immediately.

From one-third to one-half accepted on all our cars. Trials and demonstrations at any time.

PAIGE MOTOR CO.,

PAIGE, USED CAR DEPOT,
WORKSHOPS AND GARAGE.

A new Car depreciates from 20 to 30 per cent. the first year. A good, guaranteed, rebuilt Car or Lorry, with a written guarantee, bought at the right price, is a better investment than a cheap new car, and is a profitable investment that, after years of service, only shows a low rate of depreciation.

We have been in the Motor Business sixteen years, and can refer you to a thousand satisfied clients throughout New South Wales.

We have a number of the leading makes of Cars and Lorries, both European and American, at very reasonable prices. Your small car taken as part payment. Write to us and we will send you full particulars.

We have one of the largest workshops in Sydney, manned by a select and experienced staff.

Call in and see us, and we will quote you for—

MOTOR CARS, BICYCLES, ETC.

IT IS GENERALLY ACKNOWLEDGED IN MOTORDOM that for the High Compression, High Speed, Long Stroke Engine, the only satisfactory Plug is THE ENGLISH SPARKING PLUG.

There has been a dearth of GENUINE ENGLISH PLUGS on the local market for some time, though imitations have not been so scarce. The latter, however, only imitate in appearance, as they fail lamentably when put to the test of service. We have just landed a shipment of GENUINE "LODGE" AND "SPHINX" PLUGS, and, despite the large increase in landed cost, we have decided to sell the standard models at the old prices. In the under-mentioned list will be noted SPECIAL AEROPLANE AND RACING PLUGS. Motorists will have the satisfaction of knowing that these are absolutely the latest designs in high-grade Spark Plug practice. In the case of the "LODGE" PLUG, we have been notified that this is positively the LAST SHIPMENT TILL THE END OF THE WAR. Cut this list out, as, owing to limited stocks, it may not appear again.

"LODGE" PLUGS.

Regular Model 3-point in Metric, ½, ⅞ x 18, 5/ each.
Single point, for American Engines, in Metric, ½, ⅞ x 18, 5/ each.
Long Reach 3-point, in Metric, 6/3 each.
Long Barrel, for engines with deep valve caps, in Metric, 6/3 each.
Two-stroke Plugs—reduce the liability to four-stroke—5/6 each.
Lodge SPECIAL RACING SELF-COOLING MICA, in Metric, 12/ each.
LODGE AEROPLANE, SELF COOLING, same as used on the R.A.F. and Renault Aeroplane Engines, 17/ each.
LODGE AEROPLANE, SELF COOLING, same as used on the Ansani, Beardmore, Curtiss, Sunbeam, Rolls Royce, Hispano Suiza, etc., etc. Engines, 16/ each.
LODGE AEROPLANE, SELF COOLING, same as used on the Gnome Engine, 14/9 each.

"SPHINX" PLUGS.

Genuine Sill, 3-point, in Metric, ½, ⅞ x 18, 4/6 each.
Long Reach, in ½ and ⅞ x 18, 5/ each.
Single Point, in Metric and ½, 4/ each.

CADILLAC EIGHT.

No motor car can be sold at a price as low as the Cadillac price unless it commands a market as large as the Cadillac market.

When you are asked to pay more for any car than the price of a Cadillac it is not because the other car offers greater intrinsic value, nor because it offers any advantage in performance.

When you are asked to pay more for a car than the Cadillac price you are penalised because the other makers' equipment and methods are not on a par with Cadillac standards.

A cross-examination of Cadillac "Eight" owners will reveal that there is no luxury known in motoring which the owner of a CADILLAC "EIGHT" does not enjoy.

MOTOR CAR.

All vital parts which are subjected to strain are made from the costliest Chrome Vanadium Steel. Drop-forgings and drawn-steel work are used extensively in place of castings, which combines lightness with great strength.

The finish and equipment have been carried to a high degree of refinement at every point, even to minor details.

The crowned mudguards are singularly beautiful, and it would be difficult to imagine a cowl more graceful or a radiator more shapely.

"THE SENSIBLE SIX."

RATED AS 19-H.P. R.A.C. AND WEIGHING ONLY 2130LB. ON TEST IT PRODUCES 44-B.H.P. — SO 1-B.H.P. IS PRODUCED FOR EVERY 48LB. OF CAR WEIGHT.

HEREIN LIES THE SECRET OF THE OAKLAND SENSIBLE SIX PERFORMANCE—ITS UNUSUAL ECONOMY, WONDERFUL HILL-CLIMBING ABILITY, AND FLEXIBILITY, WHICH ENTHUSES ALL ITS DRIVERS.

The marvellous efficiency of this small 6-cylinder engine is the result of steady improvement on a previously proved design, eliminating friction and waste, so securing every ounce of power from each drop of petrol consumed. Many engines throw away as much power in their exhausts as would run them as far again.

The "OAKLAND SENSIBLE SIX" is not an experiment; it is the result of scientific design, and the endeavour to produce a reliable, economical car, to suit the great mass of people who must consider the cost of car upkeep.

How well this object has been attained the words of any OAKLAND SENSIBLE SIX owner will convincingly prove; all are enthusiastic over its ECONOMY, POWER, FLEXIBILITY, and COMFORT.

"This Buick Six DX 45 (1916) has done now just on 10,000 miles total, she is running alright now, of course, after making allowance for loss of efficiency through time and mileage travelled, and these roads are not quite the best in the world either. I have been driving cars of different makes for past 10 years, and I am quite satisfied with the Buick Six. I have confidence in her, which is a lot, and can and do recommend the 'Six' to my friends."

JAPAN AND HER ALLIES.

(BY DR. J. INGRAM BRYAN.)

TOKYO, July 9.

A good deal of discussion has recently been caused in Japan in reference to an interview with the Premier, Viscount Terauchi, printed in the "Outlook," New York, by Mr. Gregory Mason, who spent a few months in Japan. The Japanese feel that an attempt has been made to represent their officials as threatening an alliance with Germany after the war, if the Allies do not come up to Japan's expectations. This, of course, is wholly a misunderstanding of Japan's attitude. Such misunderstandings will always be possible so long as western periodicals persist in thinking that the visitor of a brief period understands the situation in Japan, or even how to interview a Japanese statesman. The Japanese Premier does not speak English, and the "Outlook" correspondent does not speak Japanese, and consequently the accuracy of the interview depends altogether on the ability of the interpreter in English. But after the correspondent has got his interview all translated into English, even to the satisfaction of the interpreter, he has yet no guarantee of its accuracy, unless he himself has a sufficient knowledge of Japanese genius and civilisation to know what the Japanese official was really trying to say. Obviously, Viscount Terauchi did not mean to say to the correspondent of the "Outlook" what he was made to say, the satisfaction of the interpreter with the translation notwithstanding.

For example the present writer is constantly engaged in the translation of the writings of Japanese statesmen into English and the revision of the English after it is roughly translated by Japanese. Were he to print a great deal of what he corrects as it is translated there would be a constant source of dispute between Japan and western nations, if not something more serious. But a long experience among the Japanese, and especially in translating their ideas into English forms of thought, has taught the present writer that a Japanese cannot always be taken at his word; that is, he must be translated according to what he is trying to say rather than according to what he really does say.

When the rather impertinent question as to whether there was any possibility that Japan would ever form an alliance with Germany was put to the Premier of Japan, he evidently intended to say that such a thought would not occur to any Japanese except under such circumstances as would imply Japan's complete isolation by the Allies, which, of course, is a thing almost impossible to contemplate. In fact the Premier's idea was that the question of his interviewer was too absurd for serious consideration, only he was too polite to tell him so. There is no doubt that it would be possible to compel some of the Allies to enter an alliance with Germany. If the other Allies turned against Italy, for instance, she would be compelled to preserve her existence by joining with her erstwhile enemy. The thing, of course, is impossible, but if one is insane enough to wish to talk about it, he may, for who is to prevent him, except a discreet editor? So also we may talk about the possibility of Japan entering an alliance with the enemy under pressure of treachery, but the idea is too absurd for mention among people of common sense. If a correspondent comes to Japan, especially the representative of a reputable periodical, and asks such uncalled-for questions of a Japanese statesman, the latter can only essay the impossibility of replying as the question deserves, or of treating it with the silence that means contempt, which no real Japanese would do. What would Secretary Lansing say were he asked such a question as to American policy? He could take it as a reflection on his country, or he could take it as a joke. The Japanese could only take it in the former sense, and Premier Terauchi did, but the interviewer did not understand the Japanese mind sufficiently to interpret what the Premier really meant.

Japan would not undertake to deny that there are pro-Germans in the Empire; nor could America and the other Allies deny that they entertain enemies within their borders. This is no more a reflection on Japan than a similar condition is on any of the other Allies. But to suggest that Japan is dangerously pro-German is to suggest what has no foundation in fact. The many Japanese scholars and scientists and military men who have been educated in Germany, or in Japan by German instructors, cannot but have some regard for that country, though many of them are loyally disappointed at the present conduct of Germany. The Japanese army has been trained under German prestige, and naturally will not like to see the failure of its long-loved system. The national constitution of Japan is based on the German, and this fact doubtless leaves many Japanese in regret that the system should be so discredited by its leading exponents. But none of these facts will interfere an iota with Japan's loyalty to the Allies and the cause they stand for.

ARMAMENTAL EXPANSION.

At a recent meeting of the combined Army and Navy Council at the Imperial Palace in Tokyo it was decided to enter upon a gigantic defence scheme, involving 34 new dreadnoughts and 10 new army divisions at an outlay of 1,060,000,000 yen on the navy, and 174,300,000 yen on the army.

Those familiar with the trend of public opinion in Japan since America entered the conflict in Europe with her consequent immense expansion in shipping and naval increment, will not be surprised at the plans laid down by the National Defence Council of Japan. One frequently hears the question asked as to where Japan will stand as a naval Power compared with the United States after the war is over. It seems to be the conviction of leaders of thought in Japan that the nation will be in danger of isolation in future unless there is a mighty army and navy to command international attention. The situation in Russia and China makes this all the more pressing, for there is a danger that some interference in Oriental affairs on the part of western nations is possible. That the decision of the Council of the Army and Navy should have been made promptly after the decision not to accept the invitation to intervene in Siberia is significant.

It appears that before deciding formally to undertake the phenomenal expansion of national defence alluded to, the various departments of the army and navy had been making investigations and had already agreed to accept the proposal without further discussion. The combined council of the two departments of national defence simply met and passed the measure, and the result was duly brought before the Emperor by Prince Yamagata the same day. The decision is regarded as of the gravest significance by the public.

When the new defence scheme is carried into effect Japan will have 42 army divisions, each consisting of three regiments instead of four as at present; and these will be divided again into 21 army corps. In the reorganised navy there will be three fleets, each consisting of eight line of battleships and eight battle-cruisers, with attendant flotillas and equipment. The new plans are based on what Japanese experts have learned of modern defence methods at the front in the present European war, and in the various naval tactics in practice. The last army and navy programme was drawn up in 1906; but the present war has shown Japan that the defences contemplated before the war are wholly inadequate to meet the situation anticipated after the war.

Of course it is not known just how many years it will take to carry out the plans now passed by the National Defence Council. Doubtless the extensions will be carried out gradually, as national finance will permit. In any case, so enormous an expansion of armaments will greatly add to the already heavy burden of taxation under which the people of Japan are labouring. In addition to the 1,060,000,000 yen required for the naval expansion proposed, a further annual appropriation of 20,000,000 yen will be necessary for maintenance, to say nothing of what is required for the establishment and maintenance of the new army divisions. The total expenditure necessitated by the execution of the new defence programme will amount to some 1,300,000,000 yen. The present national debt per capita in Japan is about 33 yen, and the rate of taxation equals about 9 yen per capita; but when it is remembered that the greater part of the population of the Empire is obliged to subsist on an income below the taxable limit, the burden on those whose incomes are up to and above the taxable limit will be all the greater, to say nothing of the weight of indirect taxation, which usually comes heaviest on the poor.

It thus looks as if Japan did not expect armaments to decrease after the present war, and did not expect much to come of the proposed League of Nations to enforce peace. Indeed, it seems as if the main lesson she learns from the war is that might is the arbiter of national rights, and that Japan can hope for justice only as she is able to insist on obtaining it. This may appear like a reflection on international morality, but it is possible Japan has not too much confidence in the altruistic professions of Western nations. At least, this is what one must infer from a study of vernacular comment on occidental diplomacy. Yet Japan cannot deny that the policy of the leaders of the Allied nations has always been one of strict justice toward Japan. Perhaps it only means that Japan is determined to be independent of her friends regardless of expense. Her pre-war defence programme was avowedly formed in view of conditions in Russia and China; but obviously the new plans have an enlarged objective as well as a more intensive policy.

IN THE GARDEN.

THE NEWER STRAIN OF PENTSTEMON.

The newer strain of pentstemon, known as the "gloxinia-flowered," is a marked improvement upon the older types, which were so popular with gardeners of a past generation. Could these old-time horticulturists inspect a collection of the different varieties of this newer strain in full bloom their profound astonishment would be more easily imagined than described. It is greatly to the credit of New South Wales hybridists that so many varieties of this newer, beautiful-flowering strain are now available. They are hardy, easily cultivated herbaceous plants, growing from two to three feet high or more, with bright, green leaves and large, pendent, bell-shaped flowers, some being two inches in diameter, disposed on long stems well above the foliage. Their flowers, which are produced over a greater part of the year, but more profusely during the hotter months, are of various brilliant colours, which are charmingly blended in many of them. It is a good time of the year to plant a collection of varieties of the gloxinia flowering strain. They thrive in a sunny and sheltered situation in deeply-worked, rather light, rich soil, but do well and freely produce flowers in any friable, fertile ground. These plants can hardly be misplaced in the borders, and when judiciously arranged produce a very fine effect in bloom. They make the best display, however, when planted in a bed by themselves, either in single or mixed colours. If grown in this way the plants should be set out not less than 2 or 3 feet apart, according to the height they attain, to allow them room to grow into fine flowering specimens. Pentstemons are easily raised from seed, which should be sown in early autumn in the more favoured districts, and in spring in the cooler parts. If a choice strain of mixed seed is sown the resulting plants will produce brilliantly-coloured flowers in the course of a few months. To perpetuate any kind true to its parent, however, cuttings or offsets must be used. Those plants that produced flowers last season will be greatly benefited if the ground about their root system receives a liberal dressing of well-decayed manure. Pentstemons respond to liberal treatment, and under such conditions attain a maximum development of beautiful blooms. If the old flowering stems are removed as soon as the blooms begin to fade, the plants will continue flowering for a long period. Following are a few of the best varieties of the gloxinia-flowering strain in cultivation; A. J. Tymms, red, shading to creamy white, orifice blotched with chocolate; Delight, white, slightly tinged with pink; Gigantea, deep rose, throat white, blotched at the orifice with rose; Hercules, tube crimson, orifice scarlet, white throat, slightly pencilled with scarlet; J. H. Horton, purple, orifice maroon, white throat streaked with maroon; Louis Leplastrier, crimson lake, white throat; Mrs. G. H. Kerslake, tube white, orifice clear rosy lilac; Noel, tube crimson, with pure white throat, orifice scarlet; and Rising Sun, soft reddish salmon, with white throat.

HERBACEOUS PHLOX.

The different varieties of herbaceous phlox, sometimes called perennial phlox, are amongst the most profusely flowering plants in cultivation. The newer and greatly improved varieties are becoming great favourites in garden decoration, and justly so, for under favourable conditions they make a singularly attractive display for many consecutive weeks, and during the late summer and autumn have few floral rivals. They are hardy, easily cultivated plants, growing from 18 to 24 inches high, and producing at the apex of their stout stems immense clusters of large, variously, and brilliantly coloured flowers. All the newer varieties of herbaceous phlox can be grown with equal success in both the warmer and colder districts. It is a good time of the year to plant a general collection, and if vigorous, young, root stocks are set out they will flower freely later in the season. When planting take care not to cover the "crowns" (undeveloped growths) too deeply with soil. In a general way about two inches will suffice. Phlox do well in almost any position where there is a fair amount of sunshine and shelter, and they thrive in deeply worked, friable, rich loam. They show to advantage when planted singly at intervals in the borders, but they produce the most brilliant effect in bloom when growing in masses either in single or mixed colours, especially if the latter are arranged to harmonise. Whether they are grown in large or small groups, strong root stocks or plants should be set out 18 inches apart to allow them room to develop into fine-flowering specimens. The plants, when they are about six inches high, will be greatly benefited if the surface of the ground about their root system is mulched with well-decayed manure. In dry, hot weather they must be liberally watered at the roots, and occasionally overhead, during the growing period. This will ensure a vigorous, healthy growth, and an abundance of bloom in due season. If the weaker shoots are carefully removed during the early stages of growth the energy of the root system will be concentrated upon the stronger ones, which will enable them to produce larger bunches of finer flowers. The following are a few very fine varieties of herbaceous phlox, with the colours of their flowers:—Devonia, soft reddish-salmon, with red centre; Esperance, clear heliotrope with white centre; Europe, pure white, edges of flowers bordered with crimson; Fiancee, pure white with lemon centre; Mrs. Kerslake, delicate pink with red centre; Pearl, pure white; Pantheon, light red, streaked and shaded with lavender; Surprise, heliotrope and mauve; and Tapis Blanc, pure white.

NOTES.

Roses that were pruned at the end of July are now developing healthy, vigorous growths. Where these are too dense on the old wood, and are likely to eventually become overcrowded to their injury, the weaker and less promising ones should be carefully and judiciously disbudded. Particular attention should be given to those which are growing towards the centre of the bushes, for if allowed to remain they will partially exclude the necessary light and air. Any superfluous young shoots can be easily and expeditiously removed by a gentle twist between the finger and the thumb. All suckers that develop from the stocks and roots of budded or grafted roses should be promptly and carefully removed, for if allowed to grow they will absorb the sap that ought to go to the growth of the rose bushes and their blooms.

The earliest planted pansies of the season are beginning to freely produce their beautiful flowers, and an occasional watering of weak liquid manure at the roots will result in finely developed blooms. Pansies that are being grown for succession should now be liberally mulched with well-decomposed manure, which will not only benefit the plants, but protect their surface roots from the influence of drying winds and the increasing power of the sun's rays. If there are still any well-rooted seedling pansies in the seed beds or seed-boxes they should be planted in the positions where they are to grow as soon as conditions are favourable.

The showy flowering varieties of the South African daisy, Gerbera jamesoni, may now be planted. The colours of the flowers of the newer varieties include cerise, magenta, maroon, orange-red, pink, white, and yellow. They thrive in a sunny situation in deep, loose, fertile soils. Well-rooted plants that are set out now will soon begin to bloom, and with ordinary attention will continue flowering throughout the warmer months.

FRUIT GARDEN.

Recently planted evergreen and deciduous fruit trees that are tied to stakes should occasionally be inspected, and any ties that are pressing too tightly on the expanding bark should be loosened a little, while those that have become so loose as to allow the wind to blow the trees backwards and forwards should be re-tied. Neglect in this particular may cause serious injury to the young trees. The developing growths should receive attention, and where they are too crowded the weaker and superfluous ones should be carefully removed, the too-exuberant shoots shortened a little, and the remaining ones trained to form a perfect head on each tree. Trees of the citrus family from which the crop has been gathered may now be pruned should they require that attention. A well-pruned tree will admit to all its branches an equal amount of light and air, which are so essential both to health and productivity. If the land on which the trees are growing is lacking in fertility apply with discretion well-decomposed natural manures, or, if available, bush scrapings (leaf mould and decaying vegetation), but take care not to spread these materials too close to the trunks of the trees. Failing these, a commercial fertiliser like bonedust is a suitable stimulant for citrus trees that are annually bearing fruit, but it must be judiciously used. It is a good time of the year to plant passion vines, which thrive in a sunny and sheltered situation, in deep, thoroughly worked, rather light, rich land, but they do well and bear fruit abundantly in naturally drained, friable, fertile soils. The vines should be planted about 15 feet apart, at the base of a trellis, wooden fence, or similar erection, to which their stems should be trained for the necessary support. Where aphis is affecting peach and other stone fruit trees, attention in the way of thoroughly spraying the branches with some reputable insecticide should be given immediately the flower petals fall. Prompt attention should also be given to any fruit trees that are infested with American blight or woolly aphis, for as soon as the warm weather sets in this pest will increase amazingly.

ROYAL ART SOCIETY.

THE SPRING SHOW.

The 39th annual exhibition of the Royal Art Society, of which the private view by invitation takes place to-day, and the formal opening on Monday, will cause the wits to remember the scriptural "forty save one!" Yet, in the long years past, but few of these collections have made us wince, and the one now under review will certainly stand secure in the general favour. This success is all the more fortunate because the clouds of depression due to the declaration of war seem to have rolled away with the retreat of the enemy on the Western front. An interest in art and a coincident desire to purchase local works have made the picture markets of Sydney and Melbourne buoyant. The prosperity of thirty years ago, before the rival societies started their disastrous strife, seems likely to be renewed; and this 39th exhibition may catch the tide of fortune at the flood.

The first of the hits of the year to catch the eye of visitors who follow the catalogue order is J. Muir Auld's "The Lesson," in which a mother instructs the charming little girl who sits at her side dreamily gazing into space. The tender sentiment which inspires the scene, and the effect of the white light which filters through the old-fashioned curtained window, will make this work popular with the public. Mr. Auld's child-studies are especially observant in their sympathy, as will be noted in No. 19 with the finely modelled hands. Mr. W. Lister Lister follows further along the line with his large and beautiful landscape, "A Mute Company of Changeful Clouds." This is a scene near Narrabeen, with the long grasses on the edge of the creek stirred by the breeze, and great grey clouds hanging over the tranquil landscape. The harmonious serenity of the colouring gives character to the whole. "Sunny New South Wales," the title of a coast scene near Newport, wins by the warmth and richness of its tone; and "In the Shadow of the Hill" derives its art value from the transparency of the darkness over the herbage, in contrast with the imposing magnificence of the light falling on the heavily massed clouds. The president strengthens the water-colours with seven expressive contributions.

Mr. James R. Jackson has been happily inspired in his chief work, "Alone," illustrating a recurrent catastrophe due to the war. A young girl in an attitude of overwhelming grief sits in the bare and empty studio with the newspaper in her hand which tells her that its owner has fallen on the battle field. The suggestion of physical collapse, and all the details of the interior, the oval gilt-framed mirror, and the shadow behind the figure, are technically expert, and if it be contended that too much space is unoccupied there may be an answer in the emphasis of loneliness it affords. This clever young artist may be said in general terms to succeed in all his harbour subjects, in which, as in his large canvas, "The Long Summer Days," he conveys the idea of holiday freedom which gives individuality to Sydney as a city. Mr. J. S. Watkins's principal work is "The Dilettante," in which two well-dressed girls examine objets d'art disposed upon the glistening surface of a table. The white gown of the more important figure is admirably painted, and generally the treatment shows style. "The Totem," described as a caprice in rose, gold, and green, presents a feast of luscious colour. His large portrait of the late Mrs. George Black is firmly treated, and the melancholy expression of the eyes adds to its pathetic interest.

Mr. A. Dattilo-Rubbo's most attractive effort is "Pea Gathering, Kurrajong Heights," in which, besides the charm of a well-handled scene boasting the true "plein air" effect, is an excellent perspective in the allocation of the figures. The Manly headland, with the purple shadows and yellow gleams on the face of the cliff, is experimental in treatment, but there is a true and captivating effect in the shimmering blue sea below. This artist is strongly represented in the black-and-white (No. 268). Mr. Henry Crisp's group of pictures is felicitously dominated by his portrait-subject "Valma," due to the large-eyed gaze of a sincere little Red Cross worker. Mr. A. Marriott Woodhouse sends in some large and ambitious canvases, notably "The Spinner," but there he seems to have fallen back to his old-time manner of too high and "staring" a tone. Where he avoids this, as in "Red Lights," in which the darkly shadowed spaces beyond the glow of the crimson-shaded candles are cleverly handled, he is seen to advantage.

Mr. Will Ashton (Adelaide) decidedly strengthens the collection with his scenes in France, England, and Scotland. The Art Gallery trustees have purchased for 150 guineas his painting of "Pont Philippe IV." (exhibited in the Paris Salon). This view of the fine old bridge and the street beside the Seine is handled with a sure eye for picturesqueness of detail, and the foreign charm of "gay fantastic Paris" on its more prosy side has been skilfully suggested. This artist's touch is apt to be hard, more especially in his snow scenes. Mr. Lawson Balfour presents among other things a delightful study of girlhood in bud, entitled "A Grey Symphony." Mr. R. S. Wakelin is below his usual form. The drawing of the hands in his No. 95, "Nude," is grotesque. "Boatsheds" is a more than dubious proposition. Mr. T. Dean's wide-spread fields of stubble, with men at work building the distant rick ("Yerong Creek"), will be admired for a little dramatic touch in the suggestion of stormful sky which may mar such useful labour.

Mr. Joseph Wolinski, after long absence in America, has returned "bearing his sheaves with him," and thus adds a valued note of new interest to the exhibition. He is a strong and clever painter, with a vein of poetry shown in "St. Paul's," the great dome soaring in all its majesty above the mist-laden river with those dreadfully prosaic piles in the foreground; and again apparent in "Springtime, New Rochelle." The vernal tints of the foliage that rises towards the sunshine are brightly hopeful and inspiring; and the palette-knife is skilfully used in accentuating the effect. "Girl Reading," with the admirable drawing of the hands, is the most charming of the portraits. Mr. Alfred Coffey's large landscapes include "Evening, Terrigal," the rose and gold of the sky beautifully reflected in the opalescent tints of the shallow water rippling on the beach. This artist's portrait-study, "Thoughtful and Fair" (pastel), has been acquired by the trustees, and will be much admired. It possesses somewhat the same kind of charm as his "Serious Thoughts," which they purchased last year. Gordon Lyall Trindall's "Hauling the Net," with the well-wrought figures and sincere flesh-tones of the four strong and jovial fishers, who pull in the ropes, is splendidly vivid in its sense of movement.

Charles E. S. Tindall's watercolour, "A Whip for Germany, the Launch of H.M.A.S. Adelaide," depicts with breezy animation an historic episode in our war annals, and the title stirs the blood. The success achieved will be commemorated as an addition to the natural collection. J. W. Tristram's "Moonrise" shows a Hilder-like ethereal charm; Sydney's old friend, A. J. Daplyn sends in sympathetic work from France and England; and the black and white sculpture, and miniature divisions will repay inspection.

INTERSTATE COMMISSION.

The Interstate Commission, which is conducting an investigation as to prices, will resume its Sydney sittings at the Board Room, 7th floor, Commonwealth Bank-building, at 10.30 on Monday morning. The inquiry will be opened by Mr. A. B. Piddington, K.C., Chief Interstate Commissioner, and the subjects to be dealt with are vegetables, fruit, and house rent. The first witnesses to be called will be witnesses as to the prices of vegetables and fruit, and associations and persons desiring to tender evidence or to nominate representatives should communicate with the secretary of the commission at the above address.

"DIGGER."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—The word "digger" is one which bids fair to rival "camouflage" as the best-known soldier-term in the dictionary of household words. It is, of course, slang, like "cobber," etc. I wonder if you know how the word originated. In a certain unit of Australian Engineers (commonly known as sappers) in France was a chap named Martin. He was a hard enough case, and as brave as the next man, but he had an abnormal horror of Boche air raids. This led him, whenever the unit took over billets within 10 miles of the "line," to dig himself in. He preferred to risk a few tons of earth, sandbags, old bricks, tree trunks, etc., burying him, than to trust to the mud walls of a French billet to stop the stray pieces of bomb which fly about on these memorable occasions. Therefore, he soon had the sobriquet of "Digger Martin."

The name got more common, till the sappers as a bunch were known to the A.I.F. as "the diggers," because this branch of the army spends most of its time underground. Then it spread right over the A.I.F., till any man wearing a slouch hat was a "digger" if you didn't know his name. Now it is in Australia, after its 12 months or so of wandering, and when you read in the daily papers of the glorious actions of the "diggers," you will know that the allusion is to that noblest of fighting forces, our Australian Imperial Force.

I am, etc., ONE O' THE DIGGERS.

CURRENT LITERATURE.

LETTERS TO THE PEOPLE OF INDIA.

In approaching the problem of the mutual relations of the self-governing peoples in the Empire, Mr. Lionel Curtis originally imagined that India might be left out of immediate consideration. But before long he came to a different conclusion, and late in 1916 went to India to study local opinion on the spot. He was there when the famous pronouncement of August 20, 1917, guaranteed "the progressive realisation of responsible government in India," and when, in pursuance of the pronouncement, Mr. Montagu visited India to discuss with the leaders of Indian thought how best this could be accomplished. There was a good deal of disagreement between various schools of opinion, and at last Mr. Curtis was invited to enunciate a set of principles which would serve as a common ground for deliberation, and to formulate proposals for submission to the Secretary of State, to which both Europeans and Indians would subscribe. "Letters to the People of India" describes how he set about his task, and embodies its constructive results.

This book must not be confused with one with a somewhat similar title published last year. The latter was concerned with the relations of India to the rest of the Empire; in this Mr. Curtis considers solely the questions raised by responsible government in India. Taking the pronouncement of August 20th as his text, he formulated 12 axioms necessary to its practical application. These were accepted by a hundred and fifty men, who represented every class and interest, every shade of political thought; men who differed in race, colour and speech, in everything in fact, save the desire to do the best for India and the right thing by India. In the "Letters" Mr. Curtis analyses, expands, and explains these 12 axioms, to which, it is interesting to note, the recent proposals of the Imperial Parliament have substantially given effect.

Mr. Curtis believes that the pronouncement of August 20, 1917, marked a decision second only in gravity to those by which the British nation began and will end the war. Its moral significance was immediate and far-reaching: it enhanced the prestige of Britain not only in India but beyond. Britain had often spoken of her trusteeship in India; here was the proof that the word was no empty one: not only did it show the sincerity of the statement that Britain was only governing India until India was ready to govern herself, but it gave the assurance that the time was at hand. A few irreconcilables whispered that this declaration of policy was wrung from England by fear. This is Mr. Curtis's comment: "Would Indians who have said such things in Calcutta repeat them within the sound of guns to those who stand in the presence of death, and to whom the word 'fear' cannot be named? By such words they dishonour not England but themselves." The pronouncement was generally welcomed save by the extremists of either side, who saw in it mutually destructive objections. Each thought that it gave the other too much power. Yet this momentous declaration was made in a singularly informal way: it was merely an answer to a question asked in the House. For several reasons Mr. Curtis would have preferred a more ceremonial method to have been adopted; and he continually reminds the reader that the informality of the declaration must not be allowed to stand as an excuse for any delay or half-heartedness in carrying out its promise. He need have had no fears; hardly had his book been published when the promise was redeemed.

Various chapters deal with such matters as finance, executive functions, and legislative powers, the possible rearrangement of internal boundaries which responsible government may require, principles of representation and franchise. For the latter, Mr. Curtis would suggest a certain qualification, depending on education or the cultivation (not the ownership) of a certain area of land. He is fully alive to the various problems involved in the grant of responsible government to India, but he believes that the difficulties should be tackled and not avoided. Their existence does not justify either Britain or India in shirking the task. This is a point which he enforces again and again with reiterated emphasis. Some people say: "Wait a little until India has been educated up to her new responsibilities," but India must win her own salvation by practical experience. She will probably make mistakes, but only by grappling with the business can she hope to succeed. "To put the matter in a nutshell," says Mr. Curtis, "the view that an improvement and extension of education is the key to the political problems of India is a dangerous half-truth. It is but a fragment of the true key, and if tried alone will break with the results inevitable when a lock is jammed by a broken key." And again "education" of itself will not avail to prepare Indians for responsible government. On the contrary, it will prove to be a positive mischief unless accompanied by a definite instalment of political responsibility. It is in the workshop of actual experience alone that electorates will acquire the art of self-government, however highly educated they may be." (Macmillan.)

ALSACE.

M. Benjamin Vallotton is a Swiss novelist who hails from a French canton and whose original Francophile sympathies have been fortified by the war. In "The Heart of Alsace" he shows us something of the bitter antagonism of the lost provinces to German rule and the longing which they cherish, secretly but ardently, to be reunited with France. It has sometimes been said that in the course of almost fifty years Alsace-Lorraine has become Germanised; that the Alsatians are reconciled to their fate, and would not welcome a transfer of allegiance. M. Vallotton utterly repudiates the idea, although he admits that there are certain superficial features of Alsatian life which might seem to lend colour to it. The young Swiss who comes as tutor to the sons of an Alsatian manufacturer at first is surprised at the apparent contentment of everyone. He has heard much of the unhappiness of Alsace, but it does not seem to exist. Everyone appears comfortable and prosperous in their rich fields and thriving little industrial towns; the children learn to sing German patriotic airs with enthusiasm; the young men go off to their military service in Germany with every sign of zeal and none of distaste. The whole-hearted merriment with which the people celebrate their festivals does not suggest a sullen, downtrodden and despairing folk. Yet Reymond discovers that this contentment and gaiety are superficial. The Alsatian does not wear his heart on his sleeve—the German policeman sees to that—but he has a long memory. French patriotic airs are forbidden, but the children know them better than the German ones they sing so lustily. The young conscripts swagger about in their German uniforms, but they are not Germanised. Their surrender may strike the outsider as lacking in spirit, but what are they to do? "There are only three courses open to us," says one of them. "We may go for good and give up our country; we may break our rifles and rot in prison; we may submit and put on the spiked helmets. I say submit—I do not say accept;" and another—"To protest every day for forty years is beyond the strength of man. There is no resistance to force. But none know what is going on beneath the surface. The Alsatian is tenacious." And so when men meet in private they wear the forbidden tricolour rosette, they bring from secret places medals and trophies of French victories, at other times, hidden from the vigilant eye of the German inspector. They don the uniforms of their old French regiments; they teach their children that they are already French in race, spirit, and culture, and that they ever look forward to the day when they are again French in name as well. M. Vallotton endeavours to be fair to the Germans; their rule is just, if harsh; they have been excellent administrators, and have made Alsace-Lorraine prosperous materially; but man cannot live by bread alone, and the German rule lacks something without which the provinces will never be content.

The war, which enters into the latter part of the book, has brought to Alsace and Lorraine peculiar and poignant tragedies. Those who to evade service under the Germans went to France, knowing that they exiled themselves from their own homes, have now their reward. They are fighting with the French armies. But those who "submitted" are now caught in the web of fate, and are compelled to choose between death and fighting the deliverers of their country. This is what happens to some of the group of lads whom M. Vallotton describes. Eager, ardent patriots, dreaming of the emancipation of Alsace, are killed in Poland fighting under the German flag. The book ends with a vivid account of the welcome which Mulhause gave the French forces during the brief period in 1914 when they occupied the town. For this welcome, after the French had retreated, terms of imprisonment were inflicted on the citizens, amounting to 3000 years! M. Vallotton reminds us that already there is a corner of Alsace where the French flag waves; for the rest the Alsatians look at their own red and white flag of the province. "When it floats against the blue of the sky," they say, "we get the colour we miss." (Heinemann.)

THE AIR SERVICE.

Already the air services have produced a type of their own, which differs as much from their brethren in other services as does the racehorse from the cavalry charger and the stout but deserving draught horse. Each for his own job. The airman is young because his work is work for unimpaired nerves: he must be nervous and highly strung without being nervy. He often dies young because of the risks of his service. The bullet which on earth would mean a trifling injury may send him hurtling through space to his death. The traditions of the air services are already immortal, and none has handed on the torch more brilliantly than Captain Ball, V.C., D.S.O., whose brief biography has been written by Mr. W. A. Briscoe and Mr. H. R. Stannard.

Captain Ball was one of those gallant boys to whom war brought a crowded, glorious life. He was 18 when the war broke out. He enlisted at once in an infantry regiment, and rose to the rank of sergeant. He had himself transferred to a cyclists' corps, in the hope of getting sooner to the front, and then, almost accidentally, joined a flying school. He had always been something of a mechanician, but at first his teachers did not find him a very exceptional pupil. He was of the right temperament, build, height, and age for a flyer, but he gave little promise of the knack that was soon to make him the foremost fighting flier of Britain. This was the faculty that can only be compared with the "hands" of a first-class horse-master. Ball soon displayed a delicate touch, an ability to get the most out of machines, an instinct for flying that were quickly to make his name famous all over the world. He went to France when the Allied air services were having rather a hard row to hoe. They were doing excellent work in reconnaissance and observation, but they had no fighting machine which was able to protect the scouts from the lightning swoops of the Fokkers. Ball served his apprenticeship in the more "pedestrian" tasks of the airman, and then became a hawk before whom the formidable Fokkers fled like pigeons. He engaged in a hundred and fifty pitched battles in the upper air; the full number of his quarries brought to earth is not known. "His record includes 41 absolutely certain successes, 10 moral certainties, and a larger number of probabilities." The value of his work is not to be measured by his kills. The British aerial offensive in which he played so distinguished a part made possible the advances on the Somme and in Northern Flanders; he and his colleagues could be relied on to keep the sky clear of German observers. Captain Ball's technique seems to have been an extraordinary combination of daring and prudence. One is reminded of Chesterfield's advice to his son to take a great deal of care in dressing, but afterwards to forget that he was dressed. Ball would spend hours in correcting tiny faults in his machine, but when he was flying he would forget catastrophical weaknesses. He was a master of his art; he would engage half a dozen enemy craft single-handed, and out-manoeuvre them with lethal effect; the survivors would scurry home. He remained a simple, kindly boy. He was given the opportunity to stay in England to train budding airmen, but he thought it his duty to return to his post. His letters from the front, of which many are printed, always reveal the clean, chivalrous warrior, who honours a foe who fights cleanly. Captain Ball was no fire-eater, even though he received a dozen military decorations. In the intervals of killing Germans he cultivated his little garden, and his letters to his home are as much concerned with the progress of his sweet peas and turnips as with his aerial victories. He was at last killed in a battle in which he alone had towards the end to fight Richthofen, the German "ace," supported by a squadrilla. The Germans, to their credit be it said, went to some pains to bury him with full military honours, and to notify the British of his fate. (Jenkins.)

NEW NOVELS.

Mr. J. J. Bell writes alternately studies in pawky Scots humour and tales of dashing adventure on the high seas. "Atlantic Gold," his latest book, belongs to the latter class. His hero is cruising in a motor boat off the Hebrides when the engine breaks down, and he is left to the mercy of wind and waves which finally drive him ashore on a tiny island, the veritable western outpost of Europe. Here he finds a scientist and his daughter, who entertain him sumptuously; Arcus indeed wonders at so much luxury on an Atlantic rock; but it is explained, when he learns that Dr. Helmsdale has perfected a process for extracting gold out of sea water, and that here is his factory. Helmsdale is a man of parts; not only has he discovered the philosopher's stone, but he is an expert in colour photography. It comes as rather a shock to Arcus when an accident lets the cat out of the bag, and reveals to him that Helmsdale's real business is the forgery of scrip and bonds, while the gold extraction plant is merely a blind. The news is the more disconcerting because Arcus is in love with the daughter, and because his greatest friend has suffered most from the forgeries. Helmsdale is laid by the heels half way through the story, but Mr. Bell does not allow our interest to wane on that account. A large amount of bullion has been left on the island, and the attempt of the gang of unscrupulous rogues formerly in Helmsdale's employ to get this, forms one part of the plot. Arcus's chequered wooing is another, and the intrigue of an artful and selfish little minx to capture him for herself, yet a third. It is a very readable yarn, with plenty of incident and sufficient sentiment to satisfy those who regard that element as indispensable. (Hodder and Stoughton.)

In "The Gay Life" Mr. Keble Howard describes the progress of a small cockney girl who goes on the stage to supplement the family income, gets a job in a third-rate touring company, reveals a genius for mimicry, and finally, after various vicissitudes, becomes a music hall star of the first magnitude and lustre. The plot is of the slightest; what there is of it centres round a love affair between Jilly and a young American equilibrist, in which the pair, displaying none of their wonted shrewdness, allow themselves, somewhat unnecessarily, to be the victims of a game of cross purposes. But the chief interest lies in the story of Jilly's career and the study of her character. She is a type that is often to be found in the London "Halls," and is as popular off the stage as on. Energetic and clever, utterly free from snobbery, and affection, always ready to remember and to help an old pal, Jilly is the idol of all who know her. She may not have much refinement, and there are certain difficulties in the King's English which she can never overcome, but she has a heart of gold and a gift of repartee that can discomfit the superior beings who try to score off her. Most of the characters in the book share her virtues if not her talents. They are mainly actors and actresses, kindly casual folk, ready to bestow their last shilling upon a more needy friend and quite unconcerned about the problem of their own next meal. Mr. Keble Howard gives a pleasant picture of one side of "the profession"—not that which plays in fashionable theatres and frequents fashionable assemblies, but the more Bohemian class which tours small towns, with inferior companies, maintains the Crummles tradition unimpaired, and makes up for all its deficiencies, esthetic and ethical, by a very real kindliness and a practical generosity to anyone down on his luck. (Bodley Head.)

MUSIC AND DRAMA.

Since the cable messages have informed us that Claude Debussy has withdrawn into the silence and the twilight of that dark avenue which leads "to light secure, and limitless horizons clear to view," the leading musicians and critics of Europe have been trying to assess the permanent value of his influence upon the art he illuminated. Many obituary notices regard his life's work as a failure, because his art-forms were small, and his works few in number. Here in Australia they seem fewer still because more than half of them have failed to reach us. One of the most brilliant admirers of his music is Rosa Newmarch, chiefly famous as an authority on the Russian School of Music. She places "Pelleas et Melisande" very high amongst the great compositions of the century. The critic may be right from a somewhat detached and poetical standpoint, the vein in which she writes. But one cannot help reflecting that this opera upon Maeterlinck's crepuscular, shadowland drama in a minor key has been but seldom performed since its creation in 1902. The writer seems to attribute this to the war, remarking that "the gentle, dolorous fatalism reflected in 'Pelleas et Melisande' has lost its meaning for a world divided in a conflict, the issues of which grow each day clearer and more concrete." "There is no indefinite fatalism floating in the air at the present moment," she concludes. This is true enough, but was not the fatalism in question at all times the mere cult of a negligible minority? Beautifully expressed in Maeterlinck's poetry, it made passing appeal to thousands whose cheerful view of life enabled them for an idle hour to sympathise with the poet in the luxury of woe—but no more. Then came Debussy's music to it, which was in the same way admired for its absolute expression, its perfect embodiment of the dreamland in which those shadows moved. Time will show whether the opera will live. If it does, then much else of Debussy's music will survive as well. Whatever happens, without going as far as Rosa Newmarch, one may regard Debussy as great in the independence of his methods, and the purity of his ideals. This English writer declares that he struck one of the first blows in a war of spiritual emancipation from Wagner at a time when half the programme-space in the world was usurped by Wagner and his imitators. "At the end of the nineteenth century," she remarks, "Russia alone offered any organised opposition to this formidable invasion." There may be something in this, but the gorgeous Russian national school of opera is in the opinion of most people nearer to all the operatic music of all the nations for two centuries past than it is to the indefinite Debussy. However, this brilliant writer pens a sentence beautiful in its truth in the words "in France Cesar Franck, neglected and misunderstood, was working with the quiet wisdom of the meek-hearted to infuse new beauty into the old conventional forms." Cesar Franck is, indeed, a great composer.

The writer of "A Woman's Letter," continuing her visits to the leading London theatres during June, remarks:—Next on my list comes the new production at The Haymarket, "Marmaduke," by Ernest Denny. This play replaces "Uncle Anyhow," of which I wrote only a few weeks ago. Its career was early cut short, and this play has been put on instead. "Marmaduke" is a three-act farcical comedy. It is hardly the stuff suitable to the Haymarket. But in war time managers have no great choice of goods. A laugh is what is striven for, and in "Marmaduke" there was at least plenty of that. Mr. Dennis Eadie had a double part to play. But the central idea of it was a clever one. There are two Richmonds in the field. The nicer one turns out to be the son of a Peer, who has lost his memory through shock. The lady cousin of the real Marmaduke tries to identify him at the hospital, and brings him home to her aunt's house so as to have him there as a kind of hostage while a billet is being found for the wastrel son of the house. The mother of the missing man is deceived, and kisses the foundling. He turns out to be as charming a young fellow as Mr. Dennis Eadie can play him. He has no wish to re-establish his memory at all. "If you only knew how bothered the chaps in the hospital were with their memories of their pasts!" He settles down comfortably, and even beards a tempestuous millionaires, and almost agrees to go out to the colonies with him and manage something large. Then the real Marmaduke appears, also played by Mr. Eadie, very sodden and unpleasant with drink. And at last the identities of the two men are established. The drunkard goes off while under the influence of an overdose of chloral to Australia with his millionaire stepfather. Poor Australia. The other man weds the Irish girl, beautifully played by Miss Mary O'Farrell. She was a joy to listen to, so bright, so vivacious, and the mother played by Miss Mary Jerrold added another delightful portrait to her gallery of impersonations. As a matter of fact, Marmaduke should have been a one-act play. The material is thin for three acts, and the last one is a very lame one.

The question of a successor to Dr. Muck, the interned conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, has been narrowed down by the Board of Trustees to a choice between Sir Henry J. Wood and Signor Arturo Toscanini, with the chances favouring the Queen's Hall Orchestra director. Sir Henry is said to be willing to accept "the world-prize of the musical profession," but at present his many contracts stand in the way, and the Boston Orchestra cannot be kept waiting many weeks. Toscanini, the great conductor at La Scala, is quite at home in America, through frequent engagements at the Metropolitan Opera House. All the other considered candidates were gradually eliminated, Ossip Gabrilowitsch withdrawing voluntarily in favour of the post as head of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra. Meanwhile, in place of German players, the Boston band has engaged five first-rate French artists. They retain their principal 'cello for 14 years past, Alwin Schroeder, as a naturalised American citizen throughout that period.

After a protracted period of long runs, the Melbourne theatres have started upon the inevitable career of change, beginning at the King's Theatre, where the J. and N. Tait Company has now produced "The Invisible Foe." This is a play by Walter Hackett, which H. B. Irving staged in London at the Savoy last year. As Emelie Polini plays the central character of Helen, it is only fit and proper that the plot should take a weird, scientific turn, and in point of fact it is founded on a communication from "the land beyond," made by the defunct Richard Bransby (Harmon Lee). This old merchant thinks that his soldier-nephew has robbed him, but discovers that Stephen is at fault. He forces a signed confession from the culprit, carelessly slips in into a volume in his library, and—dies. The girl loves the soldier, but the villain (Cyril Mackay) tries to subdue her to himself in the lover's absence. He is foiled by the spirit-communication which directs the distracted young woman to the all-important book, after which Stephen is "defeated horse and foot." The new play was cordially received.

"Katinka" has given the Royal Comic Opera Company an extraordinary run of 13 weeks, and as two matinees a week were the frequent rule, the musical comedy must have reached its century. Next Saturday, "Oh, Oh, Delphine," will be performed for the first time by the Royal Comic Opera Company, under George A. Highland, who also produced it in New York, and at the London Shaftesbury Theatre. The piece is based on a French play, "The Villa Primrose," by M. M. Georges Berr and Marcel Guillemand. Florence Young, Phyllis Amory, Olive Godwin, and Gladys Moncrieff (leading character), Messrs. Phil. Smith, John Ford, Reginald Roberts, and other artists, will be in the cast. Mr. George Tallis writes from New York to say that he has secured the Australasian rights in New York of D. W. Griffiths' new film masterpiece, "Hearts of the World." The J. C. Williamson director is absolutely confident of its future success.

I couldn't restrain a smile; things were panning out so well; and before I replied the door was opened gently and the loveliest child I [illegible] came in. She was a delicate-featured, golden-haired youngster of about eleven—the replica in miniature of the Countess—with big sea-blue eyes which fastened on me shyly as she stood hesitating at the door.

"What is it, Lottchen?" cried Rosa sharply. "Come in and don't stand fiddling with the door handle in that stupid fashion. This is Cousin Johann, and you needn't stand staring at him as if he would eat you."

My heart went out to the kid instantly. "How do you do, Lottchen?" I said; and she came up, put her little hand into mine and left it there, as she held up her lovely face to be kissed, and then nestled close to me trustfully.

Rosa laughed. "That's a new thing for Lottchen, I can tell you; she hates men as a rule."

"You won't hate me, Lottchen, will you?" I said, smoothing her wondrous hair. She shook her head and smiled up at me, and then laid her face against my shoulder.

"Don't worry, Johann. He's got a bad face-ache."

"Oh, I'm sorry. Am I hurting you?" and the great blue eyes were full of sympathy, just as her mother's had been the previous night.

"Not a bit, my dear."

"Well, you must run away now, child, you'll see plenty of Johann. What is it you want?"

"Miss Caldicott sent me to see if you're coming out with us as usual."

The name seemed to strike me in the face, and a sharp cry of amazement was out before I could check it. It was lucky that Rosa had reminded me of my forgotten face-ache, and I invented a violent paroxysm of pain, whipped out my handkerchief and hid my face in it, to cover up my confusion.

Was it possible that Nessa and I were in the same house, or had I gone clean out of my senses?

CHAPTER IV.

NESSA.

It was some time before I allowed myself to recover from the little attack, and felt equal to the task of resuming the conversation with Rosa. If the Miss Caldicott the child had mentioned was really Nessa—and it was difficult to think there would be two girls of that name shut up in Berlin at the same time—it was just the biggest stroke of luck I had ever had in my life.

Indeed, all the luck seemed to be coming my way: but I should have to be careful how I played the magnificent cards fate had placed in my hand. I must certainly have Rosa on my side; and that could probably be done by freeing her from the engagement. It couldn't be done at once, however; not until I had pretended to take time to consider.

I must also find out the relations between Rosa and Nessa; and must, if possible, manage not to have any one present when Nessa and I met for the first time. Not the easiest of jobs, probably; although my peculiar footing in the house might enable me to find a means. The risk was, of course, that in her amazement Nessa might give everything away.

"That was a sharp spasm, and no mistake," I said when I lowered the handkerchief at last.

"Was it real, or just shamming to make us pity you?" asked Rosa suspiciously. "You were always good at shamming, you know."

"Was I? Oh, well, I'm better, so it doesn't much matter."

"Did Lottchen hurt you, then? She's apt to be clumsy."

"She's rather a pretty child and doesn't look clumsy."

"She's the dearest little thing in the world, but it doesn't do to make too much of her. Every one spoils her because she's so pretty and looks so fragile. She isn't really delicate, and can be no end of a romp, and is quite able to take her own part. She wants to go to school, and she'd have gone before if it hadn't been for the war and Nessa being here as her governess. You never saw anything like the way she loves Nessa."

I wasn't caught napping this time. "Nessa? And who's Nessa?" I asked with a frown of perplexity.

"Nessa Caldicott, an English girl who ——"

"An English girl here, in this house, at such a time!" I exclaimed lost in amazement.

"Yes, of course; in this house; and at such a time," she repeated, imitating my manner. "Have you any objection?"

"Of course not; but——" and I gestured to suggest anything.

"I wanted to talk to you about her. That's the one reason why I wasn't altogether sorry to hear you were in the Secret Service;" and then she told me that she and Nessa had been at school together, and how, when she found Nessa had had to leave her friends and could not get permission to go home to England, she had brought her home as Lottchen's governess. "She was in awful trouble, of course, and mother hated the idea of her coming to us; but I got my own way. That's about two months ago, and ever since we've been doing all we can to get her sent home."

This sent Rosa up many hundreds per cent. in my estimation. "I think it was awfully good of you; but why can't she go home?"

The question seemed to trouble her considerably. "If I tell you all about it, will you help us?"

"I don't suppose I can do anything, but I'll try."

"You may be able to find out the truth; and that will help, for we should know how to get to work. I think I know it, though, and I believe it's all the fault of a man who pesters her incessantly. He's a horrid beast, named Count von Erstein," and she told me he was a wealthy Jew who had great influence with the Government; had tried and was still trying to get Nessa denounced as a spy and sent to one of the concentration camps; dogged her everywhere and set spies to watch her; had spread all manner of lying reports about her; and was intriguing in every possible way against her for his own infamous ends.

My blood boiled as I listened to all this, but I had to smother my rage sufficiently to assume just a conventional amount of indignation in keeping with Lassen's character. "An ugly story," I muttered.

"It doesn't seem to have roused you very much," she replied, her eyes flashing indignantly. "I should have thought it would have fired the blood of any ordinary man. It makes me feel that I could kill him; but then I'm only a woman."

It was clear that my manner was Lassenly enough, so I let it pass. "I'm curious to see the man."

"If he had his deserts you'd see him in prison, but he's probably with Nessa and Lottchen now. He always hangs about near the house at this time, when they go for their walk. That was the meaning of the child's coming in just now. I generally go with them. Do you feel well enough to come out and see?"

After a little sham hesitation I agreed, and she went off to get ready, leaving me able to work off some of my rage alone. It was in all truth an ugly story, and, what was worse, threatened to make it very difficult to get Nessa away. No doubt it was abominally stupid of me, but until that moment I had never considered the practical means of getting her out of Berlin.

I had rushed off with the idea of finding out the truth about her in order to relieve her mother's anxiety, and somewhat at the back of my head was the idea that Jimmy's friend at the American Embassy would help me to do the rest.

But that was knocked on the head if this beast of a Jew had sufficient influence with his Government to block the way. And that he had considerable influence Rosa's story left no doubt. She certainly could not get away openly, without permission from the authorities and a passport and all the rest of it, and it looked like a thousand to one chance against any such things being forthcoming.

That did not exhaust the resources of civilisation, however, as the politicians are fond of saying, and at the worst we could try and make a bolt of it together, without any papers if necessary, but preferably with some in false names. So far as I was concerned, I was ready to tramp it to the frontier on foot; but that wouldn't do for Nessa.

At any rate, we must get her out of Berlin and away from this von Erstein's persecution. Nessa could gabble German quite as freely as I could; and once away from the capital, supplied with plenty of money, as I was fortunately, we could try our luck and trust to fate.

FOUR YEARS OF WAR.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I quite endorse the remarks of G. J. Baker in your columns of the 30th inst. re the scarcity of news relating to our boys in Palestine and Mesopotamia, and, with others who have sons there, have often wondered why this is so.

We are aware that the Anzac Mounted Division, Light Horse, and Camel Corps, etc., have distinguished themselves on more than one occasion. At the same time the relatives would like a little more publicity given as to their doings, etc., especially so in view of the fact that it is difficult at times for the boys to write home. I am, etc.,

On October 16 a garden fete is to be held in the grounds of Eynesbury, Edgecliff, kindly lent by Lady Gould, to assist the funds for the 4th and 56th Battalions and the 1st Machine Gun Comforts Funds. Lady Davidson will open the fete.

An appeal is being made by Miss Dorothea Mackellar for household articles—such as china, pictures, or bric-a-brac of any description—which will be sold in aid of "Jack's Day." The gift-sale will be held from the 21st to the 25th October. The organising committee is presided over by Lady MacCormick; Miss Janet Knox and Mrs. K. Austin are respectively its hon. secretary and hon. treasurer. All gifts may be left at Messrs. Beard, Watson's, and should be labelled "gift sale for Jack's Day," and addressed to Mr. Charles Bartholomew.

Under the auspices of the Soldiers' Entertainments, the following were arranged by Mrs. George Earp for fortnight ending August 31:—Mr. Will James, the Whips, the Hardcastle Family, the Cheer-oh Girls, Messrs. Guy Martin and Tod Calloway, and Mr. A. E. Stewart, Liverpool Camp. The Scarlet Follies entertained the officers and men of the Wireless School, Moore Park, on Wednesday, 21st inst. Miss Dobson Prince gave a concert to the City Guard, of Hyde Park Recruiting Depot on Friday, 23rd inst, and Messrs. Guy Martin and Tod Calloway gave a performance at the Military Ward, Coast Hospital. On Friday, 30th inst, Mr. Will James took a concert party to the Recruiting Depot, Hyde Park, and on Saturday the Scarlet Follies will entertain the guard of Holdsworthy Concentration Camp. In addition to these concerts pictures were shown twice during the week.

To celebrate the 84th birthday of their mother, Mrs. Wilshire, several members of her family gave an afternoon "at home" at their residence, The Shell Museum, Cronulla, on August 28. Among those present, besides the members of the family, which includes 14 children, 13 grandchildren, and two great grandchildren, were Mesdames White, Beetson, Sproule, Cayley, Turner-Robinson, Lamb, and Sapsford.

At the offices of Messrs. George Wills and Co., Ltd., 60 York-street, on Wednesday, Mr. Ernest Teague was made the recipient of a wedding present of a case of electroplate fish and fruit knives and forks, an electroplate tea set and butter dish, gifts from the office staff, and a substantial cheque from members of the firm.

As a result of the grand opera nights given by the students of Nelson Illingworth, £251 has been cleared, and has been devoted to the Y.M.C.A. War Fund, and the "Soldiers' Welcome" Fund.

A concert, organised by Miss Blee, was held at Randwick last Wednesday night. Among those who assisted were Madame Baker and pupils, Miss Maher, pupils of Miss Scully, and Prof. Bolot, F.A.R. During the evening cigars, cigarettes, and sweets were served to the boys.

WEDDINGS.

A wedding was solemnised at St. James' Church on Monday night between Moya, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Grainger, Ginerol, Gunnedah, and Harold, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter M'Intosh, Sydney. The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a gown of white silk tulle over white satin, and carried a shower bouquet of daffodils and tinted maiden-hair fern, tied with streamers of pale and deep gold tulle and satin ribbon. Miss M. Grainger, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, and wore a gown of maize-coloured georgette, with a short veil of tulle, arranged in a mop-cap fashion, with a filet of gold tissue. Her Bouquet was of violets and pale hyacinths, and was tied with tulle of the same shades. Mr. Rupert Harper was best man. After the ceremony a reception was held at the Wentworth Hotel.

A military wedding was celebrated at All Saints' Church Liverpool, on July 31, when Lieutenant B. E. Alderson was married to Miss Lilian Paine, Liverpool. The Rev. Father Walsh officiated. The bride wore a white crepe de Chine and georgette frock, and her veil was arranged over a coronet of orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet, which, with a diamond brooch, was a gift of the bridegroom. The bridesmaids were Miss P. Paine, sister of the bride, and Miss M. Alderson, sister of the bridegroom. Warrant-officer M'Auliffe acted as best man.

A wedding was celebrated at St. James' Church, King-street, on August 10, when Private F. V. C. Gracie, A.A.M.C., A.I.F., son of Mr. Wm. James Gracie, of Christchurch, N.Z., was married to Miss Muriel Every, youngest daughter of Mr. John Every, of Coogee, and late of Glen Innes. The bride, who was given away by her brother, Mr. James Every, wore a cream gabardine costume, and carried a bouquet. The bridesmaid, Miss Myrtle Forwood, wore a frock of white Brussels net, with touches of pink, and large black hat, relieved with pink, and carried a posy of violets and maidenhair fern. Mr. Leo R. Lewin acted as best man. The bride and bridegroom left for the South Coast. The bride travelled in a green gabardine coat frock, and hat to match.

FROM NEAR AND FAR.

Owing to lack of financial support the Australian Society for the Protection of Children has adjourned for six months. Mr. John Hackett, late secretary of the association, has been succeeded by Mr. C. M. Cunningham, 6 Lincoln-street, North Sydney, to whom all communications should be adressed.

Mrs. A. E. V. Richardson, the wife of the Victorian Agricultural Superintendent, has been scoring a success with one of her songs in America, and is now on a visit to Sydney in connection with her "March Song of the Allies," which it is probable that Elsy Treweek will sing to-night at the final Town Hall popular concert. During her recent visit to Washington the traveller, whose compositions are signed "Lilian Richardson," addressed the Amalgamated Clubs of that great capital on the subject of "Australia and the War," and at the New Era League, San Francisco, she further roused a great gathering of women to a knowledge of the widespread activities on this side in the interests of the Allied cause.

The 1st and 53rd Battalion Comforts Fund will have a stall on "Homes Day" in Martin-place, facing George-street, and friends are asked to send gifts to the depot at Eastway's, 330 George-street. The committee are desirous of drawing the Tahmoor land raffle, and wish all outstanding tickets, butts, and money to be returned as soon as possible.

NATIONAL COUNCIL OF WOMEN.

The monthly meeting of the National Council of Women was held in the B.M.A. Hall, Elizabeth-street, on Thursday afternoon. Lady M'Millan presided. The chief subject under discussion was the advisability or otherwise of total prohibition for the period of the war. Miss Sutherland read an analysis of the report of the select committee appointed to inquire into the effect of intoxicating liquor upon soldiers, and gave interesting statistics concerning the number of men, in various professions, who had declared themselves in favour of prohibition. The Rev. R. B. S. Hammond also gave an address, and dealt chiefly with the results of prohibition in Canada.

A report of the deputation that waited upon Mr. Hall asking for equal rights for women was read by Miss Rose Scott.

WOMEN'S HOSPITAL.

A public meeting, at which the Lord Mayor presided, was held in the vestibule of the Town Hall on Thursday afternoon, with the object of devising means of raising the funds that are so urgently needed for the maintenance and building extensions of the Women's Hospital, Crown-street.

On the platform were Judge Backhouse, president of the hospital; Mr. J. D. Fitzgerald, Minister for Public Health; Mr. H. C. Hoyle, Mr. G. Earp, M.L.C., Mr. Frank Bryant, M.L.C., Mr. R. S. Wickham, honorary treasurer; and Miss Mona Daley, secretary.

An executive committee, consisting of Mr. Joynton Smith, Mr. J. D. Fitzgerald, and Alderman J. O. Walker, was appointed, and Miss Daley was assigned the office of organising secretary.

It was decided that an art union should be promoted, and that funds should also be raised by a series of entertainments. The building of the nurses' home will leave a debt of over £6000, and the committee is anxious that this should be defrayed as soon as possible.

DAY NURSERY ASSOCIATION.

The annual meeting of the Sydney Day Nursing Association was held at the Forest Lodge Nursery on Thursday afternoon. Lady Davidson presided. The report recorded a year of successful work, and stated that the financial position of the association had been maintained. The speakers included Judge Backhouse, Mr. S. R. Innes Noad, M.L.C., and Mr. A. W. Green.

To-morrow will be observed in Methodist Churches throughout the State as the young worshippers' rally day. A feature of the decorations will be wild flowers in the colours of the [illegible]

LAW REPORT.

FULL COURT.

(Before Sir William Cullen, Mr. Justice Sly, and Mr. Justice Ferguson.)

CONTESTED POINT ON PROHIBITION.

Ex parte Pritchard, Prohibition.

This was a matter referred by Mr. Justice Ferguson from Chambers to the Full Court for decision. The appellant, Edward Claremont Pritchard, a labourer, was convicted by a magistrate at Tenterfield of stealing, in company with another person, and fined £10; in default two months' imprisonment with hard labour. The accused had elected, in pursuance of the Crimes Act, to be dealt with summarily, and he now applied for statutory prohibition, on the ground that the evidence did not justify his conviction for the offence charged. Objection was taken that statutory prohibition was not applicable to cases of indictable offences punishable summarily, inasmuch as the conviction sought to be appealed against was not a conviction within the meaning of the sections of the Justices Act allowing prohibition.

Mr. D. S. Edwards (instructed by Messrs. Thomas and Jennings, Sydney agents for Mr. J. T. Thomas, of Tenterfield) appeared for the applicant; and Mr. Watt (instructed by the Crown Solicitor) for the respondent officials.

The Court refused the application for prohibition. The Chief Justice said, as to an objection taken that the offence charged was not one within the sections of the Crimes Act, which enabled a person to elect to be dealt with summarily, while "stealing in company" was not an offence defined in any section of the Act, or an offence different from ordinary stealing at common law, inasmuch as the magistrate and the accused, without any objection on the part of the prosecutor, regarded the charge as one of "stealing," he did not see how the Full Court could treat the word "in company" as vitiating the conviction. Even if the necessity arose, the Court would have power under section 132 of the Justices Act to amend the conviction, by striking out the words "in company," which seemed to be mere surplusage. A question of greater difficulty was the point taken on behalf of the respondents that the section in the Justices Act providing for statutory prohibition was not applicable to cases in which magistrates summarily disposed of cases ordinarily indictable, but in which the accused elected within the provisions of the Crimes Act to be summarily dealt with. By section 112 of the Justices Act it was provided that any person aggrieved by any summary conviction on order of any justice or justices, might apply for statutory prohibition. Here was a conviction on a criminal charge. It was made in the exercise of the jurisdiction conferred by section 476 of the Crimes Act, to hear and determine a charge in a summary manner, and pass sentence upon the person so charged. Since amending legislation had been passed, his Honor thought that the existing law quite clearly showed that the right to appeal existed, and declined to attempt to vary the plain meaning of the legislation by reference to cases decided 15 or 16 years ago. Without saying what decision the Court might itself have come to on the facts, he did not think that the magistrate's decision was one to which a reasonable man could not have come.

The rule nisi for prohibition was discharged, without costs.

IN BANKRUPTCY.

(Before the Registrar.)

HEARING OF CREDITOR'S PETITION.

Re Robert Lionel McCann, ex parte R. Hall and Son, Ltd. Mr. Chubb, instructed by Mr. T. D. O'Sullivan, of Newcastle (Sydney agent Mr. H. P. Abbott), appeared for the petitioning creditor. A sequestration order was made, and Mr. W. H. Palmer appointed official assignee.

INDUSTRIAL COURT.

(Before his Honor, Judge Rolin, and assessors.)

TRAM EMPLOYEES' TRAVELLING TIME.

Some few months ago the main tramway permanent way depot was removed from Erskineville to Wolli Creek, near Tempe. This involved men employed at the depot being allowed 40 minutes' travelling time per day. An application was made by Mr. Bretnall, on behalf of the Railway Commissioners, to his Honor, sitting with Messrs. G. R. Cowdery (tramway engineer, for the Commissioners); and G. C. Bodkin (secretary of the A.W.U.) for the employees, for a variation of the award so as to relieve the Commissioners of the obligation of making a travelling time allowance in the cases of employees who have a fixed starting point. The application was granted, but with liberty to the men to seek a review in March next, when winter conditions come into operation. This being the third variation of the Government Tramways No. 1 (Permanent Way Wages Staff) award, an application was made on behalf of the union for a consolidation of the award, which was granted. This means that the award, with the respective variations, will be printed in one document.

Mr. J. B. Moffatt represented the A.W.U. on both applications.

DISTRICT COURT.

(Before Judge Docker.)

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT.

Millward Alfred Walton, aged 17 years, of Hubert-street, Leichhardt, on May 14 last injured his right hand by contact with a machine owned by his employers, John Bardsley and Sons, Ltd., of Leichhardt. On July 27 last an agreement was come to between the boy's father and the employers by which the latter were to pay £35 in full satisfaction of any claim against them. The Registrar of the Court refused to record the agreement, on the ground that the amount paid was inadequate. Young Walton now came before the Court and said that the injury to his hand had disappeared, and he was able to earn as much as or more money than before the accident. In the circumstances, his Honor said that he would direct the agreement to be recorded. Mr. T. W. Nicholls (Messrs. Dawson, Waldron, and Glover) appeared for the employers, and Mr. J. B. Moffatt for the employee.

The Registrar had also declined to record an agreement in connection with an accident by which Maurice Sterling, 25, of Greca's-road, Paddington, on May 17 last injured the forefinger of his right hand, whilst in the employ of the Dunkerley Hat Mills, Ltd., of Crown-street, Surry Hills. The employee had been paid £6, and he was willing to accept a further sum of £48 in full settlement of his claim against the company. Sterling, who appeared in person, showed his injured hand to his Honor, who said that the forefinger appeared to be permanently stiffened. He considered that the sum offered as compensation was inadequate, and he therefore refused to order the agreement to be recorded. Mr. T. W. Nicholls (Messrs. Dawson, Waldron, and Glover) appeared for the employers.

THE CHURCHES.

CHURCH UNION.

Some months ago sections of the committee appointed by the chief courts of the Presbyterian, Methodist, and Congregational Churches of Australia began to meet in Sydney and Melbourne, to discuss proposals submitted by the Presbyterian Church, and based on those adopted for the union of these churches in Canada. The New South Wales section of the committee held 14 sessions, most of which have extended to five hours. Next week there is to be a conference of all the State representatives of the joint committee in Melbourne, when the final draft of the doctrine and polity is to be considered. The Sydney and Melbourne sections are in substantial agreement in most of the clauses, but not on the question of pastoral tenure, which will probably prove to be one of the greatest obstacles to union. The difficulty is to find some way of reconciling the settled pastorate and itinerancy. The New South Wales section devoted three sessions to this question alone, and thinks it has found a happy solution of the problem, but this remains to be seen. If, however, the same spirit characterises this final conference as that which has been manifested in all the discussions here, there is reason to believe that a distinct step forward will be taken next week. After 18 years, this is the first conference of its kind. Eight delegates attend from New South Wales, and they leave for Melbourne on Monday night. Preliminary work in connection with the conference begins next day, and the main business on the Wednesday. The first authoritative body to deal with the proposed polity and doctrine will be the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, at the end of next month. The Congregational Union of Australia and New Zealand meets next May, and the Methodist General Conference in 1920, but long before then it will be possible to hear from the various State organisations how the question is being received.

The Archbishop of Sydney will preach to-morrow night at Newcastle Cathedral, and on Monday he will open the missionary exhibition in that city. On Wednesday he will conduct a confirmation service at Ashfield, and next Saturday he will open a new church at Punchbowl.

After four years' ministry at St. Peter's Church, Cook's River, the Rev. P. F. Evans is leaving to take charge of St. Philip's Church, Auburn. He will be inducted to his new charge on Wednesday evening, September 11, at 7.45 p.m., by the Dean of Sydney. The Rev. W. J. Ellis, late of Auburn, will be inducted to St. Peter's, Cook's River, on September 5.

The Rev. W. Fisher, late curate at Leichhardt, will be admitted as curate at St. Matthias' Church, Paddington, by Canon Charlton on Sunday evening.

Archbishop Kelly will lay the foundation-stone of the new church of St. Brigid, Marrickville, to-morrow afternoon.

The Rev. William Hayden will be consecrated Roman Catholic Bishop of Wilcannia in St. Mary's Cathedral on Sunday, September 8.

A visit to Windsor district will be commenced by Archbishop Kelly on Monday next.

The Moderator-General of the Presbyterian Church (Professor Macintyre) left Sydney last night for the Riverina district. In the course of his work he will visit Harden, Narrandera, and Hay, at the last-named conducting the jubilee services of the church. From Hay he will cross over to Deniliquin, and thence proceed to Melbourne to open the General Assembly of the Church. He is accompanied by Mrs. Macintyre.

The Rev. Lewis Jones has been called to the pastorate of the Vaucluse Congregational Church.

Mr. G. A. Sharp will take charge of the work in connection with the Congregational Church, Orange, for a few weeks.

This afternoon foundation-stones will be laid in connection with the new Congregational Church at Miranda.

The president of the Methodist Conference of Australasia, the Rev. Dr. Carruthers, has been visiting the southern districts during the week. On Sunday last he conducted anniversary services at Harden and Murrumburrah, the local Presbyterians placing the Ross Memorial (Presbyterian) Church at his disposal for the evening service. During his tour the president also visited Young, Galong, Wyalong, Cootamundra, Forbes, and Parkes. He will preach at the latter town to-morrow (Sunday). At Young and Forbes he took part in united intercessary services.

The Minister for Education, Mr. A. G. James, has promised to address the Methodist Ministers' Association on Monday morning on educational matters.

The meeting in connection with the 27th annual convention of the New South Wales Christian Endeavour Union will commence on Thursday next in the Bathurst-street Baptist Church, followed by the junior rally in the Town Hall on Saturday afternoon. The convention will close on Tuesday, September 10, with the [illegible]

REAL ESTATE.

The Real Estate market still remains brisk. In fact, each week shows signs of greater activity, and this week was no exception of the rule. The principal sale of the week was the disposal by auction of the Coronation Hotel, Park and George streets, city, by Messrs. Hardie and Gorman, Horning and Co., and Stanton and Sons, in conjunction. This property was in the estate of the late Samuel Hordern, and realised £35,500. The purchasers were the firm of Bebarfalds, Ltd. This firm immediately after this sale purchased the property adjoining the Coronation Hotel for £30,000. This property is occupied by Griffiths Bros., tea merchants. At the first sale of the Hordern estate, in February last, Bebarfalds, Ltd., purchased eight shops in Park-street, adjoining the Coronation Hotel, for £20,000, so that altogether the firm has now a very fine corner property in the heart of the city of considerable dimensions, which has cost them £80,500.

Mr. Percy G. Sharpe reports that following on the sale of No. 122 Pitt-street by Messrs. Raine and Horne (in conjunction with Mr. Warren Paine), he sold the leasehold of this property, together with the freehold at the rear and fronting Rowe-street, for £7000. He also sold a residence in the eastern suburbs for £5000, an allotment at Vaucluse for £825, and a block at Manly at £24/10/ per foot, £1630.

This being the off week for indoor auctions, few were held. The weekly sale by Messrs. Richardson and Wrench held yesterday was fairly well attended, but Mr. Gregg had not a very attractive list to deal with. He, however, got pretty close to his reserve with several properties. For a cottage at North Sydney he was bid £675, and offered to take £700. For two cottages at Newtown £460 was the best offer. Mr. Gregg was willing to take £500, but in neither case was a sale effected. He sold an allotment at Auburn for £70.

During the week this firm disposed of the following properties by private contract:—Two cottages, Brighton-street, Peterhsham, £1275; a residence, Cavendish-street, Stanmore, £800; two allotments, Lilydale Estate, Dulwich Hill, at £6 per foot (£360); two portions of the Carrington Heights Estate, Balgowlah, Manly, £150; an allotment, Harbour Vista Estate, Manly, at £2 per foot; three blocks land, Hoxton Park Estate, Liverpool, at £4/5/ per acre; an allotment, Golf View Estate, Manly, at 12/6 per foot; and an allotment, Beatrice-street, Balgowlah, Manly, at 27/6 per foot; and two blocks, Artarmon Estate, Artarmon, £400.

Messrs. Raine and Horne disposed of a couple of large residential properties this week. There is a good demand lately for large residences, even more so than before the war, and quite a number have been sold this year in the different suburbs, especially in the eastern section, where the boundaries are limited to the coastline. Vaucluse, Edgecliff, Darling Point, Woollahra, and Point Piper have provided sales of this character within the past six months. On the other side of the harbour, at Mosman and Neutral Bay, large residences have of late changed hands. This week Messrs. Raine and Horne found a buyer for a residence and 2½ acres of land on the Wollstonecraft end of North Sydney, the price being £6500. They also sold, in conjunction with Hardie and Gorman, a residence and grounds in Belmore-road, Randwick, for £4100. The purchaser in this instance was the Minister for Defence, and it is understood that the property will be used as a home for nurses engaged at the Randwick Military Hospital. The firm also sold by private contract a cottage at South Kensington for £900; a pair of cottages, Marion-street, Leichhardt, £900; two allotments, Cole's Estate, North Manly, at 30/ per foot; one allotment, at Northbridge, at £2 per foot; an allotment, Milling-street, Gladesville, at 40/ per foot; also the following conversions from leasehold into freehold—Surry Hills, £2000; Neutral Bay, £1485; Alexandria, £759; and Pyrmont, £570.

Messrs. Arthur Rickard and Co., Ltd., report that their sales for the week were highly satisfactory. A number of inquiries were received for residential blocks, many coming from the country. Haberfield and Five Dock were the favoured localities. Medium priced sites were sold in Hurstville, Granville, Bankstown, and Bexley. Several farmlets were selected at Toongabbie and Wentworthville, and seaside blocks at Ettalong and Pretty Beach, Woy Woy. The firm will shortly place on the market a large area of farming land at Mortdale in blocks of five to seven acres each.

Messrs. Hardie and Gorman had a fairly active week. They disposed of a residence, Dalley-street, Waverley, £1250; two blocks, Hawthornden Estate, £1560; and a smaller block in the same estate, £300; an allotment, Victoria-road, Bellevue Hill, at £10 per foot (£740); land, M'Pherson-street, Waverley, at 50/ per foot (£200); cottage, Arnold-street, Waverley, £775; an allotment, Beecroft-road, Beecroft, at 30/ per foot; and three houses, Albion-street, Surry Hills, £2800.

Messrs. Stanton and Co., Ltd., this week sold the following properties:—Brick house, No. 2 Kensington-road, Summer Hill, with frontage of 50ft, £1100; lot 3, Beckton Estate, Lilli Pilli, Port Hacking, £825; three lots, Beckton Estate, Port Hacking, £1175; two lots, Beckton Estate, Port Hacking, with residence, Beckton, frontage to Lilli Pilli Point-road, £3000; two brick cottages, with frontage 50ft to Kensington-road, Summer Hill, £700; brick cottage, Terriergong, with frontage 50ft to Burton-street, Concord, £870; brick cottage, No. 128, with frontage 18ft to Bourke-street, Sydney, £307; cottage, Summer Hill, 20ft Kensington-road, £475.

Messrs. Hugh Duff and Co. (A. T. Carpenter) report having sold the following properties during the week:—Cottage, Macquarie-street, Chatswood, £850; cottage, Archer-street, Chatswood, £1200; cottage, Bond-street, Mosman, £1250. The firm are offering in their sale rooms next Thursday several splendid building sites in Killara, Mosman, Brighton-le-Sands, and Peakhurst; also a cottage in Queen-street, Mosman.

Messrs. Ernest C. V. Broughton and Co. report the following sales:—Manly, block of land, 50 x 60, with old buildings thereon, £1000; Mortdale, w.b. cottage, £295; Mortdale, w.b. cottage, £225; Chatswood, five lots, Homelands Estate, for £572; North Sydney, Milson's Point, land, 45ft to Alfred-street, £450.

Messrs. Stanton and Son will include in their next indoor auction at the rooms of the Association on September 10, a number of suburban properties, including stores and racing stables adjoining the Randwick Racecourse, and two water frontage sites at the picturesque suburb of Vaucluse.

In respect to sub-division sales for the approaching season, final arrangements are almost completed, and there is every prospect that from next month onward Saturday afternoon auctions will become a leading feature in the year's real estate work.

Messrs. Stanton and Son had an introductory sale last Saturday at Enfield, where Mr. Stanton submitted on behalf of the Perpetual Trustee Company Wynne's Estate. In all, 15 lots were, disposed of at prices ranging from 11s 6d to 30s a foot. There are inquiries for the balance of this land.

The auction this afternoon by Messrs. Raine and Horne at Hunter's Hill is likely to be largely attended. There has been a big demand for lithographs, and a full inquiry respecting the land, which is the Wybalena Estate, close to the river and the ferry, and situated in one of the most picturesque suburbs of that district.

There is a number of sales arranged for next Saturday, which is really the opening of the season. Messrs. Richardson and Wrench will conduct two auctions: one will take place at Eastwood, where the extension Hunt's Hill Estates will come under the hammer; and the other sale will be held on the heights of Enfield, where 27 good building sites will be offered.

Messrs. S. C. Smith and Co. will next Saturday offer the Railway Estate at Canley Vale. This land is right at the station. Canley Vale is a suburb which is making excellent progress.

Another sale next Saturday which is sure to attract attention will be conducted at Coalcliff, on the South Coast line, by Messrs. Raine and Horne. It is the Paterson Estate that will be submitted, and the fine position of the estate is sure to prove attractive to buyers generally.

Messrs. Stanton and Son, Ltd., announce an auction sale of the Peakhurst Heights Estate to be sold by them shortly. The estate comprises about 30 blocks of half-acres in area, and in a high position.

Mr. C. Monro reports having sold the following properties in Cronulla district during the past month:—50ft frontage to Ozone-street, £750; 62ft, Cronulla-street, £960; two lots, Glaisher Point Estate, £500; cottage, Denman-avenue, £230; poultry farm and four acres, Boulevard, £830; 22 lots, Thorne's Estate, £4137; 53 lots, Riverview Estate, £5400; four lots, Gymea Township Estate, £200; two lots, Long View Estate, £251.

LONGER LIFE FROM YOUR BELTING.
First cost in Belting is not nearly as important as service and upkeep cost. The only way to judge Belting value is by service. In
DICK'S BALATA BELTING
(the Original and Genuine)
you get the maximum of service. You get also a Belting that saves money loss, because it cuts down slippage and stretching. Dick's Balata Belting is more flexible than leather belting. Its great strength ensures freedom from repairs, and consequently saves the money wasting stoppages of machinery.
LET US SEND YOU INTERESTING BOOKLET.

REFRIGERATING AND ICE-MAKING MACHINERY:

ECONOMY, SIMPLICITY,
DURABILITY, DEPENDABILITY—

All these essentials are embodied in our machines—the outcome of 25 years' experience.

In the Refrigerating Business much depends on the constant running of the Refrigerating Machine; breakdowns are serious, and mean the loss of a great deal of money. It is wise, therefore, to instal a machine of proven reliability, or, in other words, one of our machines, as it is their dependability that has made them so popular.

THE BEALE PIANO.

MADE IN AUSTRALIA.

The keyboard of the Beale Piano is another tribute to the skill and care exercised in manufacturing the instrument. The Ivories are specially picked for us, are very handsome and durable and even in colour. Each key is accurately weighted and adjusted to ensure an easy, responsive touch. The key-frame is very strong, and held to the iron frame by special brackets, which are absolutely rigid. Climatic variations have absolutely no effect on a Beale keyboard. The better musician you are the more you will appreciate the "Beale." Terms if desired.

ON THE LAND.

BIRD PROTECTION.

(BY W. M. SHERRIE.)

In the task of educating people up to something like an intelligent understanding of the economic relation of the indigenous bird life of the country to its primary industries it is best to begin at the beginning. And the beginning may be found only in the Public and other schools of the State. Splendid work has been done during the past few years in the Public schools, and through the medium of the Gould League of Bird Lovers (which has many branches in the country districts), but for the most part it has had to rely for its inspiration and its force on the enthusiasm of individuals. Pending a wider knowledge of bird-life—which in the past has been confined to but a very small percentage of the people—we must, of course, have an intelligent law of protection energetically administered.

As the laws of a country usually are but a reflex of the state of the people's enlightenment, perhaps the new Birds and Animals Protection Bill originated in the Legislative Council by Sir Joseph Carruthers (who has long been an active worker in this connection), and passed through the Legislative Assembly last week, is as effective an instrument as it is possible to obtain for this purpose at the present time. The measure is not by any means perfect, but it is a great improvement on the laws which it supersedes. Some radical alterations have been made. Perhaps the most important is that which reverses the position with regard to scheduled birds. Under the old Act only birds specifically mentioned in the gazetted schedule were entitled to protection. All birds outside the schedule could be shot or otherwise destroyed without restriction. Now the position is reversed. All birds not specified in the schedule are protected. This change, it will be noted, is vital. Under the new law birds which may be shot have to be determined by schedule. The list of birds submitted to Parliament in the bill proposed to place on the unprotected list the following species:—Sparrows, silvereyes, crows, ravens, white cockatoos, galahs (rose-crested cockatoos), rosella parrot, lory (Platycercus elegans), Blue Mountain parrot, red-rumped grass parrot, garrulous honey-eater (minah or soldier bird), friar bird or leatherhead, yellow-throated friar bird, grey crow, shrike (Strepera cuneicaudata), pied crow shrike (S. graculina), wedge-tailed eagle, eagle hawk, and five species of cormorant—the black, white-breasted, pied, little black, and little cormorant.

Messrs. Loughlin and Johnston made unsuccessful attempts to have the two friar-birds excluded. Mr. Loughlin said it was an extraordinary thing that the grey magpie (or grey crow shrike) should have been included in the schedule. Both the grey and the black magpies, he contended, were particularly valuable. On an amendment by Mr. Loughlin, both the grey magpies were struck out of the schedule, by 35 to 22 votes. These birds thus became protected. Mr. Loughlin failed to have the beautiful Blue Mountain lorikeet struck out by one vote, the division showing 28 to 27. Mr. Walker sought to have the starling, the snipe (all species), and the gill-bird, or wattle bird (Acanthochaera carunculata), added to the schedule. Mr. Fuller (who had charge of the bill) protested against the starling being included, as he pointed out that the matter had been carefully gone into by men well acquainted with the habits of these imported birds, and after a long debate in the Council the schedule was framed as they found it. Mr. Fuller said one well-known pastoralist declared that the starling had saved this country from the loss of one-half its horse stock, by preying on the botfly. Eventually the three species of birds in question were added to the schedule, also the white-throated falcon, on the amendment of Mr. Loughlin.

Other clauses of the new law provide that the Minister may declare a close season for the protection of any scheduled bird or animal; that persons infringing the law shall be liable for a fine of £20 for every offence; that the Minister may issue licenses authorising the holders to take, or kill, certain protected birds or animals during an open season for the purpose of selling them (with a £5 penalty in each case for killing any such bird or animal without holding a license); that the Minister may, by license, authorise any person to kill any bird or animal found on his land, and destroying or injuring his property. An important amendment on the old law is that if a person be found with dog and gun on a reserve among protected birds or animals it will be taken as prima facie evidence of an intent to commit a breach of the law. Provision is made for the establishment of sanctuaries where birds shall be unmolested, and for the appointment of honorary rangers to assist the police in seeing that the law is honoured. Mr. Loughlin, Mr. Johnston, and some other members made a strenuous fight for the appointment of paid officials, emphasising the point (which is indisputable) that the complete failure of the old Act was due as much to inertia in the matter of its administration as to defects of principle. Curiously enough the best and the worst speeches on the second reading of the bill were made by members of the Opposition—the best by Messrs. P. F. Loughlin (Burrangong) and V. C. R. Johnston (Bathurst); the worst by Messrs. P. M. M'Girr and J. Storey. Mr. M'Girr claimed to be a "practical economist"; yet he displayed such crass ignorance of the subject of even the rudiments of national economy that he could see no need for "wasting" the time of Parliament on such a bill as this. This was bad enough; but it was almost equally pitiful to find the leader of the Opposition unable to discover any use for the quail (shown by scientific research to be a valuable ally of the agriculturist), but that associated with the gun and the pot.

Mr. Loughlin and Mr. Johnston, however, gave abundant evidence of a wide and intimate acquaintance with the subject, together with a profound realisation of its economic importance to the country, apart altogether from consideration for its aesthetic side; and these members have placed all nature-lovers under a debt of gratitude for the splendid work they have done in connection with this measure. To Mr. Fuller also a word of high commendation is due, for, though he made no claim to any personal knowledge of the question, he consistently manifested an earnest desire to make the law as effective and as equitable as it could be made. As stated, the bill had its origin in the Council, where members were supposed to have expert knowledge of the subject, but, as a matter of fact, the measure was improved almost out of recognition in the Assembly.

THE WOOL TRADE.

PREPARING FOR APPRAISEMENTS.

There is an undercurrent of activity in anticipation of the commencement of the appraising season in Sydney, and some other centres, on September 17. In addition to the fellmongered wools that are available for the first series in Sydney, 57,251 bales have been received by rail and boat. In addition to these wools in store, a fair quantity will arrive before the catalogues for the first series are compiled. The bulk of the shorn wools are from the north-western slopes and plains and the west. These include a number of large and well-known brands, which will, with the scoured skin wools, furnish several large and attractive catalogues. Shearing has been extending throughout the early districts but occasional delays have been encountered through rain and wet sheep. Wools will again be catalogued according to shearing dates or arrival in store, and a clip will be recognised as in store upon the arrival of 75 per cent. of it. There will be six series of appraisements: the first aggregating 100,000 bales; three series of 150,000 bales each; the fifth of 100,000 bales; and the concluding one of all wools on hand up to the close of the statistical year. These arrangements, with the provision by the Central Wool Committee of storage accommodation for appraised wools, together with the earlier start of appraising, should enable the acquisition to proceed this season upon very smooth lines. There was considerable heart-burning during a part of last season at some owners having to wait their turn before having their wools appraised. The season was late in starting, and the carriage of wools was interrupted through strikes and storage congestion. It is unlikely that any of these inconveniences will be experienced this season, the arrangements in all directions being very satisfactory.

COMING CLIP PROSPECTS.

This wool production during the current statistical year is likely to be about equal in quantity to that grown last season; it promises to be rather lighter in the grease, with the exception of clips from Riverina, where a good season prevailed. As a whole, the wool will probably be not so well grown or so attractive in appearance. There was considerable trucking and travelling of north-western sheep through the droughty conditions before the rains of a few weeks ago. North-west wools will probably be dusty and dry, not so well grown, only fairly sound, and probably carrying considerable burr and seed. The Western district promises a good average clip. Wools from the central districts are not expected to be up to the average. Riverina wools will be well grown, but carry an excess of yolk as a result of the generous season. The clip from New England last season was not equal to the previous year, and this season it will be considerably below the average. Monaro wools are likely to be impoverished, and show signs of an adverse growing period. Exceptions to these general prospects are almost certain to be in evidence during the course of the appraising season, which will probably embrace a total clip of between 740,000 and 750,000 bales.

NO NEW APPRAISING CENTRES.

Strenuous efforts have been put forth since the Imperial wool purchase scheme was first launched to have additional appraising centres established in various parts of the Commonwealth, particularly at Newcastle in this State, and at Rockhampton in Queensland. There seemed hope, especially at Newcastle, up to quite recently, that the request would be granted, and the claim of the port recognised, through wools having previously been shipped from there, mainly for realisation in London; but now the matter has been definitely settled in all cases by the following official statement:—

> The Central Wool Committee has been criticised in certain quarters through its refusals to increase the number of appraising centres, and to approve of additional appraising houses for wool and sheepskins. The instructions received from the Director of Raw Materials on these points are definite and decided, and from which there can be no departure. If those persons who agitate for additional appraising centres and wool appraising houses would recognise what Australia owes to the Imperial Government for the purchase of the wool clip in face of the dearth of shipping, they would cease to harass the Central Wool Committee, which is unable to alter the position, and which must as trustees of Imperial Government wool, adhere strictly to the requirements and directions of those controlling the British wool scheme.

WOOL COMBING RESUMED.

Whiddon Bros., one of the wool combing companies engaged last season in combing wool into tops for export, under agreement with the Federal Government, have now concluded negotiations with the Central Wool Committee, by which they will continue the work. Under the former agreement the two wool combing companies were able to convert a portion of the resultant wool from green sheepskins into tops without such skin wools going into the appraisement scheme. That scheme enabled the Colonial Combing, Spinning, and Weaving Co., Ltd., by the aid of the Colonial Wholesale Meat Co., Ltd., to sell its mutton from woolly sheep "almost at cost price," to the detriment of other sheep buyers in the markets or on stations. The new arrangement precludes the possibility of the continuance of any such arrangement. Whiddon Bros.' combing mills are now running three shifts, and combing wool into tops under conditions not disclosed, but we understand that they are thoroughly satisfactory—alike to the company as the Central Wool Committee. The company's operations only cover the process of manufacturing tops from greasy wool, obviating the complications under the old scheme of allowing tops to be combed from skin wools. Obviously the Central Wool Committee intends all skin wools to go into appraisement, and only wools taken out from appraisement at appraised prices to be converted into tops, yarn, or textiles. This is apparently a most satisfactory solution of the wool combing difficulty, and enables one of the two plants to work to its utmost capacity.

INTERSTATE MARKETS.

The appraising season commences rather early for large catalogues in the Victorian markets. According to the "Age" of Wednesday last it was understood that the quantity of wool to be appraised in the first round in Melbourne, commencing on September 17, will total 10,000 bales, of which scoured skin wools are to have first preference. The next round will probably be held early in October.

COUNTRY MILK SUPPLIERS.

The second annual meeting of the Country Milk Suppliers' Association was held at Kiama. The president (Mr. Arthur Knox) was in the chair. The gathering was the most representative held in the district for many years, over 100 delegates being present. The annual report showed that the affairs of the association were in a very satisfactory condition, and stated that close attention had been given to the various requirements of milk suppliers. Negotiations as carried out from time to time with the receiving companies regarding the price of producers had in every instance concluded in an arrangement satisfactory to all concerned. In view of the circumstances governing the cost of production, the market value of milk, as determined by the producers during the different seasons of the year, had been on a reasonable basis. Although the season had been a fairly profitable one for the dairy farmer, in no sense could it be said that the consumer had been exploited in any way.

Mr. Knox said there was an impression in certain quarters in the city that their organisation was out to exploit the consumer. This he denied, and pointed out that not one of their requests made to the price-fixing boards had been turned down. Before the present organisation came into existence they had three distributing milk companies in Sydney discussing prices, while in the meantime the producers were heavily handicapped by the delay. Now these companies were represented on the council. Labour demanded a minimum wage. Was it not therefore consistent to demand that the farmer should get a living wage too—determined by a fair price for his produce?

Mr. C. W. Craig (Jamberoo) said that, in his opinion, milk should be maintained at a uniform price of 1s per gallon throughout the year. He felt quite certain that those crying out for cheap produce would change their tune if they were running a farm at the present time. He could safely say that not one present in the room was making as much out of his farm as if he put the amount of capital invested into the war loan.

Mr. Pankhurst (Branxton) considered, what with high prices of land, rabbits, grasshoppers, droughts, and price-fixing boards, farming was anything but an enviable position.

Mr. F. Moore (Campbelltown) said he had been farming pretty well all his life. He had recently got out of the business, and the money realised from the sale of his home and farm was bringing him in £20 a week without labour or worry.

The president said it would be a mistaken policy for members to go away from the meeting with the impression that they would get 1s per gallon all the year round.

FAT CATTLE VALUES.

As a number of city people are under the impression that present prices of fat cattle are extraordinarily high, Mr. R. M. Pitt points out that extracts from Press reports for the markets during July and August, 1915, show that values at that time were from £5 to £10 per head higher than at present, and adds: "However, as the season improved, values declined considerably (although the war is progressing), which shows that it is mainly the state of the season which rules prices."

WAGGA SHOW.

SENSATIONAL JUMPING.

WAGGA.—There was sensational jumping in the open high jump, for which ten horses competed. At 6ft 6in five horses were left in, and at 6ft 9in three cleared the bar amidst applause. The judge then raised the height to 6ft 11in, and C. N. Cullen's Bloom (ridden by George Moloney), W. J. Weir's Peter (ridden by R. Chittick), and the pony Thumbs Up (ridden by R. Doctor) cleared the jump. The bar was placed at 7ft. The first two knocked it, but Thumbs Up, with a magnificent jump, went clear over at first attempt. The previous best jump at Wagga was 6ft 11in many years ago.

WOOLLAHRA LOAN BILL.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—In your issue of this morning Mr. James, in introducing this bill, is reported to have said:—"The ratepayers of the ward were willing to submit to the imposition of a special rate to meet the charges rendered necessary by the works." If this means that this rate is to be confined to the ratepayers of Bellevue Ward, I wish to say, as one of the largest of those ratepayers, that the statement is untrue. We have never been consulted on the question, and it would have been well had a direct answer been given to Mr. J. Storey's question, why the usual course was not followed in this case. When I was in the council there appeared to be a league among the aldermen of other wards to utilise the rates paid by Bellevue Ward for expenditure in these other wards, and it would be well if we were told now much is now owed to Bellevue Ward by them. In my time it was a very large sum. This bill imposes a most unjust burden on the Bellevue ratepayers.

I am, etc., RICHARD TEECE.

WAR AND POLICY.

In the famous policy speech of Baron von Kuhlmann there is one paragraph which may often be quoted as a summary of the relations between the civil and military elements in the German Government. The Minister quoted from the reply of Field-Marshal von Mackensen to the toast of his health at the banquet held at Bucharest to celebrate the execution of the treaty and the virtual destruction of Roumanian independence. "There is a proverb," said Mackensen, "to the effect that what the sword gains the pen spoils. In this treaty what the sword has gained the pen has preserved." "I hope," said Kuhlmann to the deputies, "when you have examined my work you will think that the Field-Marshal was justified in his praise." Some accounts of the negotiations both at Brest-Litovsk and Bucharest have suggested that the union between the sword and the pen has not always been harmonious. Kuhlmann and Czernin, the South German and the Bohemian, have been represented as favouring conciliatory proposals until a Prussian general has stamped his foot and declared that a defeated enemy must pay the full penalty. Whatever the internal differences the result has been the same in all the internal crises of the war. The military party said that their army must march through Belgium, therefore Belgium was invaded and Great Britain forced into the war. The same party said that unrestricted submarining must be adopted, therefore the pledges given to America were broken and America joined her irresistible forces to the Western Alliance. The militarists said that Russia and Roumania must be converted into farms for the Central Empires, therefore the Reichstag resolution against annexations and indemnities was ignored and a fiery resentment kindled not only in the conquered countries, but in every democracy. In each instance the decision of the Government has been of great immediate benefit to Germany. In each it has been a powerful factor in the ultimate destruction of the German Empire. The achievement of Kuhlmann, first in conjunction with General Hoffman, and afterwards with Field-Marshal von Mackensen, has rather encouraged hopes than conferred immediate benefits, but it has provided a fresh warning to the peoples of Great Britain, of France, and of the United States against the acceptance of a compromise peace. Great Britain sees a new menace to India more powerful and more threatening than Russia ever was. Kuhlmann proclaims an alliance with Georgia, which may expand into a great republic of the Caucasus, and a joint advance with Turkey on to Northern Persia and the headwaters of the Tigris. These are not projects of the future dependent on victory. They are already being carried out under the superintendence of a German military mission. France knows that her inveterate enemy has sought to make herself independent of sea power for attack or for defence, and has added to herself a new population fit to be consumed in a new war. Every Allied nation knows that if these conquests are retained the two ideal aims for which they have been fighting will have been lost. There will be no further possibility of making the world safe for democracy or of securing the right of each nation to determine its own fate. The nation which has given these two ideals the chief place in its demands will have been defeated if these treaties are allowed to stand. The European peoples who are defending their own frontiers will remain subject to the burdens of defence though Belgium and Northern France are set free, and even if Alsace and Lorraine are restored.

When Kuhlmann made his speech the military party still believed that the Western offensive would succeed, or were afraid to confess their disappointment. He himself was not confident, but after a moment of candour was compelled to agree with his masters. To-day the military party have confessed their failure. Except at one point they have abandoned their gains and are retreating precipitately towards a line of defence. Their policy has changed completely. They can no longer hope to break the Allied armies or to terrorise the French people by a blow or a series of blows. Nor can they hope to wear out the resources of Great Britain and France before America is ready. When they have reached their defences they must attempt to hold out either until the Allies are attacking them or until they themselves have gained reinforcements sufficient to enable them to open a new attack against greatly increased armies. The policy is in appearance the same as was pursued during the battle of the Somme, and after the retreat of 1917; but it differs in one very important factor. The Germans can no longer hope that their submarine campaign will starve the Allies into submission. At the end of last year they were as near success as they afterwards came in their great offensive. But the union of the sword and the pen which Kuhlmann celebrates had already spoiled their chances. The British nation had been taught to organise their resources and to submit to discipline. The American people, by its own energy and self-sacrifice, and by the lessons learned in Belgium, had succeeded in supplying the immediate wants of the military and civilian populations of Italy, France, and Great Britain. To-day the German leaders can scarcely hope to begin a new offensive. They must rely on the weariness or the disunion of the Allied peoples, and on their hopes of satisfying one at the expense of the rest. Such hopes find no encouragement in the previous answers of Allied statesmen or in the terms set out by President Wilson. The future settlement is to be made not by secret bargains but by a conference of all the belligerents if for no other reason because it must be permanent. The Germans will now call upon their diplomatists to succeed where their generals have failed, always assuming that the generals bring back the major part of their army to a new line. But German diplomatists are fatally handicapped for any campaign of intrigue. They will always be reminded of the assurances given to Belgium, of the treachery of Luxemburg, of the intrigues of Bernstorff, of the deception of Brest-Litovsk. They will find that the judgment of the Power which trusted them longest has become universal, as it was expressed by Mr. Lansing in June. "Sincere and honest the Governments against which these intrigues were directed believed the Imperial German Government to possess a character like their own. Naturally trustful they fell victims to the snares set to entrap them. We admit we have been the dupes of the military clique because dishonesty of this sort seemed to us inconceivable in these days of international honour and Christian civilisation. But I believe the nations, and I am certain that the United States, will never again be caught in a net of duplicity equal to that which was spread all over the world by the German Government."

STRICKEN SERVIA.

The war as it drags on has brought mercifully perhaps, a certain blunting of the sensibilities to most of us. It is not a question of indifference or callousness but of use and wont. We now accept as part of the ordinary condition of the present world the impossibilities of the happy optimistic world which came to an end little more than four years ago. Things which would have sounded like incredible nightmares in 1913 shocked us by their realisation in 1914; to-day they are, alas, the commonplaces of existence. The original impression still remains, but it has been overlaid by so many fresh and recurrent horrors that it has lost the vehemence and the vividness of its first appeal. Our attitude to the countries occupied by the Central Powers is a case in point. Our pity for Belgium and for Servia, to name only two, is as keen as ever; our sense of obligation to them for their heroic sacrifices has not diminished. But as the years wear on there is perhaps a tendency to take their plight as a matter of course and to think less of their immediate sufferings than of the ultimate settlement which will give them redress. This has become a war of giants. Amidst the Goliaths we are sometimes in danger of forgetting the Davids who have fought so valiantly but have been overthrown and have paid the price in everything that a nation holds dear. We shall be shamed if we forget them even for a moment, and the appeal for the Servian Canteens Fund should remind us of our debt to this the most unfortunate of all the Allies. We hear little from the Balkan theatre of war nowadays, but the letter of Miss Olive Kelso King, sergeant-chauffeur with the Royal Servian Army, which was recently published in these columns, should rekindle our gratitude to this gallant Ally whose soldiers are fighting for us still, despite disasters and hardships that would have demoralised a less spirited nation. Servia's tragedy has been the most dramatic of all the tragedies of the "small peoples" borne down by German militarism. The year 1914 found her eager for peace, exhausted by two wars which, though victorious, had taxed her to the utmost. But her stubborn sense of nationality, which had been developed by these wars, was inconvenient to Germany's ambitions in the Near East. The assassination of a prince, an assassination for which Servia was in no way responsible, gave Germany the pretext, and when Servia refused Austria's ultimatum, couched in terms which no self-respecting nation could accept and Servia was never meant to accept, the embroilment began. Servia played her part bravely. Twice she drove back the Austrians, but when Bulgaria, her hereditary and traditionally treacherous foe, chose the moment to stab her in the back, she had to give way.

Then came the horrors of the retreat through Albania. The civilians who remained experienced again the atrocities of the Austrian invader, who, like the German in Belgium, adopted a policy of calculated terrorism. The civilians who escaped were waifs and strays with nowhere to lay their heads; even the Belgian refugees were able at length to reach friendly lands where everyone did their best for them, but the Servians found little hospitality in the barren mountains of the Adriatic littoral. What was left of the Servian army reached the Adriatic after unimaginable sufferings which would have broken the hearts of less resolute men. After this terrible exodus well might it have been thought that Servia's part in the war was finished. We recapitulate these familiar facts because they emphasise Servia's unswerving loyalty to the Allies and Servia's extraordinary vitality. Servia has proved the truth of the saying that a nation is to be found not on the map but in the hearts of its people, and though the Servians are expatriated and expropriated, the flame burns as brightly as ever. The army, broken and beaten by all principles of strategy, was rested and reorganised and then appeared at Salonica burning to avenge its reverses. Its ranks were replenished from the wide world by Servians and Czecho-Slavonic races who had heard the call. America sent many to the Servian standard; even in far-away Australia a "Jugo-Slav Legion" was raised which has already acquitted itself with credit and has created bonds between Servia and Australia of which the most extravagant imagination would not have dreamed five years ago. Servia still holds her line, battered but not beaten. She looks now to Britain as her protector. Once it was Russia, but Russia has failed her, and Servia, generously overlooking certain sins of omission on the part of British diplomacy, now relies on us. It will be well for us to fulfil our trust. To put the matter on the lowest ground, a friendly Servia is an immensely important asset now and for all time, for Servia is an essential counter in the grandiose scheme of the "Central European Bloc." A Servia friendly to Britain and commanding the right bank of the Danube is the flaw in the plan of "Mittel Europa," the little brick that will not fit into the orderly arrangement of the design. But it is not from the desire to secure their interests that Britain and Australia will contribute to the Servian Canteens Fund; this is only a small outward, visible sign of their appreciation of all that Servia has done and suffered for our cause. The Servian soldier has a Spartan regime. His pay is scanty; his rations monotonous and pale. From one year's end to another he lives mainly on a diet of soup and beans. He is not allowed to patronise the canteens of the French and the British armies, and if he wishes to buy anything he must submit to the extortions of the Greek shopkeepers, beside whom the most shameless profiteer of other lands is but a child. The Servian civilians are in like case. Here is an opportunity for Australia to help to alleviate their lot; the Allies have charged themselves with the future of the Servians; we should not on that account ignore their present needs.

The Premier has received through the Governor the following message from the Secretary of State in reply to the Government's congratulations to the King on the occasion of his birthday:—"I have the honour to inform you that I have laid your telegram of June 1 before his Majesty the King, who commands me to request you to convey to the people of New South Wales an expression of his high appreciation of their loyal good wishes on the occasion of his birthday."

The Western Australian Government recently asked that the services of Mr. J. B. Jaquet, Chief Inspector of Mines, might be obtained for the purpose of reporting upon the working conditions of the Kalgoorlie mines. The Minister for Mines (Mr. Fitzpatrick) has agreed to this request. Mr. Jaquet will leave for Kalgoorlie and Perth to-morrow night, and will be absent from this State for about a month.

The State Full Court yesterday admitted the following gentlemen to practice as solicitors of the New South Wales Supreme Court:—Messrs. A presentation was made in the library of the "Sydney Morning Herald" office yesterday afternoon to Mrs. Florence Baverstock, who has resigned from the literary staff of the "Herald" in order to reside on the South Coast, after four years' service in charge of the Women's Page and as social writer. The acting-editor, Mr. C. Brunsdon Fletcher, referred to the successful manner in which Mrs. Baverstock had reflected in the columns under her charge the feelings and aspirations of the womanhood of Australia during four stressful years of war; and in responding, Mrs. Baverstock regretted that the state of her health compelled her to relinquish an undertaking which she had found congenial and interesting.

HOMES DAY.

The demand for badges and buttons for Homes Day has so far exceeded the anticipations of the committee that they have reluctantly been compelled to announce that no further orders can be executed until next Tuesday.

A special "drive" is being arranged for early next week, and 200 Homes Day girls are needed for the occasion. Those who are willing to render valuable but not arduous work are requested to notify the honorary organisers at the office, 19A Elizabeth-street.

For the Millions' Club dinner to-night, the applications so far received, have severely taxed the seating accommodation. The Governor is to be present, and there will be many ladies among the guests.

Purchasers of Homes Day art union tickets are requested to ascertain that when receiving their tickets they get also a window or motor car badge.

The art union is evidently going to be one of the biggest things of its kind yet launched in connection with war work in Australia. The prizes already present a formidable and attractive list covering every class of article from an up-to-date motor car to a pair of hams, and from an eighty-guinea piano to a ton of coal. The list includes a motor cycle, a Florentine silver tray (stated to be worth 50 guineas), a grafonola, a latest model typewriter, a sewing machine, a bicycle, and about 100 other articles. Mr. Arthur Griffith, chairman of the Art Union Committee, estimates that the scheme will net fully £10,000. The first prize, a touring car, is on view opposite the Commonwealth Bank, in Moore-street.

FOR SOLDIERS AND SAILORS

"They never turned their backs, but marched breast forward." "Grace, grit, and gumption will get you out of any tight corner." These texts, which look down from the wall of the recreation room in the Salvation Army's new soldiers' and sailors' hostel, in Goulburn-street, express the spirit of the institution. It is essentially a place where the men of the fighting services may make themselves at home. The presiding genius is Chaplain W. M'Kenzie, M.C., whose name is known to every Australian veteran.

Commissioner Hay, in formally opening the place yesterday, said that it would provide refreshments and sleeping accommodation for 60 men. There was a recreation-room, a writing-room, and a gymnasium, with shower baths attached. The building had formerly been a "People's Palace," but, at a cost of £800, it had been turned into a hostel, and it would be conducted by a staff of eight persons solely for soldiers, sailors, and returned men. Commissioner Hay spoke interestingly of the war work of the Salvation Army, and declared that, although much had been done, it was not half of what the Army would wish to do for the soldiers.

Captain Soane, who appeared to represent the State Commandant, Brigadier-General Lee, unavoidably absent, warmly commended the purposes of the hostel and the work being done by the Salvation Army on behalf of the soldiers.

MORE TAXATION.

INCOMES AND CUSTOMS.

BUDGET NEXT MONTH.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

Warnings have been plentiful that the Federal Ministry proposes to introduce heavy additional taxation. Financial proposals are now engaging the close attention of Ministers.

To-day the Cabinet sat during the morning and reviewed the financial position.

Subsequently, Mr. Watt said the Cabinet had settled some of the outstanding features of the budget, which would be submitted to Parliament on its resumption on September 18.

It is known a very large sum will be obtained by the imposition of additional income tax, and in some cases it is said the increase may be about 20 per cent. Tariff rates on various items will be increased, while tea, kerosene, and other commodities at present on the free list will become dutiable.

ONE BIG UNION.

TO PROMOTE REVOLUTIONARY STRIKES.

MR. BEEBY'S VIEWS.

WAGGA WAGGA, Friday.

Mr. G. S. Beeby made a statement of his views on one big union. Mr. Beeby said that the effort to reorganise unionism was clearly the result of the big strike last year, and the men who were at the head of the new movement were the men who were responsible for that disastrous experience. Fortunately, the object of the leaders of the new movement was stated in explicit terms. The object had been pointedly placed before the public by Mr. Garden (secretary of the Sydney Trades and Labour Council). Mr. Garden, in an official statement, said that his new organisation had no sympathy with any proposal to make workmen contented and happy. They refused to participate in any reform movement that might be introduced to improve industrial standards and create conditions in which strikes would play an unimportant part. Mr. Garden said unionism did not want to create conditions of contentment, but should maintain and accentuate discontent until the unionists were sufficiently organised to brush Parliament aside, and by what he called "a peaceful revolution" take over the government of the Commonwealth.

It is just as well we should know what the proposed ideals of one big union are, continued Mr. Beeby. We have had some experiences during the last two years of the attitude which the extremists in trade union circles take towards Parliamentary Government. The Parliamentary Labour party, more particularly in State politics, has practically handed over its functions to outside bodies. Mr. Storey, Mr. Osborne, and other old Labourites, under pressure of the new element which got into the party at the last election, have quite frankly accepted their orders from outside committees. Two years ago Mr. Storey was a frank supporter of the Allies in the great war. To-day, under pressure, he is constantly explaining why he deems it his duty to follow the orders which have been issued by outside committees. Two years ago Mr. Storey and his followers believed in the principle of industrial arbitration, and urged the workers to resort to arbitration rather than to strike; but to-day, with the fear of one big union in their hearts, the State Labour party frantically endorses every strike which takes place, however unreasonable it may be, and urges unionists to scrap the arbitration laws for which they are personally responsible.

During the last 12 months we have, fortunately, he said, not been involved in any serious industrial trouble, but in the coal-mining industry particularly foolish and ill-considered stoppages of work have still taken place. Most of these have not injured anybody but the workers themselves, but in no case has the Parliamentary Labour party taken any action or assisted the Government to persuade the coal miners to abandon this suicidal policy and work under the liberal industrial machinery which the Amended Arbitration Act of 1918 provides. Although the one big union is ostensibly formed for industrial purposes, there is a political motive behind it. There is no doubt that the aim of the leaders of the movement is to keep industrial disorder alive and work towards revolutionary strikes in future. Fortunately, a large section of the workers of the State still believe that the country, which affords equal franchise to all, will not tolerate revolutionary doctrines. So long as the Labour party allows itself to be associated with men who openly preach revolution, there is not much danger of it being entrusted with the power of government.

NATIONAL PARTY.

REPLY TO MR. RICKARD.

The attention of the Premier was drawn yesterday to the report of the speech made at the Millions Club luncheon on the previous day by Mr. Rickard. Mr. Holman said he did not wish to enter into any controversy with Mr. Rickard, but there were three statements of fact made in the "Herald" report which must be corrected.

"It is stated in the report of Mr. Rickard's speech that I announced a deficit in my financial statement, but did not indicate any steps to be taken to clear it off," said the Premier. "I announced a surplus for last year, and forecasted a surplus for this year.

"Then it is reported that he stated that no students from the State Aviation School have gone to the front. As a matter of fact, there are 53 of these students at present at the front, and doing excellent service," explained Mr. Holman.

"It is also stated that the National party won the last elections on the promise of retrenchment," he added. "It might be possible to say that we won the elections on the promise to maintain the Aviation School and to supply homes for returned soldiers. They were certainly parts of our policy which gained the approval of the majority. In the sense in which Mr. Rickard probably used the word, there was no promise of retrenchment. There was a promise of every kind of reasonable economy, and that promise has been amply fulfilled.

Mr. A. Rickard writes, stating he should have been reported as saying in his speech at the Taxpayers' Association luncheon: "I can confidently say that not one more flying man was at the front in consequence of the State Aviation School, as if they had not been trained at the State Aviation School they would have joined the Federal Aviation School at Point Cooke."

PARADE OF TROOPS.

ON WEDNESDAY NEXT.

Mr. Downs Johnstone, hon. organiser, announces that important drafts of Australian reinforcement troops will arrive in Sydney by special train on Wednesday next, at 12.35 and 12.30 p.m., and will form up in parade order, and move off at 12.45, headed by the Military District Guard Band, along the usual route, via Eddy-avenue, Rawson-place, George-street, Martin-place, Moore-street, Castlereagh-street, Bligh-street, Bent-street, Macquarie-street, and Cathedral-street.

There will be, as usual, a special enclosure for the immediate relations and friends of soldiers, and tickets will be issued by the Military authorities to the men in camp.

No parades have taken place in Sydney for some time, and it is hoped that all business houses and public buildings will display flags and bunting, and that the general public and "strong posts" will give the soldiers a hearty send-off. Special arrangements are being made by several "strong posts," choirs, and bands.

SEDITION BILL.

Replying yesterday to the suggestion that has been made that the discussion on the Sedition Suppression Bill had been postponed in Parliament on Thursday night last, and also to the direct hint that had been given publicly to the effect that the bill would be withdrawn, the Premier (Mr. Holman) said there was no foundation for either the one or the other. Mr. Fuller, Chief Secretary, and Mr. Fitzpatrick, Assistant Treasurer and Minister for Mines, were with Mr. Holman when he made the statement. He said that Ministers scouted the idea that there was ever any intention of going on with the second reading of the bill on Thursday night. When the financial debate was postponed in deference to the wishes of the leader of the Opposition the opportunity was taken of making some progress with a few minor measures. The Premier added that it was now proposed to continue the financial debate on Tuesday and Wednesday nights next, and that the second reading of the Sedition Bill would probably be taken on Thursday night next.

PAST BAPAUME

BRITISH PRESSING ON

FOE'S GREAT LOSSES

The British have made further important progress on the Somme front.

They have taken and passed Bapaume, and further south have reached the west bank of the river opposite Peronne.

The French captured Noyon after bitter fighting, and have crossed the Ailette between the Oise and the Aisne at several points.

DETAILS OF ALLIED PROGRESS.

LONDON, Aug. 30.

Since July 18 the Allies have captured 120,000 prisoners and 2000 guns. Of these the British since August 8 have captured 47,000 prisoners and 600 guns.

The correspondent of the United Press states that the Canadians, by bombing, cleared out the famous concrete tunnel running westward of Bullecourt to the Sensee River. Many Germans were killed, but more were taken prisoners.

A New York message says the British are reported to be within 1000 yards of the Drocourt-Queant line.

Bapaume has been captured and Peronne is outflanked on the south.

The British have reached Maurepas (southward and slightly west of Combles), Morval, and Les Boeufs (north of Combles), and have nearly reached Le Transloy, which is just west of the Bapaume-Peronne high road. They took Ginchy (north-east of Combles).

On the southern flank Noyon has been taken, and a New York report says the French have captured Breiul, on the Canal du Nord (south-east of Nesle). The French approach to Ham threatens to outflank the Germans between the Somme and Chauny.

BRITISH REPORTS.

Sir Douglas Haig on Thursday night reported: Our successful attacks since August 8 delivered by the Fourth, Third, and First British armies, rendered the enemy's positions on the old Somme battlefield untenable. The enemy has been forced, on the whole front from Bapaume southwards, to abandon with great loss of prisoners, guns, and material, as well as killed and wounded, ground which he gained at such heavy cost in March and April this year.

We have reached the west bank of the Somme opposite Brie and Peronne, and have captured Hem (north-west of Peronne).

Northward of Hem we are advancing on the general line of Combles, Morval, Baulincourt, and Fremicourt (east of Bapaume). Sharp fighting occurred on this front, where we inflicted many casualties on the enemy, who attempted to delay our progress.

The New Zealanders took possession of Bapaume in the morning, driving out the enemy rearguards. Northward of Bapaume the enemy is still endeavouring to maintain his positions. After hard fighting about Vraucourt, Ecoust St. Mein, and Hendicourt-les-Cagnicourt, we made progress, taking many prisoners.

Northward of the Scarpe we re-established our positions on Greenland Hill, from which the enemy forced us back on Tuesday.

We further progressed astride the Lawe River, northward of Bethune, and eastward of Nieppe Forest.

Low clouds and rain interfered with flying on Wednesday. We dropped six tons and fired many machine-gun rounds on enemy troops and transport in the battle zone. Aeroplanes at various points delivered small arm ammunition by parachute. We destroyed two aeroplanes. Two British are missing. Our night fliers dropped 11½ tons of bombs, mainly on Cambrai Junction and an aerodrome eastward of St. Quentin.

FRENCH FRONT.

A French communique issued on Thursday afternoon states: Violent bombardments occurred at night-time on the Somme.

Enemy raids in Lorraine were without result.

We made two raids in the Champagne, taking 15 prisoners. The front was calm elsewhere.

A French communique at midnight on Thursday stated: During the day we progressed in the region of the Canal du Nord, which we skirt on its whole length, except towards Catigny and Sermaise. We captured Bois du Qiesnoy, north-east of Ecuvilly, and Beaurains.

Southwards the battle became bitterly violent. We carried Noyon by sheer fighting and reached the southern edge of Happlincourt. East of Noyon we gained a footing on the southern slopes of Mont St. Simon. We took Laudrimart and Morlincourt, taking several hundred prisoners.

We crossed the Ailette between the Oise and the Aisne, at several points north and south of Champs, despite resistance. We have captured Cany and Pont St. Mard.

THE AMERICANS.

A message from Washington says General Pershing reports that the Americans were forced to retire from Bazoches and Fismette (north of the Vesle).

United States troops are advancing with the French north-west of Juvigny.

Other reports state that the United States troops have gained ground at Bazoches. The Germans captured Fismette after all night fighting, and many hand-to-hand encounters. The Americans are now counter-attacking around Fismette.

According to Washington advices a Franco-American attack at Juvigny (north of Soissons) resulted in a thousand-yard gain, the approaches by railway being seized.

GERMAN STATEMENT.

(Admiralty—per Wireless Press.)

A German official report states: We repulsed five English attacks between the Scarpe and the Sensee. We thrice recaptured Boiry Notre Dame (east of Arras), but the enemy's evening attack retook it. We repulsed seven attacks southward of Croisilles and south-eastward of Mory. The enemy advanced beyond Dompierre, Belloy, Nesle, Beaulieu, and Suzoy. Noyon now lies in front of our battlefront.

THE ENEMY'S RETIREMENT.

The Australian Press Association learns that it is now sufficiently clear the enemy intends to retire to a shorter line, where he can obtain a better defensive position and economise his troops, a necessity which his man-power situation makes urgent. It is not improbable he will retire to the Hindenburg line, but there are reasons to think he will try to postpone this as long as possible, and may hope to defer it until the weather renders active operations impracticable.

The moral effect of such a retirement both on Germany and the German army would be very great. The enemy's present intention, therefore, is to make a stand on some line west of the Hindenburg line. There is a very favourable line along Allette, the Oise, the Somme, and the Tortille Rivers.

It remains to be seen whether Germany will be allowed to carry out the retirement according to this plan, in gradual stages.

The British advance on both sides of the Scarpe is a serious threat to this line, as we are already almost in contact with Hindenburg's Droucourt-Queant switch. It is clear the enemy cannot allow us to advance much further in this quarter without endangering his whole plan, hence his determined resistance on this part of the front. The German resistance varied greatly on different parts of the battlefield. Although some divisions fought with their old determination, others are surrendering very freely.

While it is necessary to guard against exaggerated expectations of a German collapse, nevertheless it is true the fighting during the past month has shown evidence of notable deterioration in the German moral. We have proof of increasing lack of discipline, insubordination, and disobedience of orders. A captured order speaks of the refusal of some new drafts to enter the trenches. Others mention the extreme laxity of officers in dealing with most serious military offences.

The Washington correspondent of the "New York Times" says that the greatest satisfaction is expressed in military circles over the Allied progress on the West Front. They express confidence that Marshal Foch will be able to drive the Germans behind the line they occupied last spring.

PALESTINE.

LIGHT HORSE PRAISED.

A TRYING SUMMER.

CAIRO, Aug. 29.

Mr Harry Gullett, official correspondent with the Australian forces, telegraphs:—

The summer spent by the Australians in the valley of the Jordan has been the most severe since the crossing of the Canal, the heat being extreme. The shade temperature for months was never below 100 deg., and frequently above 102 deg. The enemy was always aggressive, and fights were frequent and sharp. Our lines have been resolutely maintained, with heavy Turkish and German losses. The highly successful campaign for the prevention of malaria, conducted by the medical service, alone made the valley habitable. The sick wastage was relatively low.

The weather is rapidly improving, and men and horses are in fine fighting trim.

General Allenby, in presenting 38 decorations to the Anzac mounted division, warmly congratulated the troops on their brilliant and consistent work. He expressed his always increasing appreciation of the fighting qualities of the Light Horse, and referred to the great part being played by the Australians in France.

FEATS OF BRITISH AIRMEN.

Mr. Massey, official correspondent with the British forces in Palestine, telegraphing on Wednesday, stated:—

The air force in Palestine remain in complete mastery of the air. During the past few weeks they destroyed 11 enemy machines and drove down six. All save one fell in the Turkish lines, showing that we have to seek out the enemy, who avoids combat as much as possible.

The Australian airmen have a sterling record throughout the campaign. The past month has been one of great triumph. Their share of honours alone prove their high efficiency, skill, and daring. The Australian squadron in one month was awarded 12 distinguished flying crosses. The offensive spirit of these intrepid airmen is well illustrated by a morning's work. Two Australian pilots on August 24 went out on patrol well behind the line of Turkish entrenchments. When over the plain of Sharon they espied an enemy two-seater. They rapidly overtook it. Instead of the latter diving it kept level and fired many signal lights, being obviously a decoy. One pilot swung round and found six Hun scouts sweeping down from a 1000ft higher altitude.

As the leader approached the Australian side-slipped, and the Hun passed over him, and he was seen no more. The Australian pilot then went for one of the next two 'planes, and sent a selected machine crashing to the ground, between Burin and Tulkeram. The other Australian having shot down the two-seater in the Hanutah area, joined his comrade in "a dogfight." They brought down another single-seater, which was driven down out of control. Another Hun machine was in flames close to Tulkeram.

In further fighting over Tulkeram, another single-seater was driven down out of control, but our airmen were too busy to watch for the crash. They went in chase of the remaining 'planes. An enemy scout, finding he was being overtaken, was forced to land near Messudieh, where he collided with a motor lorry on the main road, and was completely wrecked. Four machines were accounted for in the fight. The bag almost certainly amounted to five out of seven, but our airmen are only counting certainties; and call it four.

MR. PAGE'S RETIREMENT.

The New York newspapers regret Mr. Walter Page's retirement from the position of United States Ambassador to Britain.

The "New York Times" says that Mr. Page worthily represented America, and filled a position of great responsibility with remarkable success. America and Britain were bound together now as never before.

The "New York Herald" says that Mr. Page fulfilled a delicate and onerous task with tact and sound judgment. His successor must be capable of fulfilling an important diplomatic post.

RUSSIA.

SIBERIAN COUP D'ETAT.

ALLIES INTERPOSE.

LONDON, Aug. 29.

Advices from Vladivostock state that Pleshkoff, acting on behalf of General Horvat, assumed control of the Russian military forces. The Siberian Government was nonplussed by the suddenness of the movement, and was unable to organise opposition.

The Allied representatives in Vladivostock told General Horvat that the Siberian Government's authority would be sustained. General Horvat is a Monarchist, anti-German, and anti-Bolshevik. He appointed a temporary Cabinet in Siberia, and declared the Government programme would include the renewal of all the treaties with the Allied Powers, also declaring his intention "to act in complete accord with our brave Allies." Lieutenant-General Pleshkoff, with General Horvat's aid, attempted to assume control of all the Russian artillery forces in the Far East.

CZECHS RESUME OFFENSIVE.

The Peking correspondent of the "New York Times" says that General Semenoff resumed the offensive with Czech reinforcements, and drove the Bolsheviks from Natstevski station, west of Menchuli. Many Bolsheviks were taken prisoner.

He adds that the Japanese are fighting at Dauria. The Chinese are not opposing the presence of Japanese in Manchuria.

The Czech-Slovaks, who are fighting on the Volga, have cabled to Professor T. G. Nosaryk (President of the Czecho-Slovak Council) high appreciation of British recognition of the Czecho-Slovak nation, and the aid rendered them by the expedition to Russia.

The Australian Press Association learns that the peasant rising in Ukraine continues, and serious conflicts have occurred with the German and Austrian troops. The Germans are finding increasing difficulty in exploiting the country. The Czechs in Siberia continue to progress eastward. They have captured Verkhnewdinsk, 60 miles east of Lake Baikal. General Semenoff has advanced into Siberia, and the Japanese have appeared on this front.

The Turks have not made any further attack on Baku. The arrival of British troops has had a most encouraging effect on the population.

ALBANIA.

ALLIES SOUTH OF BERAT.

The Australian Press Association learns that the Austrians in the Balkans commenced an offensive on the 22nd, and succeeded in capturing Berat, the Italians withdrawing to the Malakastra-Cafagiava-Cafagiumaka line. The French left wing being withdrawn in conformity with the movement, the Italian line now runs five miles south of Berat. The Malakastra ridge is important, because it commands the harbour of Valona. It is essential that the Italians should retain the position.

AUSTRIAN ADMISSION.

(Admiralty—per Wireless Press.)

An Austrian official message says: In Albania the enemy captured positions on the southern part of Tomor Mountain and between Janica and the Vojusa.

UNITING THE WORKERS.

TO WIN THE WAR.

A message from Washington says that Mr. Samuel Gompers has arrived in London with other American Labourites, and will attend the British Trade Congress and Allied Labour Conference, to be held either in London or Paris about September 16.

The purpose of Mr. Gompers's visit is more closely to unite the workers in Allied countries to win the war.

A message from New York says that Captain Seddon, son of the late Mr. R. Seddon, a former New Zealand Prime Minister, who has completed a speaking tour of the shipyards, has started a second country-wide tour to encourage the workers to exert maximum efforts in the war activities.

MR. HUGHES.

HONOURED IN ABERDEEN.

Mr. Hughes received the Freedom of the City of Aberdeen to-day, the ceremony being followed by a civic luncheon, after which he opened the Chamber of Commerce. Australian wounded soldiers quartered in Aberdeen assisted to welcome Mr. Hughes.

The Lord Provost, Mr. James Taggart, in presenting the Freedom of the City, mentioned that Lord Roberts was Aberdeen's last Free Burgess.

Mr. Hughes said that this enhanced the honour. During his visit in 1917 he did what he was able to persuade the people of Britain to adopt compulsory service for defence. He was glad to think that time had proved everything Lord Roberts had said was true a thousand times, and people had the bitterest reasons for regretting that they had slumbered when they should have been awake, and had been indifferent when they have been alert. They had allowed the golden hour to slip by.

GERMANY'S DEAD.

A published estimate, in which the German authorities admit that the German killed total 1,400,000, is greatly under the mark. The real figure is well over 2,000,000, and may be very much greater.

THE GERMAN COLONIES.

The Australian section of the London Chamber of Commerce has unanimously carried Mr. Jenkins's resolution, "That in Australia's interest the captured Pacific Islands should, under no conditions, be again permitted to become German possessions."

SHIPBUILDING RECORD.

Messrs. Harland and Wolff have established a world's record by completing a standard ship in five days after launching. The machinery was put in on the 22nd inst, and all trials were completed on Monday.

AMERICAN AIR MINISTRY.

A Washington message says that Mr. Baker (Secretary for War) has announced that Mr. John Ryan has been appointed Assistant Secretary for War, with the responsibility of administering the Army Air Service, which is practically tantamount to being appointed Air Minister.

GENERAL CABLE NEWS.

Cyril Landale, late of Deniliquin, a captain of the King's Royal Rifles, has been killed in action.

Mr. Hodge (Minister for Pensions), speaking at Wimbledon, said it was intended to give the same treatment to soldiers who had lost limbs in previous wars as to those who had lost limbs in the present war.

The "New York Herald's" Washington correspondent telegraphs that the new War Revenue Bill will be the largest in the history of the world. It will raise £1,600,000,000.

A Washington message says the Fuel Administration has asked all motor car owners not to use their cars on Sunday, in order to save petrol for war purposes. It is estimated that on a single Sunday approximately seven million gallons can be saved. Compulsory rationing of petrol is not considered necessary at the present time.

WAR NOTES.

PROGRESS ON WESTERN FRONT.

Up to a late hour last night only brief official details of the later developments on the Western front had been received. The full communiques had not come to hand, but it was clear from the general tone of the messages that further important progress had been made at several points along the battlefront, although at places the resistance was becoming more pronounced. Southward of the Somme the enemy retirement has continued along the greater part of the front between the river and Noyon, but the exact extent of the French advance had not been indicated at the time this note was written. As was expected, however, the enemy made use of the Nesle-Noyon Canal, described in the cablegrams as the Canal du Nord, to hold up the French pursuit between those towns. Sir Douglas Haig is able to announce a further important advance across the old Somme battlefield, northward of the Somme, and the fact that his forces reached a general line between Combles, Morval, Beaulencourt, and Fremicourt, leaves no doubt as to the accuracy of the earlier messages announcing the capture of Bapaume. Beaulencourt is on the Bapaume-Peronne road, about two and a half miles south-eastward of the former town, while Fremicourt is about the same distance along the Bapaume-Cambrai road, north-east of Bapaume. The British front is therefore now well to the eastward of the town. The position above and below the Scarpe, which is of particular importance, is not quite clear at the time of writing, as the portion of Sir Douglas Haig's message referring to it has not been received. Earlier reports, however, suggest that the enemy is counter-attacking heavily on the northern side of the river, and this is probably an attempt to counteract the very serious advance which has lately been developing southward of the river.

MEN AND MATERIAL.

The statement that the Allies have captured 120,000 prisoners and 2000 guns since Marshal Foch delivered his counter-stroke on July 18 last gives a comprehensive idea of the serious effect upon the enemy of the fighting during the past six weeks. If the very heavy price which he paid for his earlier gains reduced his man-power to such an extent as to convince him that the attainment of his objectives was out of the question, the losses which he is still sustaining are sufficiently serious to have a considerable effect upon the resistance which he will be able to offer when the growing Allied armies set out to achieve the decisive success which is necessary if German militarism is not to be permitted to emerge successfully from the struggle. During their great retirement towards Amiens the Allies were able to realise the full effects of such a reverse. The amount of booty alone which falls into the hands of a steadily advancing army is no small consideration. Its possession strengthens the advancing forces and correspondingly weakens the defenders, both as far as their power of effective defence is concerned, and especially with regard to their organisation behind the lines. Those acting upon the defence take practically no prisoners while the great majority of their wounded fall into the hands of the advancing enemy, and, as all prisoners taken represent permanent losses to their country's fighting forces the total losses of the defenders may prove greater than those of the attackers, even though the latter may have actually sustained a larger number of casualties. This great swing of the offensive pendulum across French territory since March last will doubtless result in the present year proving a record as far as the total number of prisoners taken by both sides on the Western front is concerned. The total number of guns taken by the Allies since July 18 is not yet equal to that which the Italians lost after the Caporetto reverse, nor to the amount claimed by the enemy as the total haul of his recent offensives; but Germany has already been forced to make sacrifices similar to those which Russia's defection enabled her to compel her opponents to submit to, and it should not be long before the Allies are able to bring the scales well down in their favour.

AUSTRALIAN PRESS DELEGATION.

LONDON, Aug. 30.

The Australian Agents-General entertained the Australian Press Mission at dinner at the Automobile Club. Sir Charles G. Wade, who presided, said the most urgent problem in Australia is man power. The mother-country must bear in mind the policy of keeping for the Dominions those likely to make good citizens overseas. An enormous number of men will seek homes after the war. He hoped they would be sent to some part of his Majesty's dominions. Australia must have more men if she were going to progress and win untold millions lying beneath the soil. Therefore, emigrnts must be encouraged to make their homes inside the Imperial Dominions. He trusted the information which the mission would gain here would be seen and sown on fruitful soil.

Sir W. J. Sowden (of the Adelaide "Register"), replying, said he hoped the visit would be followed by a British Press visit to Australia. The time had come when the country which sent the greatest proportion of population to the war should have something to say with regard to its settlement. Australia would be more than disappointed if Germany ever again were allowed to set foot in the South Seas.

Sir Joseph Cook proposed the health of the Agents-General, and Sir T. B. Robinson (Queensland) responded.

Mr. J. O. Fairfax ("Sydney Morning Herald"), proposed the health of the chairman.

EQUAL PAY FOR WOMEN.

AWARD FOR WOMEN TRAFFIC WORKERS.

LONDON, Aug. 29.

The Press Bureau states that the Committee on Production has awarded women tramway and omnibus workers an advance of 5/ weekly over the pre-war rates, thus equalising rates with male workers.

The Government has appointed a committee to investigate and report on the relations between the wages of women and men generally.

RETURNED SOLDIERS.

SCHEME FOR ASSISTANCE.

LONDON, Aug. 29.

Sir Joseph Cook, who is visiting the Australian camps and hospitals, addressed the men at Hurdcoutt, Parkhouse, and Salisbury. He explained the Government's various proposals to benefit returned soldiers.

The Repatriation scheme, he said, was not a substitute for pensions, but additional. Also, the Government was arranging with employers and trade unions to provide soldiers with employment in the skilled trades. The Government was supplementing the earned money to the ruling rate in each trade until the soldier was qualified. The Government was also arranging training and technical schools. The Australian people were determined to do their best for those who had fought for Australia.

JOHANNESBURG IRONMOULDERS.

CAPETOWN, Aug. 30.

The ironmoulders in the Johannesburg workshops and mines are threatening to strike for 162/ a week, irrespective of the pending negotiations between the Federation of Trades and the Chamber of Mines. Only 150 men are involved, but the principle of independent action is causing anxiety in mining and industrial quarters.

BOXING CONTEST.

LONDON, Aug. 30.

An open-air boxing contest has been arranged at Chelsea on Saturday between Jimmy Wilde and Joe Conn, the former to receive £2500 in any event, and Conn about [illegible] owing to the Boxing Control Board's ultimatum, the winner now receives £1620 and the loser £1080.

LATE WAR NEWS.

MAN-POWER.

BRITAIN'S GREAT NEED.

LONDON, Aug. 30.

Major-General Maurice, military correspondent of the "Daily Chronicle," writes:—The present offensive, great though its promise is, lacks the weight to carry us to complete victory. The American armies will give the necessary weight, but the war will be prolonged unless the British armies are kept up. The question anxiously asked in France is, Will they keep up the drafts? If we rely on the annual contingent of 19-year-old boys and our recovered sick and wounded, we cannot maintain our forces at full strength, and the war will be prolonged. Every able-bodied man possible must be sent to the front. While Ireland is out of the war we are not doing our best. Our oversea expeditions must be reduced to vital necessities.

We must appeal to the dominions to look to their man-power. If Australia could see at work her glorious troops, who saved Amiens in April, and now, with reduced ranks, are driving the enemy along the Somme, the Australian ranks would not long remain unfilled.

COMBLES CAPTURED.

A New York message announces that the British have captured Combles, and have penetrated several miles beyond.

The British east of Arras gained 2000 yards, and captured Reincourt, Bullecourt, Hendicourt, Les Cagnicourt, and Clery sur Somme.

AMERICAN FRONT.

An American official communique on Friday stated: Northward of the Aisne we progressed in the region of Juvincourt, despite strong enemy resistance. Our patrols along the Vesle and in the Woeuvre brought in prisoners.

ENEMY'S RETREAT.

Mr. Philip Gibbs telegraphs:—From the hills north of the Scarpe to south of the Somme the enemy is retreating, trying to get away behind his rearguards before he is caught or killed. The machine-gunners in places are fiercely resisting in order to gain time for a more orderly retreat. This defence is strongest in the northern half of the Australian front, perhaps in order to delay Peronne's fall until the enormous stores have been removed. But further north the German army is stealing away in the darkness and daylight. Our men are trudging after them in great elation. They eagerly press on until they are unable to go farther because they have the enemy on the run. Every hour brings news of more villages and woods recaptured.

Mr. Percival Phillips telegraphs: The German High Command is desperately making an effort to check the advance at the northern end of the line. He threw in every available man last night in two attacks by four divisions, chiefly against the Canadians, between the Cambrai-road and the Scarpe. He was beaten back after hard fighting. Much of yesterday's fighting in the direction of Hendecourt and Bullecourt was again of the rare old-fashioned sort, gunners, despite poor visibility, shelling the fleeing transport by direct observation, the Australians in the south performing the difficult task. The enemy's withdrawal hinges on the northern end, and is obliged to swing back at the greatest speed between Bapaume and the Somme; but the Australians have the necessary speed to keep in touch. German resistance at Blanches is stiffening, as the Germans are anxious to destroy the bridges before they put the river between themselves and the Australians, whom thy dislike so heartily.

STRIKING SUCCESSES.

The Australian Press Association learns that reports from the front, timed 3.30 p.m., show the British and French have met with striking successes. To-day the French have taken Noyon, and the British have captured Bapaume, and have reached the Bapaume-Beaulencourt road. Advance troops are menacing Beaulencourt. We have taken possession of the high ground north-east of Guedecourt, and have also reached the western outskirts of Maurepas. A striking advance was made in the Somme region. We reached the south and eastern banks of the river between Peronne and Happlincourt, seriously menacing the enemy within Peronne. Two important bridgeheads are in our hands.

AUSTRALIAN SECTOR.

Next to the position in the far north the possibilities of the situation in the Australian sector commands most attention. Critics discuss the chances of the Germans withdrawing from Peronne in order to defend the high ground of Mont St. Quentin, north-east of Peronne, which affords many opportunities of fighting a long rearguard action. Apparently the Germans are strengthening the defences of Mont St. Quentin, which, in the former retreat, proved very stiff obstacles.

The Australians continue to receive the highest praise for their natural cleverness in overcoming the enemy's defensive centres. They seem instinctively to know how to combine relentless pursuit with defence against a counter-attack when the latter policy is calculated to inflict substantial loss.

FAMOUS SCOTCH DIVISION.

The feature of yesterday's developments on the West front was the sudden reappearance of the famous 51st Scottish Division, which recaptured Greenland Hill and distinguished itself west of Reims in July, gaining unusual praise from the French and Americans, while the Germans place it as the first in order of terribleness among the British divisions.

ENEMY'S REPORT.

(Admiralty—per Wireless Press.)

The German evening official wireless message says: Fighting occurred in front of our new lines eastward of Bapaume, Peronne, and Noyon.

CZAREVITCH'S DEATH CONFIRMED.

Several rumours were current in London recently, stating the Czarevitch was dead. The "Daily Telegraph" states that confirmation of the death reached London yesterday. The "Daily Telegraph" adds that the death can now be accepted as true, though no details are available.

MR. HUGHES AT ABERDEEN.

Mr. Hughes, in receiving the Freedom of the City of Aberdeen, said he accepted it as a tribute to the young Commonwealth whose soldiers were proud to fight alongside Scotland's glorious sons. Australians desired no better comrades.

Mr. Hughes was afterwards entertained to luncheon. The Aberdonian speakers emphasised their close association with Australia as pioneers in the shipping trade to that country.

The streets of Aberdeen were crowded to welcome Mr. Hughes. Lord Aberdeen and Lord Minto, and leading Aberdonians were present. The gallery of the City Hall was filled with Australian soldiers on sick leave or furlough.

The Lord Provost added that the Australians' work on Gallipoli would stand out in letters of gold for all time, and we were prouder still of their prowess in France. He paid a tribute to Mr. Hughes's efforts to exterminate German influence over the metal industry. He was now engaged in planning what the Empire's policy should be after the war, and if some of those present were not satisfied with his plans and specifications, and had a better plan, they should trot it out.

Mr. Hughes in the evening addressed 4000. There was great enthusiasm at the news of the capture of Bapaume and Noyon, the audience cheering. Mr. Hughes said Bapaume had a deep interest for Australia. Thousands of his countrymen had laid down their lives there. He delivered a stirring speech on the organisation of Empire trade, and making provision for better industrial conditions. He declared that Australia after the war would never allow a German vessel to trade with Australia.

Mr. R. Munro (Secretary for Scotland) said that whether or not they agreed with all Mr. Hughes's views, they must admit that he had made a profound impression here. Mr. Munro added that there were practical difficulties in announcing any definite British policy at present. It would be unwise to do so before the circumstances fully and clearly were known respecting the outcome of the war.

MESOPOTAMIA.

General Marshall's first despatch covers the operations in Mesopotamia from October 1, 1917, to March 31, 1918, and details of the successful expedition up the Euphrates against Turkish concentration beyond Hit, also the operations at Diala River, ejecting the Turks from Khanikin, and opening the road to Northern Persia. The despatch explains the care taken not to camp the troops within the holy cities of Kerbela and Nedjef. Some irreconcilables at Nedjef fired on troops exercising near the town, causing a few casualties. General Marshall, not desiring to injure a town so full of sacred memories to the Mahomedans, decided to punish two of the leading shiekhs responsible for the offence, but the shiekhs fled and were outlawed.

Captain W. M. Marshall, political officer at Nedjef, was murdered on March 21. The British surrounded the town by military posts, which were joined with barbed wire, until those implicated were given up.

SIBERIAN SITUATION.

According to a Tokio message, it is officially estimated the Bolsheviks and Germans in Ussuri number 8000, with 14 fieldguns. The enemy on the 23rd attacked the Czechs holding the left wing, and forced them back. The Japanese stopped the enemy, and assumed the offensive on the 24th, and drove him north.

IRISH RECRUITS.

Five hundred recruits were obtained in Dublin in a fortnight, despite the Sinn Feiners' obstruction.

AUSTRALIANS PUSH ON.

(COMMONWEALTH OFFICIAL REPRESENTATIVE.)

LONDON, Aug. 29.

The Australian infantry, at the moment of writing, is about two miles from the outskirts of Peronne. The town itself lies across the Somme. The Germans, whose retirement was hastened by the taking of Frise and Foucaucourt, cannot expect to allow the Somme crossings to go without heavy fighting. Possibly, he will attempt a stand permanently on the eastern side of the river, in order to keep this obstacle between him and our tanks. The next step in the retirement would be the Hindenberg line. An important fact in the present situation is that the British are already through part of this great system opposite Arras, and are now facing the Drocourt-Queant switch-line, running due north from Bullecourt, which was built by the Germans in order to provide against a break through during the Bullecourt-Arras battles, but then not reached by us.

The Australians yesterday and last night kept close on the heels of the Germans, never permitting the enemy to get out of touch. Yesterday afternoon the Victorians made a regular attack on the village of Frise, south of the Somme, which was holding up our advance. We took the village, and captured 100 prisoners. The Germans generally appeared to be fighting harder on the high ground near the angle in the river in the north than on the southern flank. North of the Somme there was certain reconnoitring with an engineer ahead of his men. He was nearly shot by a German machine-gun. Australian infantry north of the Somme are now on the outskirts of Hem. The Germans captured here say they were ordered to withdraw fighting. South of the river many parties of Germans are seen running away along the canal bank. Last evening Australian infantry captured Feuilleres, Herbecourt, Falucourt, Assevillers, Barleux, Belloy, and are already near the outskirts of Villers Carbonnel, where the road turns off towards Peronne, and at Barleux, within a little over a mile from the Somme Canal. The Australian corps has now recovered 125 square miles of country, nearly forty villages, most of which, however, are in ruins.

CUSTOMS RESTRICTIONS.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE PROTEST.

Mr. C. E. D. Meares presided yesterday at a public meeting held at the Sydney Chamber of Commerce. The meeting was called to consider the new War Precautions Regulations, restricting the withdrawal of goods from ships and from bonded warehouses.

Mr. Mark Sheldon said that under the new regulations the clearance of goods would be restricted, except with the consent of the Minister, to the amount of the monthly normal requirements of a firm for the year ended June 30. The regulations would hurt the small men more than large firms, especially in regard to clearing seasonable goods. New firms would be badly hit—firms with little or no goods in bond. In an attempt to check profiteering the Federal Government was inflicting a hardship.

Mr. A. A. C. Cocks, M.L.A., moved.—

That the action of the Government in utilising the War Precautions Regulation to unnecessarily hamper the commercial community in its business transactions with the Customs Department is an inequitable use of its powers, for the following reasons:—

Indentors and importers generally are already greatly hampered by the unavoidable irregularity of shipping facilities, and cannot reasonably divide their requirements into monthly portions, as no regular monthly service exists. Many goods are imported in accordance with the seasons of the year, and whilst salable in suitable months of the year, are not distributable on the basis of one-twelfth each calendar month. Indentors, in the supply of goods to their various clients do not import the same class of goods year by year; therefore, no standard for monthly requirements can be equitably established. The mercantile community of New South Wales takes this opportunity of strongly protesting against the ever-increasing tendency to refer all decisions to Melbourne, thereby causing serious delays, additional expenses, and, in some instances, the losing of shipping facilities in the interval created; and considers that the fullest possible discretionary powers should be placed in the hands of the Collector of Customs at Sydney to deal with the many cases of hardship that are being created. The Federal Cabinet is respectfully requested: (1) To allow all those who habitually clear their goods at ships' side or from parcel post, to continue this practice; (2) to as speedily as possible withdraw the regulations in their entirety; and (3) to at once declare the new tariff.

The resolution was seconded by Mr. R. Marcus Clark, supported by Mr. J. N. Grace, and carried unanimously.

LONDON POLICE.

OUT ON STRIKE.

LONDON, Aug. 30.

The London Policemen's Union last night decided to strike for recognition of the union and for higher pay. The officials expect that 4000 will strike immediately.

Apparently the police strike is fairly general. In London it developed suddenly at midnight.

Later.

The London police declared they would strike at midnight unless an increase in pay was granted. Scotland Yard thereupon announced that the increased pay was authorised.

Normally the metropolitan city police numbered 23,200, but it is now estimated at 24,800. Their demands consist of a permanent addition of wages of 20/ weekly, plus 12½ per cent. war bonus; secondly, the reinstatement of Constable Thiel, provincial organiser, who was dismissed for association with the union; thirdly, official recognition of the union.

It is understood the report that the 20/ increase had been conceded was incorrect. In any case, the union insists on the other demands.

Officials declare the London pay is far below the provincial. It is expected between 4000 and 5000 will strike to-day. They will hold a mass meeting at Tower Hill this evening.

Scotland Yard authorities state they have no idea how far the union represents the police force. Some divisional officers deny the union has any large support.

Later.

The metropolitan police situation is obscure. It is reported the situation is easier, following on the offer of 20/ increase and the reinstatement of Thiel; but other reports announce that many police quitted their beats at midnight.

The "Daily Express" says the majority struck at midnight. The men at every police station except four refused further duty.

The "Morning Post" explains the suddenness of the strike, stating the Defence of the Realm Act prevented an official definitely declaring a strike, but kept bicycle runners in readiness to scour the beats announcing the strike. The "Morning Post" adds: "Meetings were held throughout London after midnight, and carried a resolution of their intention to remain on strike."

WAR LOAN.

GREAT ARMY OF WORKERS.

Three hundred and twenty local committees are now at work upon the seventh war loan in the State of New South Wales alone. Added to these are the authorised agents appointed by the committees. A formidable war loan army is, therefore, in being, ready for the great financial "push" advertised to be in full blast by September 16.

Open competition is now declared by the Central War Loan Committee for the first municipality or shire outside the metropolitan area to reach its quota. Hunter's Hill has the metropolitan lead. The Mayor (Alderman Windeyer) yesterday announced that it was £9650 above its £30,000 quota, thus being entitled to one bar to the Honour Flag, and on a fair way to win the second. Kuring-gai Shire is moving toward its objective of £100,000. A big meeting has been called for next Tuesday evening at Roseville, one of the suburbs within the shire, to try and knock £20,000 off the quota. Chatswood municipality, also on the North Shore, has now more than an eighth of its £80,000 quota in hand, while Woollahra is working strenuously to get the amount called for from the municipality (£100,000) in one hit next Monday evening. At Rockdale this afternoon the Lord Mayor will make an appeal at the Bowling Club. Later in the day he will look in upon the Petersham bowlers, with a view to their advance towards the £100,000 quota.

The part pastime clubs can play in the war loan is not being overlooked by the Central Committee. These have all been circularised, and some of the club secretaries have agreed to become active canvassers for subscriptions.

Organisations of every kind are being approached to lend a hand in the campaign. The headquarters of the various Friendly Societies have forwarded lists of their lodges throughout the State, in order that secretaries may be circularised to bring the claims of the loan before members.

Religious heads of all denominations have also been asked to make a pulpit appeal. The Moderator of the Presbyterian Assembly (Rev. David Smith) has issued a request to ministers of his church, "commending the appeal to their sympathy and support," and suggesting on Sunday, September 22, reference be made to the patriotic necessity of helping by this means to maintain our soldiers at the front. "I feel," writes the Moderator, "that our Presbyterian people will rise willingly to this as to all other calls upon their liberality and manhood."

At Newcastle the War Loan campaign is swinging into the advanced line. Committee men are daily addressing meetings at the collieries and large workshops. West Maitland has also an active committee. East Maitland held its first meeting last night.

Scone (£10,000) and Upper Hunter (£30,000) have combined forces. At a meeting held in the shire council Councillor H. L. White announced that Belltrees had assessed itself at £10,000. (Applause.) Mr. J. D. Stafford announced an instalment of £1000 in the loan, conditional upon four other townsmen of Scone coming forward with like amounts.

Picton is placing a large blackboard in front of the Town Hall to record daily progress towards the municipality's quota of £10,000. At the first meeting of the Murwillumbah local committee £1000 was forthcoming to the quota of £20,000. Murrumburrah has challenged Gundagai. At Moss Vale the quota of £10,000 has been doubled up with the shire's £15,000, and the town and district are being well organised to attain the £25,000 sought. During a picture show entertainment at Singleton £830 was subscribed to the loan. Singleton has now £3620 towards its £15,000 quota. A report from this town states that "the employees of a number of businesses are showing a very responsive spirit to the appeals." The triangular contest between Armidale, Glen Innes, and Tamworth is raging vigorously.

Gosford is the centre of war loan activity in Erina shire. Both at Gosford and Woy Woy the claims of the loan upon the purse of the people are being pressed. Wyong has also earnest workers, and good results are anticipated.

LAND AND INCOME TAX RETURNS.

To-day is the last day for lodgment of Federal land and income tax returns. The Deputy Commissioner states that all returns in the post to-day or Sunday will be treated as lodged within time.

INTERNED IRISH.

INQUIRY CLOSED.

MR. RALSTON'S ADDRESS.

THE CASE REVIEWED.

The public sittings of the inquiry, authorised under War Precautions regulations, into the question of the continued detention of Albert Thomas Dryer, Edmund M'Sweeney, Michael M'Ging, William M'Guinness, Maurice Dalton, Frank M'Keown, and Thomas Fitzgerald, were concluded by Mr. Justice Harvey yesterday.

Mr. A. G. Ralston, K.C., and Mr. Bathgate, appeared under instructions from the Commonwealth Crown Solicitor for the Minister for Defence, to place the facts before his Honor and to assist the inquiry; Mr. Sidney Mack, K.C., with him Mr. E. A. M'Tiernan, appeared for Dryer, M'Sweeney, M'Ging, and M'Guinness. Mr. M'Tiernan appeared for Fitzgerald; and Mr. Frank Brennan, LL.B., and Mr. J. J. Mulholland (Messrs. Collins and Mulholland as agents for Messrs. Brennan and Rundle, of Melbourne), for the two other men, Dalton and M'Keown.

His Honor intimated, just prior to the adjournment, that if anybody had any further evidence bearing on the case, he would be glad to receive it up to the time his report went in. He did not know when that would be.

A NEWSPAPER AND PAMPHLETS.

At this stage also, Mr. Mack asked his Honor to recommend to the Minister the suppression of "the seditious pamphlets and cartoons" that had been put in.

His Honor: Oh, yes. I cannot trust myself to speak with proper discretion of that sort of thing.

Mr. Mack said he also wished to suggest that the paper or firm, the "Watchman," should also be suppressed. "A paper or firm," he said, "that will tolerate literature of that sort is not fit to be allowed to carry on business in the Commonwealth, because it stirs up the very worst feelings."

"I think that is beyond the scope of my inquiry," said his Honor, with a smile.

His Honor asked, in the course of a brief argument, if he was to suggest that, if the "Watchman" were suppressed, then Irish unrest would cease. (Laughter.)

Mr. Mack said he did not go to that length.

Mr. M'Tiernan asked at the outset that a report should be called for as to Fitzgerald's exact condition of health. He understood that Fitzgerald was undergoing medical treatment before his internment, and had made certain representations to the authorities since.

"DELIBERATELY NON-SECTARIAN."

Mr. Ralston, in resuming his address by way of a review of the Crown case and of the case for the defence, said it was far-fetched to apply to the case any such argument as that the dissemination of certain sectarian literature might produce a feeling of irritation, and that it might lead to the formation of societies by way of a counter-blast.

His Honor: I do not think the activities of these men are sectarian at all; on the contrary, there is evidence that they are deliberately non-sectarian.

Mr. Ralston said that counsel for the defence had invited his Honor to recommend the release of these men, or, perhaps, some of them, upon a bond. That, however, was not a matter with which his Honor would deal in any shape or form. His Honor was asked to report as to what evidence the Minister might take into consideration, having regard to the safety of the Commonwealth. If his Honor were to make any such recommendation it could not possibly take away, even if the Minister saw fit, the latter's individual responsibility in this connection. His Honor, sitting as a high judicial officer, could not have all the matters which the Minister must have before him for consideration—matters not actually connected with the inquiry, but other matters; there must be information from other parts of the Empire which he must take into consideration.

His Honor: He is aware of military exigencies which I cannot be aware of.

Mr. Ralston asked, even if it were possible for his Honor to make such a recommendation, what good would be their bond when they had entered into an oath of a most stringent character. They had an ordinary bond on one side, and on the other this stringent oath to the Brotherhood. Would it weigh with them if an emergency happened and the Brotherhood called upon them? Could they depend upon them to be bound by an ordinary bond in lieu of that oath in the presence of their brothers of the Republican Brotherhood? What would be the good of imposing some monetary oath, coupled with some promise, if the Brotherhood called upon them?

THE I.R.B.

Evidence showed that brances of the I.R.B. existed in Melbourne and in Sydney and in Brisbane. Secondly, all the evidence showed that all these men were members of one or other of those brances; thirdly, that the object of the Brotherhood and the activities of these men were dangerous to the Commonwealth within its own boundaries, and to the Commonwealth, as part of the Empire; and fourthly, that enemy association was involved in the fact that they belonged to the Brotherhood. It had been suggested that the letter from Doran to Dalton, dated August 4, 1916, was part of some comic opera conspiracy. The letter, itself, was to a certain extent compromising; the other compromising thing was the acknowledgment that there did exist in so many words the I.R.B., and that certain people were members of it. This dancing class marked No. 2 was, he took it, a circular which was dated June 12, 1916. It was quite evident that this was a list making out the No. 2 section of the I.R.B. It began with M'Guinness, and the second name was that of M'Ging. All these names were not numbered; they had them A, B, C, down to J, making ten names. The names originally struck out on the top would be found to be those of men who already belonged to the first circle. It was evident that at some time between June 12, 1916, and the date of this letter, August 4, 1916, there had been careful consideration as to forming a No. 2 circle. Here they had what he submitted was not only reliable information, but information from a man who was within the Brotherhood, and who was speaking to the man who was head of the Brotherhood in this sense: That he (Dalton) belonged to it for the greatest number of years. Here they got a list of the two circles as complete. They found on the back complete lists of the names of two of the circles of this Brotherhood. The first list contained the name of Dryer, the second the name of O'Dwyer, who was not there, and was ill; and the third, the name of Edmund M'Sweeney. They found that M'Sweeney was an old member of an Irish circle. They had old members of this Brotherhood; they found them taking a prominent part as members in the revival of the Brotherhood. In Sydney, at any rate, they had ample evidence of the formation of two branches of this Brotherhood, and included in the members were Dryer and M'Sweeney, who was an old member of an Irish branch, and who, from documents, was shown to be treasurer of the I.R.B. The dues book, which had been tendered, showed the formation of five circles—three of them in full, and two not quite filled up, which they knew from letters ultimately existed in Sydney. In a letter from Doran to Devoy was the statement that the I.R.B. had been on foot in Melbourne for some time.

PROMOTIONS TO CENTRES.

The exhibits in the case, Mr. Ralston continued, appeared to show the "W.B.," referred to as advanced to first, second, and third, was William Butler, a member of the association in Victoria. The constitution indicated that a man who got nine others to join with him created himself a circle; 50 made a sub-centre, and 100 a centre. They were able to identify three men as belonging to the centre in Victoria—Dalton, Doran, and William Butler. Although Mr. Mack had argued that Dalton was an old man, there was no reason why he should not act as instructor. In the diary there was an entry of the promotion of somebody to be a centre of the I.R.B. and Clan-na-Gael, thus showing that those names referred to one and the same thing. There was also an entry in which "J.T." and "T.F." were advanced to be sub-centres, and the entry was signed "M.D." The "T.F.," he contended, was Fitzgerald, and "M.D." was Maurice Dalton, who was acting as a centre. If the men mentioned by initials were not members of the Brotherhood, it was the simplest thing in the world for them to go into the box and deny the allegation that they were. Then there was the letter from Doran to Dalton, dated August 16, 1916, in which Doran reported a "further increase in the family, and will soon have thirty regular customers," and said: "If W.B. keeps his eyes open here he will learn a few points that will be useful." There was in this a further reference to "T.F.," who, Mr. Ralston contended, was Fitzgerald, the writer stating: "I have just learned that he has taken shares in the company and is doing his best to form a branch in Queensland." The documents had to be taken as a whole, not in pieces. He claimed that it had been established that there were 30 circles of the Brotherhood in Sydney; there were many in Melbourne; and Fitzgerald was trying to establish one in Brisbane. Dryer's connection with Dalton was established by his correspondence; and there was ample evidence of Dryer's association with Doran. Without question M'Sweeney was a member of the Brotherhood. He was second on the list of the first circle; and he was a member of an old Irish circle. The evidence showed that he was treasurer of the Sydney branch. There was also evidence that the branch was carrying on the same work as the parent society in Ireland. The I.N.A. banking accounts had been discovered. But it was peculiar that no trace of any such accounts, or record of the I.R.B. moneys had been found. The £20 that was unquestionably sent to America did not come out of either of the I.N.A. accounts. The absence of any trace of a banking account was on a parity with the course followed in Ireland. There the I.R.B. had £16,000; suddenly it was withdrawn.

His Honor: I don't think it is correct to say the I.R.B.; it was the Irish Volunteers.

Mr. Ralston said that when talking of the I.R.B. he did so on the opinion that it overpowered the Sinn Fein, and forced the latter to actual violence.

His Honor: There was fairly circumstantial evidence that the money was banked by The O'Reilly and John O'Neill; at any rate, they banked money far beyond any private income.

Mr. Ralston said there was, moreover, no trace of the money received in response to the circular to the Irish clergy for funds for the De Valera campaign. There were some large sums, but there was no trace of a banking account into which they had been paid, or what was done with the money. Everything seemed to show that the money was intended for I.R.B. purposes, and not merely for I.N.A. purposes, which were the relief of distress, and which were banked and afterwards forwarded to someone in Dublin by bank draft. If the money had been intended for I.N.A. purposes, some trace of it would have been found. Without question, M'Sweeney was a member of No. 2 circle. M'Guiness was No. 1—the head, and the recruiter—of No. 2 circle. According to Doran's letter, he was also a member of an old Irish circle. He was also found in possession of various documents.

His Honor: They were what you might call anti-British documents. But did you find anything more to indicate his connection with the I.R.B.?

Mr. Ralston: Do we want any more than that he is a member of the I.R.B.? M'Guiness, he continued, also signed the fifth half-yearly report of the I.N.A. In that they went a great deal further than the idea of constitutional agitation; they went very strongly in the direction of using violence.

His Honor: The statements might be read differently by different minds. They might be read by persons inclined to physical violence as inciting them to use it. To other minds, the statements might appeal otherwise. Standing by themselves, the statements were perfectly innocent.

Mr. Ralston: Of course, a person who knew nothing about what had taken place in Ireland might think the statements merely exaggeration, but anyone who knew the movements would clearly read the statements as meaning that they should stand behind De Valera. M'Ging was also found in possession of documents, and he also signed one of the half-yearly reports. He appeared, too, on every one of the lists; and he was second to M'Guiness when the circle was completed.

"ANTICIPATED A SEARCH."

"I want to make this remark about M'Ging," Mr. Ralston said, "and I think it applies to the others as well: There is no doubt these people anticipated a search. The warning was evidently issued by Dryer, when he wrote to Dalton that anything of a compromising nature should either be destroyed or very carefully concealed. As far as Dryer is concerned, Dalton's correspondence to him was destroyed—"

His Honor: Or carefully concealed.

Mr. Ralston: That is the same thing, as far as we are concerned. Everybody must, he continued, have been warned equally with Dalton. That might account for the only moderate amount of material found with M'Keown and M'Guiness, and in some measure for not finding any material with M'Ging. It was a remarkable thing in connection with the I.R.B. that none of the men prominent in the inner circles took a prominent part in the outside recruiting work through social functions. A good deal had been made of the fact that Dalton was an old man, but his age did not appear to have impaired his faculties. There must have been a good deal of correspondence to him, in view of the references to cyphers, codes, and secret ink. But none of it had been found. There was no doubt these people did communicate in cypher or code, for as late as after their internment at Darlinghurst an endeavour was made to communicate with them in that way. Such communications had, however, clearly been destroyed. An attempt had been made to make some capital out of the fact that a son of Dalton had enlisted. But it was found that the son was 49 years of age, had been for 16 years in New Zealand, had never returned to Australia or visited his father during that time; and there had been no discussion between them as to whether he should enlist.

"RECIPE FOR SEVERE COLD."

The finding of the memoranda, and the document headed "Recipe for Severe Cold," required serious consideration. They knew that in the past the I.R.B. and the Clan-na-Gael had been responsible for acts of violence, and had not hesitated to use instruments that had led to the destruction of property and the killing and maiming of men and women.

Mr. Mack protested against this remark.

Mr. Ralston: I am talking of the I.R.B. in Ireland, and the Clan-na-Gael.

His Honor: The history of the I.R.B. is connected with dynamite.

Mr. Ralston: Yes; dynamite outrages. Mr. Ralston went on to say that Dalton had remarked that he got the recipe from Jock Wilson. Jock Wilson was an I.W.W. man. The documents which had been found here had a sinister aspect. Old as he was, Dalton was keen. His daughter had never attempted to show that he was mentally deficient. These things were capable of bearing a very serious interpretation.

Referring to M'Keown, Mr. Ralston spoke of "gloatings over victories by Germany over our Allies, and an expression seditious in the highest degree." That, he said, was the state of mind of a man associated closely with Doran. There were two postcards, which showed the closest sympathy between M'Keown and Dryer and M'Keown and Fitzgerald, and which were of a most poisonous and seditious character.

EFFECT ON RECRUITING.

It was all this kind of thing that had done as much to protract the war as anything else. The efforts here made by various seditious bodies had had a most damaging effect on recruiting. They had done untold harm in the Commonwealth. It had been said that no important documents had been found at Fitzgerald's place, but Fitzgerald was apparently feeling decidedly uneasy as to what might happen to himself, because, in speaking of the internment of Wm. Fegan, he said that probably his turn would come next. Why? Because he knew that, as a member of the Brotherhood, he had every chance of being interned.

"A NEST OF EXTREMISTS."

The minutes of the I.N.A. in Queensland showed that in the attitude even of that body there was something more than merely constitutional. They repudiated Redmond and the constitutional movement, and they congratulated De Valera upon his election. All their admiration was for the extremist party. There was no doubt that "these people up there" were a nest of extremists. Everything indicated that the book-selling shop there was not an active business, but was a mere business on the face of it; and that Fitzgerald was carrying on this I.R.B. propaganda. To show what an extremist Fitzgerald was, there was a document which was not only blasphemous, but was worse. It suggested that our soldiers—men in khaki, fighting for their country—deserved to be shot.

Mr. Brennan said it was quite incongruous with the character of the man.

Mr. Ralston: We have had no opportunity of judging of that. You have not put him to the test. He had a chance of going into the box to deny it. Mr. Ralston went on to say that these people got to such a stage that they were talking about extending their activities, under cover of forming branches of the I.N.A. The position became dangerous to the Commonwealth itself and to Australia as part of the Empire if they found that money was collected to be sent either direct or indirect to Germany, or direct to Ireland for the I.R.B. there, or by way of America to go to Germany to purchase arms to be sent to Ireland, or that they were holding direct or indirect communication with the enemy.

THE MINUTE BOOKS.

His Honor, addressing Mr. M'Tiernan, said he had asked for all the minute books in connection with the I.N.A. He wished to know if the books given him were all the minute books.

Mr. Tiernan: They are all the books there are.

His Honor: I understand there was a resolution to keep a separate minute book for the Sinn Fein fund.

Mr. M'Tiernan: I know nothing of it; but I will have inquiries made. At a later stage Mr. M'Tiernan said the resolution had remained "a dead letter."

Mr. Ralston, continuing his address, said it was clear that the association and the I.R.B. and the Clan-na-Gael were one and the same. The constitution and objectives all agreed that they were for the support of the struggle for the complete independence of Ireland under a republican form of government, and that the only policy which would attain that object was physical force. And there was the statement in all: "We are bound by the closest ties of community and purposes with similar organisations in Ireland." They were therefore practically one organisation. That afforded one link showing enemy association, and it was supported by the evidence before the Royal Commission that inquired into the revolution of Easter week, 1916, and at the subsequent trial. Personal contact was not necessary. A great many of the people arrested in Ireland at that time had never been into personal contact with either Casement or the Germans. It did not matter how far the parties or organisations were apart; if their purposes were the same, and they were working in harmony, hostile association was established. If the I.R.B. here was working and helping, either with money or in any other way, the Irish to directly or indirectly help the Germans they were of hostile association. They need not be on the spot or come into personal contact with the enemy. Mr. Ralston quoted from the letters written by Dryer, and contended that they proved direct communication and connection with the parent body of the Brotherhood in Ireland. Doran's instructions to Dalton were to send any money he might have for the purchase of guns, etc., to Sydney, unquestionably to Dryer, and thence it would be remitted to Doran in San Francisco. Doran wrote that the money would be sent by him by direct messenger through the proper channels to Berlin and Hamburg. The remittance was, furthermore, to be accompanied by a list of names, and this list, Mr Ralston claimed, was also to be sent to Germany, according to the phrasing of Doran's letter. What a remarkable handle that would give the enemy. It would give the Germans knowledge of men in Australia who were unfriendly to Britain, and, therefore, a danger to Australia.

"DANGEROUS INFLUENCE."

These men had an influence with a large section of people. The membership of the I.N.A. had been raised from 200 to 1200. They might not influence educated, broad-minded people, but they certainly did exercise considerable influence with a section. Their influence lay in the appeal they made to a dangerous class in the community.

His Honor: They certainly say dangerous things. Their resolution of March 13, 1918, in connection with conscription showed that they believed the British Government intended "massacring" every Irish patriot. That sort of talk was unquestionably a danger to the nation.

Mr. Ralston went on to refer to a Press Bureau statement which, he said, showed that the Brotherhood had been in contact or alliance with Germany. It all showed hostile association of the most dangerous character. Mr. Ralston, in conclusion, said there was abundant evidence here to justify fully the detention of these men under the warrants under which they were detained, until the conclusion of the war. Whether their state of health or their age rendered them comparatively innocuous was a matter for subsequent consideration. A person might be perfectly old, yet his mind and his spirit might be such that he was capable of danger greater than a hundred young men. He was sorry that Fitzgerald suffered from some eye affliction, but, according to letters, that had existed for some time.

His Honor: It started early this year, according to the correspondence.

Mr. Ralston said the question was as to the spirit in which one acted. Very often a sick man in bed, but possessing a powerful mind, could do just as much as an energetic man at large.

This closed the public sitting of the inquiry.

AMUSEMENTS.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.

The J. C. Williamson Musical Comedy Company will enter upon the last nights of their season with a revival this evening, for one week only, of the popular piece "So Long Letty," in which Maude Fane and Harry Wootton, Connie Ediss, and Field Fisher will play the central characters. Next Saturday "High Jinks," another favourite piece, will be reproduced.

"BUSINESS BEFORE PLEASURE."

At 2 o'clock to-day there will be an extra matinee of "Business Before Pleasure" at the Criterion Theatre, followed by the usual afternoon performance on Wednesday next. Messrs. Adams and Waters are crowding the playhouse as Potash and Perlmutter, and their wrangling over the picture business, and their wives' dislike to the Vampire, keep the house in roars of laughter.

THE BERT BAILEY COMEDY COMPANY.

Crowded houses continue to witness Steele Rudd's latest comedy, "Gran'dad Rudd," at the Palace Theatre, and the doings of the Rudd family, Gran'dad, Gran'ma, Dave, and Joe never fail to cause hearty laughter. Playgoers should bear in mind that the company opens in Melbourne on September 21, so that the Sydney season is limited to three weeks. Plans at Nicholson's.

TIVOLI, LONDON REVUE "S'NICE."

This afternoon (2.30) and evening the new London revue staged by Espinosa for the Tivoli Theatre, will bring forward Eve Kelland in character creations and songs, with Leslie Gaze as the sentimental light comedian, and Fayette Perry in snappy American songs. A smart performance includes Charles Albert, Harry de Robeck, Chris. Wren, Harry Burns, Elsie Parkes, Peggy Peate.

"PIERROT PIE" AT THE PLAYHOUSE.

At to-day's matinee (2.30), and at the regular evening performances, Mr. Sydney James's Company will continue the success of their black and white fantasy. MOTOR CAR ENTERTAINMENTS.

St. James's Hall was crowded last evening for the first of two entertainments (the second to-night) directed by Miss Grace Stafford in aid of the upkeep of the Rose Hall motor car. In addition to her own students, this patriotic artist was also generously assisted by the Scarlet Follies in their captivating costume, with choral songs and dances, and the Australian Flying Corps Orchestra, with selections. A cast of eleven characters appeared in a comedy by Edward Knoblock, the American dramatist (before the war "Knoblauch"), entitled "The War Committee." Here, in the uproar and confusion of uncarried propositions reached a farcical climax recognised by the audience in hearty laughter. Another vivacious comedy, "Poached Eggs and Pearls," with a cast of nine characters, was also acted with spirit, first in the dining hall of the Voluntary Workers' Cafe, and then in a second scene, showing the pantry. The suggestion that the cocoa might be brewed from a little handy knife-polish convulsed the house, and all went merry as a marriage-bell.

The matinee to-day at West's Olympia, Oxford-street, will be at 2.30. To-night "The Eternal Sin" will be shown for the last time. On Monday and following nights Mrs. Vernon Castle will be seen on the screen in "The Hillcrest Mystery." Supporting pictures have been selected.

I.W.W. INQUIRY.

BEFORE MR. JUSTICE STREET.

DAVIS GOLDSTEIN'S STATEMENTS.

The inquiry by Mr. Justice Street into the conduct of the police in connection with the I.W.W. case was resumed in No. 2 Jury Court yesterday. The Premier (Mr. Holman) was again present.

Mr. Shand, K.C., and Mr. H. E. Manning (instructed by the Crown Solicitor) appeared for the Crown; Mr. Windeyer, K.C., and Mr. Collins (instructed by Mr. A. C. Roberts) for Mr. Mutch, M.L.A., Mr. Brookfield, M.L.A., and Mr. E. E. Judd, and Mr. W. M. Daley for Henry Christopher Scully.

CHEQUES PRODUCED.

John K. Ridgway, an officer of the Oxford-street branch of the Union Bank, produced several cheques and pay-in slips connected with the account of Golstein at that bank.

His Honor informed counsel that, owing to the trouble of finding the parcels books, the Railway authorities could not produce them before Monday morning.

DAVIS GOLDSTEIN'S EXAMINATION.

Davis Goldstein was examined by Mr. Windeyer on the cheques and pay-in slips produced from the Union Bank. After his arrest on the forged note charge, he paid his solicitor £550 for his defence, he said. This was used for solicitor's fees, briefing counsel, retaining fees, attendance and work at the police court during the preliminary hearing, work connected with the taking of evidence on commission, attendance at the Quarter Sessions at Darlinghurst. He never heard until he was in the dock at Darlinghurst that the Crown case had been withdrawn against him. Mr. Lamb, who appeared for the Crown at the trial, announced at the opening of the case that he had just received information from the Attorney-General that no bill had been filed against witness, and he was thereupon discharged. He had received a bill of costs from his solicitor, but it was burned with other papers in a fire at his place. After his first interview with the police he saw them several times up to October 23, 1916—saw them whenever he had any information to give them.

Mr. Windeyer: Did you never mention to these detectives in all these interviews with them anything about your position: did you ever ask them how you were going to get on?

Witness: No, never mentioned it.

You knew you were under committal for trial at that time?—Yes.

And you did not know anything about how you were going to get on the forged note trial?—I was perfectly confident that if the case came on against me I was quite safe.

Did anybody else speak to them on your behalf?—No.

Witness, continuing, said he had an interview with Mr. Tillett, Crown solicitor, before he appeared in the box to give evidence, but could not tell the date. He knew it was before he went into the box. He was never called to see Mr. Lamb, K.C., in his chambers. A telephone message was received saying that Mr. Tillett would like to see him; he went to that gentleman's office, had an interview with him, and notes were taken of what he said.

Mr. Windeyer called for the notes, but it appeared that the record could not be found. Some discussion took place between counsel as to the date of this interview, as witness said he could not remember it, and it was finally stated that it was held on October 13.

Witness, continuing, said that after leaving Mr. Tillett he returned to his factory, and some time after his return a telephone message came, asking him to appear at the court to give evidence. He went thither.

Mr. Windeyer: Do you remember whether the evidence you gave was the same as you had told Mr. Tillett in your interview with him?

Witness: It was what I had told the detectives.

NOT A "FIRE BUG."

Mr. Windeyer: You don't know this man Hamilton intimately?—Yes. Every time we met in the street we would speak. When any of the I.W.W. men met me in the street they would speak to me. Being a member of the I.W.W., it did not mean that I was a "fire bug."

You have given evidence that the majority of the men would have nothing to do with incendiarism?—Yes, when I was a member.

Did you know the charter and constitution of the I.W.W.?—Yes.

Is it a fact that until the conversations with Hamilton and Glynn you had no objection to any of them?—I do not know what you mean by any of them.

Prior to the conversation did you know anything against them as criminals?—No. I had ordinary conversation with the rank and file of the I.W.W. They spoke about the I.W.W. fires which took place, and laughed, and said that more would occur. I took it then as only an idle boast.

Did you say to Mr. Gannon, "When I was an active member of the I.W.W. as a law-abiding citizen I had nothing to object to it?"—Yes.

Did you say this, "With the exception of the two or three admissions I have spoken of I know nothing against these men?"—Yes; about the men in the dock.

At this stage Mr. Shand informed his Honor that Detective Pauling was ill, and that there was a doctor's certificate to that effect.

His Honor said that a communication might be sent to the detective inquiring whether he had found the book which he referred to in his evidence last week.

Mr. Windeyer, to witness: What did Hamilton say that made you know that he was the distributor of the stuff?—He told me that he had got plenty of it.

Did the police tell you to try to get hold of some dope?—Never.

After you saw Hamilton?—They told me to secure all the possible information I could.

Did the police, at any time tell you to try and get hold of the dope?—They told me to get as much information as I possibly could.

His Honor, to witness: That is a perfectly plain question. Answer yes or no.

Mr. Windeyer, to witness: Did the police ask you to try to get hold of some dope?—No. Neither before the conversation with Hamilton nor after.

Tell me if this is true—in order to test your credibility, it was suggested that you should try to get some stuff used by the I.W.W.?—It was never suggested to me.

Mr. Shand (to witness): At the time you were connected with the I.W.W. were they advocating sabotage?—No.

You know later they issued a pamphlet called "Sabotage," and was produced at the time?—I did not see the document put in at the time.

Were not you interviewed by Pauling or Turbet, one or both, and you told them you had got information?—I don't remember.

Mr. Windeyer objected to what he termed leading questions.

His Honor said perhaps it would be better if the witness told his story in his own way, and after he had exhausted his recollection his memory might be refreshed.

Witness was then examined at length by Mr. Shand as to where he met Sergeant Pauling. He said that, in company with his brother, he saw Pauling at the Paddington Police Station.

Did any police or detectives suggest you should make that statement?—None whatever.

Have you at any time given the police any money or reward for anything done by them?—Never.

Witness, replying to further questions, said that Detective O'Keefe was at Wyong on a holiday and called at his hotel, but did not stay the night. Surridge was also there on one occasion.

His Honor: What was he doing in that part of the world?—I cannot remember.

Did he stay the night?—He had a meal there.

LOUIS GOLDSTEIN.

Louis Goldstein then re-entered the box. He said, in answer to Mr. Windeyer, that when his brother told him he intended to tell Sergeant Pauling that he had made a lying statement to Judd witness said: "That is the best thing you can do—tell the truth." When he went to Paddington Police Station he did not ask for Sergeant Pauling, because he knew he would be there.

Because of an arrangement?—There were no arrangements. He comes on duty at 10 o'clock.

His Honor said he had been asked whether the statements made by Davis Goldstein to Judd might be made available for publication, and asked Mr. Windeyer and Mr. Shand whether they saw any objection. Both gentlemen answered that they saw none, and his Honor thereupon assented to the statements being published.

The evidence of Louis Goldstein was continued.

Mr. Windeyer: Can you tell me why, on the Monday night previous to the inquiry, you went to see Sergeant Pauling?

Witness: Because I knew that an injustice had been done him.

Mr. Windeyer then pressed the witness to say what he had told the sergeant, but got no answer.

His Honor then asked the question, and the witness replied: I told him what my brother had told me about the lying statements he had made concerning him, and he said—"It is a pity that he told such lies, because I had never done anything wrong to him."

Mr. Windeyer: What had your brother told you?

Witness: He told me in reference to the I.W.W. case.

At this stage a smell of smoke was noticeable in the court, and there was great moving of furniture in the hall outside. Smoke was seen arising, and for a few minutes proceedings were suspended. Eventually the smoke cloud became less, though the noise of water playing from a hose was heard for some time. It appears a lighted pipe belonging to a court official ignited his coat, hanging on a peg in the hallway. The fire brigade extinguished the flames.

Mr. Windeyer (resuming his examination): Why did you go to see Sergeant Pauling about it?

Witness: Because it concerned him more than anybody else.

When did your brother tell you about the statement he had made to Judd; where did he tell you?—He told me at Mudgee. He did not tell me all he had said, but he told me it was all lies.

When did your brother next speak to you about the statement?—When he came down to Sydney.

When was that?—About three weeks ago.

What did he tell you?—The only thing he told me was that he had made a statement, and that it was lies.

You are sure of that?—Sure of it.

Continuing, the witness said his brother mentioned something about dope being put in Teen's pocket, and that his brother said he was going to pool them.

Mr. Windeyer: What did he mean by pool them?

Witness: That he was going to get Pauling, Hooper, and Turbet into it. Continuing, he said he told Pauling he could not understand why his brother should make such a statement, unless the I.W.W. crowd had got hold of him again.

What else?—I said they had got hold of him and put him into the position he was now in, and myself.

How?—Did they blackmail him?—Well, they came along and said, "If you don't go bail for Morgan what would be the consequence." He came to me, and I refused to sign the cheque, until he said he wanted the money for himself.

In further examination, witness said he had seen Sergeant Pauling on the Wednesday night of the week previous to the inquiry opening, but had not seen that officer between the Monday night and the Wednesday. When he saw Pauling he told him his brother had no right to make lying statements, and the best thing he could do was to tell the truth. The witness repeated this several times, in answer to pressing questions by Mr. Windeyer.

Did you tell Sergeant Pauling in any way that you were going to try and get your brother to come round to the police side?—I told him I was going to try and get a my brother to speak the truth.

Witness continued that his brother first told him he was going to make a statement on the Saturday night previous to the Sunday when he made a statement to Mr. Windeyer. On the Monday he and his brother walked together down from William-street to Elizabeth-street, in the park opposite the T. and G.-buildings.

BETTING TRANSACTIONS.

Mr. Windeyer: Lazarus drew out £200 the day you paid him £600. Do you know why he did that?—I do not know.

You got £600 in notes from Oxford-street and carried them down in Lazarus's hotel. That was unusual, was it not?—Yes.

Why did you do it?—Because I thought it would be the best plan at the time. I do not know why I did that.

You say you got £250 back in September or the beginning of October. Do you remember on what horse you put it?—On Polycrates. Where did that horse run?—Second.

Witness said that he made bets with various bookmakers. The largest bet was about £20. The names of some of the bookmakers he believed were Baker and Abrahams. Witness said he never made a booked bet in his life, and had over £300 with him that day. He lost it all with the exception of about £30 or £40. He would not swear that the whole of the £250 was on Polycrates. Witness said he got £250 from Lazarus the day of the Metropolitan meeting.

In answer to Mr. Windeyer he said that Detective Pauling had visited the Wyong Hotel one week-end, and he believed that Detective O'Keefe came with Pauling.

SUCKING-PIGS.

Mr. Windeyer: Did Pauling pay for two sucking-pigs when he was at your hotel?—No; he paid me in Sydney.

Who booked the parcels at the station?—The boy did that.

They were the only two parcels, both sucking-pigs, which went to Pauling?—Yes.

When was the fire at Wyong?—About August.

Will you swear that none of the pigs were despatched after the fire?—I sent a lot of pigs to Sydney.

Mr. Windeyer handed witness an envelope, and asked him whether it was his handwriting, and witness replied in the affirmative.

You wrote that in the police station?—No. The envelope is my own. I wrote it on the Monday morning.

You went down to the detective office the morning of this inquiry. Who did you see there?—I saw Mr. Campbell.

When you went inside the office did you see Leary?—Yes.

Did you speak to him?—I may have spoken to him.

Did you see Hooper there?—I don't remember.

Or Surridge?—Yes, I saw him. I was talking to them.

You were talking to them for half an hour?—I was given a chair to sit down in the detective's room to wait for Mr. Walker. I was sitting next to the fire.

Was Jones, from Paddington, there?—I do not know.

You were in his company for half an hour yesterday?—You can't walk up and down there like a dummy. One must talk to somebody.

Have you talked to Leary outside the court?—I may have done so.

Have you talked to Surridge?—I don't remember.

Or to Turbet?—I don't remember. The only ones I remember are Jones and Leary to whom I have spoken outside the court.

You were at the detective office on the Monday, and after that where did you go to?—I believe I came down to the court.

Witness added that on the Monday evening he went to see his brother, and they went to the Criterion Theatre.

Did you tell the police that your brother could give them valuable information?—I don't remember having such a conversation. The first time I went to the police was when my brother got some fire dope.

Witness stated that he and his brother saw the detectives about the I.W.W. case.

Mr. Windeyer: You went along together?—Yes.

You didn't know anything about it?—I wanted to know something more about it.

When you went did you ask for Pauling?—Yes.

Because you had something to do with Pauling in connection with the forgery cases you went to him and took him that dope?—I don't know what you mean by that.

When you knew your brother had information to give about the I.W.W. fires you were horrified?—I was disgusted that he should be concerned with such a blackmailing crowd as they were. I never had any time for them.

The inquiry will be resumed on Monday, at 10.30 a.m.

LATE SERGEANT CAMPBELL.

Sergeant Henry Hunter Campbell, who since he was invalided from the war had been engaged at the State Recruiting Office, was taken suddenly ill, and died at the Randwick Military Hospital. His remains were removed to his parents' residence, Glenelg, Sutherland-street, Neutral Bay, where, after a short service, conducted by the Rev. R. H. Waugh, many military comrades and private friends of the late Sergeant Campbell marched for about three miles to the Gore Hill Cemetery. The cortege was headed by the Second Military District Guard Band, and was followed by a gun carriage, drawn by five horses, on which were numerous wreaths and the flower-covered coffin. As the procession approached the cemetery gates the band played Chopin's "Marche Funebre."

The Presbyterian burial service was conducted by the Rev. R. H. Waugh. At its conclusion three volleys were fired over the grave and two buglers sounded the Last Post.

The relations of the deceased present were Messrs. W. Breckenridge, F. H. Nickling, and C. G. Watson (brothers-in-law), H. Bethel (uncle), J. Petterson, C. Petterson, Guy Seale, Corporal Gordon Seale, A. Campbell, J. Campbell, D. Campbell, G. M'Phail, and A. S. M'Kenzie (cousins). There were also many military and civilian representatives present.

DEATH OF MR. A. E. HENSON.

The death is announced of Mr. A. E. Henson, of the firm of Hill, Clarke, and Co. Mr. Henson, who was 51 years of age, was a well-known figure at the Homebush fat stock sales, where he acted as salesman for the firm of Hill, Clarke, and Co. for many years. He was an excellent judge of sheep and cattle, and an expert in the value of wool. He entered the firm of Hill, Clarke, and Co. as a junior 36 years ago, and remained with them until his death. In 1910 he was given a seat on the board of directors.

RECRUITING.

On Thursday 14 men were accepted at the Central Recruiting Depot and 24 in the country, making the total for the day 38.

In connection with the North Coast march, it was officially reported yesterday that eight recruits had been obtained at Broadwater.

This evening, at 8 o'clock, Lieut. Church will deliver a lecture on "Gallipoli," with lantern slides and music, in the Public school, South Granville. The admission is free.

Mr. R. W. D. Weaver, M.L.A. (now a private in the Australian Imperial Forces), will address a recruiting meeting on the Corso, Manly, to-night, at 8 o'clock. Lieut. Nicholls and Sergt. Watkins will also speak.

The following meetings will be held to-morrow:—

ELIGIBLES BALLOT.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

The Minister for Recruiting, Mr. Orchard, said to-day that posters were now being printed to appeal to eligible men to join the ballot. As soon as a man had returned his question card agreeing to submit to a ballot a badge would be posted to him. The badges would be ready for issue on September 17. It is not expected that the first ballot will be taken until the end of October.

CANE-CUTTERS' STRIKE.

INNISFAIL, Friday.

The Mourilyan Mill stopped crushing temporarily, but starts again immediately. There are a few trucks of sugar at Mourilyan Harbour, which the local Railway Union refuses to handle. This decision was arrived at by the casting vote of the chairman. The position here is serious, but the farmers at the three mills have agreed to sink all political differences, and are determined not to give way to the A.W.U. demand, which would mean the breaking of the award by the farmers. Goondi farmers are now cutting their own cane. The employees are not yet out as they demanded a secret ballot, which the A.W.U. refused. Several attempts have been made to fire the cane, and all the farm labourers have been called out under intimidation. In the event of the Goondi employees coming out the mill staff and farmers will run the mill. The chief opposition to the demands of the A.W.U. is coming from open supporters of the Labour party, who say the party should stand by the farmers and demand that their legislation should be recognised by the A.W.U.

SPORTING.

THE TURF.

Pony and galloway racing takes place at Ascot this afternoon, the Maitland Jockey Club holds its Cup meeting, and the Murrumbidgee Turf Club brings its reunion to a close at Wagga; South Australian Tattersall's Club caters for Adelaide sporting folk; and the Boulder Racing Club's Cup meeting provides an outing for Western Australian racegoers.

The general entry for the A.J.C. Spring meeting on October 5, 7, 9, and 12 demands the attention of owners and trainers of racehorses on Monday, the 9th prox., and those interested should make their nominations early instead of putting them off to the last day. All classes of racehorses are liberally catered for, the sum of 1600 sovs being provided for racing over obstacles, 4500 for handicap events, ranging from six furlongs to 1½ mile, and 6000 sovs for w.f.a. racing, making a total of 12,700 sovs. The grand total of the added money to be distributed at the meeting is 25,000 sovs; the best endowed programme in Australia.

The Ascot Racing Club holds a pony and galloway meeting this afternoon, and the lengthy programme of a dozen items should bring about interesting sport. The customary transit arrangements will be in vogue, and the racing commences at 12.30 p.m. The results may be anticipated as under:—Maiden Handicap: First division, Coacomb, Colleen Bawn, Charmwood; second division, Taupiri Maid, Beredina, Concepta; third division, Ethel Cadman; Pearl Meadow, Little Colleen. Flying Handicap: First division, Cetrine, Paderewski, Minacre; second division, Vocalist, Obvious, Lady Elysian; third division, Association, Lord Malval, Fille-Dormi. Fourteen Hands Handicap: First division, Florrie Bell, Footprint, Themia; second division, Green Rose, Nelson, Kitty Moore. Fourteen-two Handicap: Why Why, Lord Barcaldine, Lucy Alywne. Ascot Handicap: Marigold, Lineage, Stainer. Fourteen-one Handicap: First division, Carey Moore, Molly Blackwell, Vincefield; second division, Lady Mercer, Marthos, Jack Marsh.

The following race meetings have been granted registration by the A.J.C.:—Goulburn Eight Hours (October 19, 21), Southern District Racing Association (September 27, 28), Kooraweatha Racing Club (October 2), Trangie Jockey Club (October 8, 9), and Geurie Amateur Racing Club (September 26).

"J.B." (City Tatt.'s): The price is quoted in the report of the race.

"Wallingra" (Neutral Bay): Poitrina has not won a race over six furlongs. As a two-year-old she won the Juvenile Stakes (6f) at Rosehill April meeting; the Easter Stakes (7f) at the A.J.C. Autumn meeting, and the Youthful Stakes (5f) at City Tattersall's Autumn meeting. She did not score as a three-year old; but last season she won the Clyde Stakes (6f) at the Rosehill December meeting; the Oakleigh Plate (5½f) at the V.A.T.C. Autumn meeting; and the June Stakes (6f) at the A.J.C. Winter meeting. During the current season she secured the first division of the Pace Welter (6f) at Warwick Farm, and the first division of the Highweight Handicap (6f), at Rosehill.

The liberally-endowed programme for Tattersall's Club September meeting on the 14th prox. demands the attention of owners and trainers on Monday next, for, at 4 p.m. on that date, entries close with the secretary, Mr. J. B. Olliffe. The half-dozen events on the card carry in the aggregate 2050 sovs., of which 650 sovs. goes to the Chelmsford Stakes, a w.f.a. event, with penalties and allowances; 400 sovs. to the Spring Handicap, 300 sovs. to the Tramway Handicap, 250 sovs. each to the Steeplechase and Welter Handicap, and 200 sovs. to the Novice Handicap.

The following officers were elected at the annual meeting of the Bathurst Turf Club:—Patron, Mr. J. Meagher, M.L.C.; president, Dr. T. A. Machattie; vice-presidents, Dr. Brooke-Moore, Messrs. J. J. Sullivan, W. H. Crago, R. E. Gilmour, J. H. M'Intosh, and John M'Phillamy; hon. treasurer, Mr. L. J. Mockler. The secretary stated, with reference to the increase by 100 per cent. of the charges for railway horse-boxes, that the removal of the former rebate would seriously affect the country clubs, which would have to reduce their prize money. This would lead to reduction of entries, with a consequent falling-off in attendances, and the ultimate extinction of some of the clubs.

Our Melbourne representative telegraphs:—The chances of King Offa for the Caulfield Cup, and Coq d'Or for the Melbourne Cup, and also both of them for the double, were much discussed yesterday.

The progressive easterly movement of the various pressure systems over the Commonwealth has caused a contraction of the "col" area over Queensland, thus rendering it rather more pronounced than on Thursday, and resulting in the formation of two weak, closed-curve depressions between Port Darwin and Longreach. An increase in the cloudiness has occurred over Queensland, with further light to moderate and scattered rainfall on the coast between Cooktown and Bowen, and with thunder over Maranoa, Warrego, and the southern part of the Central Highlands. Another circumstance arising from the movement since Thursday is the establishment of the combined monsoonal and Antarctic disturbance over the south eastern States, where additional wide-spread rains have occurred, but mostly over the eastern halves of Victoria and New South Wales. A continuation of the unsettled conditions is indicated, and more rain and thunderstorms should be experienced, but chiefly over the eastern half of New South Wales. Some isolated local hail squalls are also likely, with further mild to warm temperatures for the present; but a cool [illegible] ing the western districts. STOCKS AND SHARES.

A firm market prevailed for investments on the Stock Exchange yesterday, and a fair volume of business passed at steady prices. Wheat scrip was quoted easier, however, and the weakness was attributed to the probability of the Government selling wheat at a slightly lower price than hitherto.

THE MARKETS.

Oils met with a steady demand yesterday. Castor oil was again offered at 10/, and Japanese cod oil at 6/ a gallon. Japanese fish oil was quoted at 5/6. Business was done in rapeseed oil at 10/6, and in pale filtered whale oil at 6/. Fook Cheong oil was quoted at from 11/ to 12/, and 42/6 was paid for imported brands of olive oil.

Manufactured metals were in strong hands. Boiler plates and 16-gauge black sheets were worth £75 a ton. Sheet lead was unchanged at £42. Sales of galvanised roofing screws were made at 1/6 per lb, and I.W. screws realised 32½ per cent. on list price. There was very little demand for fencing wire, but prices were on the whole well maintained. Messrs. John Dunn, Son, and Co., writing from New York on July 3, stated that the two important events of the month in the iron and steel market had been the fixing of prices for three months beginning July 1, and the virtual taking over of the industry by the Government. There was no change in price except in the case of iron ore, which had advanced 1/10½ a ton. The assuming of further control by the Government was somewhat of a surprise, in view of the agreement of the manufacturers to do whatever the Government might ask them to do, and the fact that they had for some time been delivering practically 100 per cent. of their output on Government orders. Apparently, however, the Government was not satisfied with the result of this agreement, and its latest instructions to the iron and steel mills stated that the mills must not deliver any goods except on priority orders of the Government. The instructions were not, however, perfectly clear, and there seemed to be some expectation that the Government would not require the total output of all the mills, at least for some little time to come. The whole situation was somewhat mixed. In the meantime no business is being transacted, except subject to Government regulations, and some mills were refusing to book orders at all until the situation was cleared up.

PRODUCE.

Dairy produce sold freely yesterday. Heavy stocks of eggs were available at from 10½d to 1/ a dozen. Bacon was not quite so plentiful, but supplies were ample to fill requirements. The market was again short of butter. It is reported from Melbourne that the Commonwealth Government may take the control of the butter business out of the hands of the Federal Butter Committee. A conference of primary producers connected with the dairying industry throughout the Commonwealth has been called for September 4, says the "Argus," at the request of the Assistant Minister (Mr. Massy Greene). The principal item for discussion is stated to be the disposal of the Australian surplus production of butter for the currency of the war, and for a period of two years afterwards. Victoria, New South Wales, and Tasmania have concurred in the proposal, but Queensland is reported to be opposed to the scheme. The conference will endeavour to bring all the States into unanimity.

MEDICAL, CHEMICALS, ETC.

THERE is no need for you to dread a visit to my Surgery, no matter what condition your teeth are in. I can perform every operation known to dental science without causing pain. It doesn't worry me a bit when a patient tells me that his teeth are so very sensitive he can't bear to let a dentist touch them with his instruments. Just as soon as I apply my wonderful apparatus to the affected teeth the nerve feeling disappears, making it impossible for pain to exist, and the patient experiences no ill effects whatever. All the dental work done in my offices is performed without pain. If you come to me to have a tender, aching tooth filled, crowned, or extracted, you

Mrs. M. Board (aged 70 years), Simpson-street, Wellington, writes:—"10/7/18. I am grateful to you for curing me of severe Rheumatic pains, weak Stomach, and other symptoms due to weak nerves and bad circulation. My joints also were stiff and swollen, and my back ached dreadfully, pain in my side under my breast, and my bowels were always troublesome, shoulders and arms painful. It is wonderful what your Constipation Cure and Rheumatic Remedy has done for me. My skin is not itchy now, and my stomach is much stronger. I would like you to use this, my Testimonial, in the Press, for the benefit of other suffering women, because I am sure that if sufferers came to you in the early stages of their ailment they would be saved a great deal of suffering.

ETTALONG BEACH ESTATE,
ON THE MAINLAND,
WOY WOY.
Fronting Ettalong Beach, with its Perfect Surfing and Magnificent Marine Panorama.

THE HISTORY OF ETTALONG
BROUGHT UP TO DATE.

MILLIONS OF YEARS AGO:
Nature formed Ettalong Beach, and made a good job of it.

SIX YEARS AGO:
We bought the Estate. We knew what was coming.

ONE YEAR AGO:
A Fine Motor Road, Trafalgar-avenue, was finished. This runs from Woy Woy Station right to the beach, a 12 minutes' Motor Drive.
Following on the completion of the road and the inauguration of a regular motor service, the Public rushed Ettalong Beach without any auction or booming. We sold £7000 of land last season.

THREE MONTHS AGO:
We put in hand the making of nearly a mile of good motor roads through the Estate, and along Ocean Beach-road to the Beach. These new roads are just finished, and open up the Estate wonderfully.
Now we are ready for the opening of another Season, and are bringing into the market a fine line of Lots hitherto reserved. They front the new motor road, leading right on to the Beach. Get one of these, 20/ A FOOT.
Also a number of other Lots to choose from, from as low as £12/10/ PER LOT.

Williams's Motor Car meets every train, and runs you out to the Beach, through the Estate, in 8 Minutes. Fare, 1/ each way.
GET IN EARLY.
There will be a rush this season.

HOUSES AND LAND FOR SALE.

THE UP-TO-DATE HOME.

AS AN INVESTMENT.

Your HOME should be an INVESTMENT as well. This is assured if you buy in an established residential suburb, and if the property combines sound building with reasonable price.

There is no reason why the present-day home should not present this aspect, which is precisely our point of view.

AT HABERFIELD GARDEN SUBURB.

HABERFIELD BUNGALOWS are the latest in style our architect can produce. No detail is left unattended to in either exterior or interior treatment.

PRICES are lower at Haberfield than anywhere else, and on the convenient terms we offer (of, say, £100 deposit), repayments are arranged for in monthly or weekly instalments. Purchaser has the right to pay cash at any time or to sell or let the property when he so desires.

The progress of Haberfield is already assured, and the buyer of to-day invests wisely if he purchases at Haberfield, where the conditions are most congenial and the standard of security is first-class.

A Haberfield Booklet will give further details, though we invite your inspection personally this afternoon, or by appointment during the week, when our Manager will accompany clients by car and show them our latest bungalows.

HABERFIELD INTEREST IS 5 PER CENT.

A little skilful training and attention in childhood will mean a lifetime of comfort and satisfaction to the child. It means the ability to masticate thoroughly. It means the greatest aid to the appearance. It means by absence of decay and the poisonous products of decay good health. And it means implanting in the child the valuable habit of having his teeth regularly cared for.

My gentle and patient care wins immediately the confidence of the child. I save him the slightest twinge of unnecessary pain in fillings or similar work.

EVEN ABSCESSED TEETH CAN BE EXTRACTED PAINLESSLY.

Many people think that it is impossible to remove an abscessed tooth painlessly. I not only guarantee in the ordinary word-of-mouth manner to do it, but I am ready to HAND YOU £5 IF YOU FEEL ANY PAIN AT ALL. And you will not endure any painful pricking, swollen gums, or broken teeth.

A WRITTEN GUARANTEE is given with fillings, crowns, plate, and bridge work, undertaking to make good any rare fault which may develop even five years after. Terms can be arranged. Open till 6 p.m. daily, Saturday included. Until 9 p.m. Friday. Half-holiday Wednesday.

DRESSCUTTING.—A FREE LESSON will be given at Rebarfalds Sewing Machine Service Department, opp. Town Hall, George-street, Sydney, at 3 o'clock Next Wednesday Afternoon. LADIES INVITED.

You will be shown how to cut a shirt-blouse, skirt, coat frock, and any other garment, using three measurements only, after one lesson by Rebarfalds Automatic Dresscutting Method. Dressmakers and Ladies who have found school and college systems too slow and too difficult are invited to come along on Wednesday afternoon, at 3, and see how to cut any garment in one lesson.

Little Ethel Slade, aged 10, of 88 City-road, Darlington, learnt to cut her dresses by Rebarfalds Automatic Dresscutting Method in two lessons.

Rebarfalds is the ONLY METHOD that is demonstrated this way FREE, and YOU ARE SHOWN WHAT YOU ARE GOING TO GET BEFORE YOU BUY. IT IS THE ONLY SYSTEM that can teach you ONE GARMENT IN A LESSON, and in which ONLY 3 MEASUREMENTS ARE REQUIRED. Rebarfalds have the exclusive right to this system. You cannot learn it anywhere else in Sydney.

We had the offer of a number of different systems, but chose the Rebarfald because it was the easiest, quickest, simplest, and surest method we could find anywhere.

We undertake to teach you one garment at one lesson, with 3 measurements, and to give you satisfaction, or to refund your money if we fail.

All this will be shown to you next Wednesday after at 3 o'clock, and if any lady present can show that we are unable to prove what we have said in this advertisement, or that there is a better system in Sydney, we are prepared to give her a Rebarfald Sewing Machine free of charge.

Make sure of a seat, call or write for a free ticket for a reserved front seat, free of charge. This lesson and demonstration are being given FREE as an advertisement to show what it is possible for any woman to do at home on her own sewing machine, or, better still, on a REBARFALD AUTOMATIC SEWING MACHINE.

LEARN TO MAKE YOUR OWN CLOTHES.

You can learn quickly, easily, and thoroughly to make your own skirts, blouses, costumes, coats, underclothing, etc., by the marvellous Simplex System. This up-to-date method is being taught very successfully by Madame Lex Mildred, who is admitted to be Australia's leading Fashion Expert, Designer, and Dressmaker, and is giving great satisfaction to her students.

THE SIMPLEX SYSTEM TEACHES GENUINE DRESSMAKING.

The Simplex System is not an advertising device or a chart system that may seem so easy in the hands of an expert, but so often proves unsatisfactory to the home dressmaker.

The Simplex system is an easy, practical method of teaching REAL Dressmaking; the kind good home dressmakers and professionals do, and the only way that is worth while learning.

TWO HUNDRED AND THIRTY STUDENTS are studying Summerhayes' Shorthand at the Metropolitan Business College. All the old drudgery is avoided, and students in a few weeks find themselves in possession of a highly-developed system, as brief as Pitman, but more orderly, more legible.
Summerhayes' Shorthand is not a one-day, three-rule, or a 30-day system. It is the invention of T. Stanley Summerhayes, a Pitman Medallist at 250 words per minute, and Principal of the Metropolitan Business College, and is constructed to meet the modern need of a high-speed, legible Shorthand, without the Pitman intricacies. Exceptions to rule are a big trouble in Pitman Shorthand. There are NO exceptions in the Summerhayes System, a sure proof of its better basis and more orderly arrangement. What a difference this one thing makes to the student. He is able to think clearly, quickly, and surely, and is NOT caught in the meshes of a maze of alternative outlines.
Demonstrations on request.
WE STILL TEACH THE PITMAN SYSTEM, and will continue to do so just as thoroughly as in the past. On this point, see our latest Pitman Successes, an overwhelming triumph for our Pitman Students—2 out of 3 Firsts and 30 out of 41 "Distinctions" in open competition in the latest I.P.S.A. Exam.
